1200 MINERS END SUICIDE THREATS AND LEAVE PIT

Most of Laborers' Demands Met After Strike of Nearly Five Days at Pecs, Hungary.

100 OF THE MEN HALF CONSCIOUS

Bonuses and More Work Promised to Diggers Under Terms of Compromise Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

PECS, Hungary, Oct. 16.—Twelve hundred coal miners, who remained underground nearly five days without food and water in an effort to get more work and more pay, ended their strike today. They had threatened to commit mass suicide if their demands were not met.

Blinking in the early morning sunlight, the half-starved men staggered from the mouth of the mine into the arms of wives who were waiting with food. Those who were able ate ravenously, but many could not accept food.

One hundred of the men were half conscious and were suffering from gas poisoning and exposure. Even the more robust were haggard, but joyful.

Troops stood behind machine guns as the men emerged, but there was no disorder.

Terms of Settlement.

For 110 hours the men had remained deep in the earth, sending back word they preferred death to surrender. They wanted more money and more work than the $2 and two days weekly they had been getting. They rejected pleas sent down by the Government. This morning a compromise was reached.

Mine owners and the Government reached an agreement. Peace emissaries were allowed by the strikers' guards to go below with the offer, which was accepted.

All of the miners' demands were not met, but the strikers got their main objectives. The men will receive a winter bonus of $3 each, and, instead of an 8 per cent wage cut, a Christmas bonus of the same amount. More days of work also were granted.

Threat to Kill Mediator.

Only a few hours before the settlement, the miners threatened to kill Gen. Janos Estergalyos, member of Parliament, who tried to mediate with them.

After one trip down, he was warned not to make another, or "you won't return."

"The most terrible remembrance of my life," was the effect the scenes below had on Estergalyos. He said the men were "absolutely insane."

Some of them, crazed by hunger and thirst, had been tied to posts to keep them from killing themselves.

"Utterly exhausted," the General said, "they are huddled down there in the heat, lying on the dirty, water-soaked beds of the mine with huge chunks of coal for pillows. Some are unconscious. Nearly five days without water to drink has parched their throats. Some of them utter sounds like tortured animals."

DYNAMITE FAILS TO FREE DOG IMPRISONED IN INDIANA CAVE

Fox Hound's Barks Growing Weaker After Almost Week in Limestone Cavern.

By the Associated Press.

GREENVILLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Mitzi, a fox hound, imprisoned in a limestone cavern since Wednesday, appears doomed to death. Seven sticks of dynamite used by farmers have made little impression on the solid rock, and Mitzi's barks are growing weaker.

Mitzi's imprisonment was discovered by John Brock, a farmer, when he heard barking as he approached the spring, behind which is the cave with a narrow opening. Scores of farmers came to help. They held little hope for Mitzi today. A small boy squirmed into the opening Sunday bearing a torchlight. He could get only 15 or 20 feet inside the cavern. There he met a barrier of solid rock, with only a tiny opening. Mitzi, he said, was only a short distance beyond the small cavity.

France Suspends Some Quotas.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—France suspended the import quota system on machines and machine tools yesterday, articles in which there is generous American trade, in the first step to substitute higher tariffs for quotas. The Commerce Ministry for weeks has been studying the change, which importers said was expected to be applied shortly to other products.

JOHNSON SAYS BLANKET 30-HOUR WEEK WOULD BRING NEW DEPRESSION

Former Head of NRA Points to Result of Higher Prices in Cotton Industry, Which He Declares Never Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Hugh S. Johnson, former administrator of NRA, believes a blanket cut of the work week to 30 hours would bring "a depression that'll turn your hair gray."

He contends that any relief for unemployment through work week slashes is "limited." As for taking care of the jobless, the General says:

"There are many ways to disguise the dole, but they are all too expensive in administration. The cheapest way to keep people alive is direct cash—paying people money to buy stuff to eat."

He made these observations yesterday in a chat with the press at Walter Reed Hospital.

Johnson explained that what he said was "just my private opinion and as a private citizen now I can express it."

One reason Johnson questioned the effectiveness of the statutory 30-hour work week demanded by the American Federation of Labor was its constitutionality. He foresaw an industry-by-industry effort of the new recovery board to secure work-week cuts, but doubted the result.

"I don't believe a work week reduction by statute will stick in a Supreme Court test," Johnson said.

"The reduction of hours, except in some industries, is not economically sound and a statute wouldn't make it so.

"Most of the unemployment is in the heavy goods industries and their trouble is they have no business. A good many of them are operating at 20 per cent of capacity and if you cut down the hours you will have a grotesque result.

Sluggish Re-Investment.

"The cause of the trouble in the heavy industries is the sluggish reinvestment of money.

"You can't reduce the work hours unless the industries will agree. Industries should absorb their 1929 percentage of workers—that was the basis of NRA. The consumer, retail and distribution industries are just about doing that now. In some of these the employment is above 1929.

"Cutting the work week to 30 hours would increase costs to the consumer 33 1-3 per cent. If you increase costs 30 per cent you'll stagnate consumption and get a depression that'll make your hair turn gray."

To prove his argument, Johson pointed to the cotton textile industry whose costs, he said, were increased 100 per cent through NRA, processing tax and other facotrs. He said this increase stagnated consumption in that industry so that it never has recovered.

Thinks Farmers Would Howl.

"In my opinion the benefit to employment through a work-week cut is limited. As I understand what this NRA board will do, industries wilyl be called in one by one and those who can reduce work hours will be asked to do it. But I think you are leaning on a very weak reed for helping unemployment."

Recalling that farmers had protested against higher prices on overalls under the cotton textile code, Johnson said that labor demands for a 30-hour week, with the higher consumer prices that would result, would bring to Congress a howl of protest from agriculture and the white collared worker.

"Higher prices cut consumption," he said. "If you get a price low enough you can sell anything."

Questioned on best relief methods, Johnson said:

"The real thing is direct relief. It costs too much to get subsistence in the hands of those people who are starving."

$1,000,000 PWA BRIDGE LOAN AND GRANT AGREED ON

City Tentatively Promised $758,700 Advance and $242,000 Outright to Complete Approaches.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — The Public Works Administration has tentatively agreed to a grant of $242,000 and a loan of $758,700 to the City of St. Louis for the completion of approaches to Municipal Bridge.

Details of the working agreement among the city, the Terminal Railroad and the PWA were worked out at a conference here today attended by Associate City Counselor Wayman of St. Louis, Thomas M. Pierce, counsel for the Terminal Railroad, and Lloyd Landau, legal adviser of PWA.

"It is expected that the final agreement will be drawn up next week," Landau said at the conclusion of the conference, "although, of course, we cannot give absolute assurance that the project will go through until it is in final form."

As now decided on, the plan calls merely for an agreement between the city and the PWA to turn over a certain proportion of the revenue to be realized from the railroad as a result of the construction of the approaches. No bond issue is involved, Landau said.

"We have been working on this intensively for some time," Wayman said. "We have pushed it as hard as possible and have had fine co-operation from the Public Works Administration here." City Counselor Charles M. Hay and Wayman have made several trips to Washington in connection with the project.

Negotiations have been on for nearly a year and a half to obtain Government funds for the bridge approaches. The proposal was first put up to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Chairman Jesse Jones had approved a loan to St. Louis for the whole amount when Congress passed the Public Works bill, which made a grant, with a consequent saving to the city of 30 per cent, possible.

Considerable delay was encountered in putting the project through the State organization of the PWA in Missouri. It was finally transferred to the PWA office in Washington and its progress, according to Wayman and Pierce, greatly expedited.

Hydrophobia From Cat's Scratches.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 16.—Despite immediate treatment for bites and scratches from a stray cat, Fred Pulley, a farmer living near here, is near death today from hydrophobia. Pulley was petting the cat when it bit his lip and scratched his head. The cat had to be killed to get it off him. He has required constant attention of four men since Sunday to prevent violence. His wife collapsed today.

FIRST TRAIN IS OPERATED IN MOSCOW'S NEW SUBWAY

Run Over Two-Mile Stretch of Track While 70,000 Workers Continue on Job.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 16.—The first train to run in the new Moscow subway made a successful trial trip yesterday over a two-mile stretch in the northeast section of the city.

Seventy thousand workers, half of them women, continued their work of excavating and pouring cement in a drive to finish the eight-mile underground line by next January.

The first train had two Russian-built cars similar to those of the New York subways, with two double doors on each side. It traveled from Sokolniki Station to Comsomol Square, passing through stations still in a state of rough cement, although they are to be trimmed with marble and decorated with frescoes when finished.

The line was first projected in 1931 and excavation was begun two years later. It was planned to take some of the burden off overcrowded street cars and busses, which are inadequate to take care of the nearly 4,000,000 inhabitants now concentrated here as a result of the intense industrialization of the capital.

SAYS HAUPTMANN LEFT NOTE ON CRIB OF KIDNAPED BABY

Jersey Prosecutor Makes Charge After Expert Identifies Writing in Ransom Demands.

READ SMISSIVES AT EXTRADITION HEARING

Declares One Is "Admission" by Accused Man That He Took Sleeping Suit from Baby.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Albert D. Osborn, handwriting expert, testified in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's habeas corpus action today that with "reasonable certainty" specimens of Hauptmann's handwriting were identical with that of the ransom notes in the Lindbergh kidnaping. Hauptmann is fighting extradition to New Jersey, where he is charged with the murder of the baby, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Attorney-General Wilentz of New Jersey read extracts from the notes to indicate that the writer—alleged to have been Hauptmann as Wilentz pointed out—was in New Jersey soon after the kidnaping.

Expert Identified Writing.

Wilentz gave Osborn the notes, protected by transparent sheets, and motor vehicle applications of Hauptmann.

"Can you state, in your opinion, if the same hand which wrote the application signatures also wrote the ransom notes?" Wilentz asked the witness.

"I can say, with reasonable certainty, that the same hand wrote them," Osborn testified.

Wilentz referred to the original ransom note found on the baby's crib the night of the kidnaping, and one which contained this question: "Why did you ignore our letter which we left in your room."

Notes Dramatically Read.

Wilentz dramatically read from the kidnaping notes. From exhibit "K," one of the ransom notes, he quoted: "Now we will send you the sleeping suit from the baby."

From a third exhibit, he quoted: 'Did you send the little package to Mr. Lindbergh? It contains the sleeping suit from the baby."

The last note, Wilentz contended, was an "admission" from Hauptmann that he had taken the sleeping suit from the Lindbergh baby.

In testifying that Hauptmann allegedly had written the ransom notes, Osborn said he had made a comparison of the handwriting in these exhibits "B" and "E", which were admitted specimens of Hauptmann's handwriting. The first note contained the original demand for ransom.

Charges Hauptmann Left Note.

In referring to the note marked "H," with the quotations "Why did you ignore our letter which we left in the room?" Wilentz remarked: "The writer of this note—this defendant, as we allege—left the note behind."

"These notes, written by Hauptmann, as we have proved," Wilentz said, "are an admission and confession on the part of Hauptmann that he was in the baby's room the night of the kidnaping."

Under cross-examination by Attorney Fawcett, Osborn said that the writing of more than 100 writers "suspected" of writing the Lindbergh ransom notes were submitted to him and his son during the last two years.

"We made oral reports on these writings," Osborn said, "and we dismissed all of them."

Osborn was shown the first ransom note found in the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping. He told Fawcett that he had made a report on this note to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State police, a few weeks after the kidnaping.

Osborn's Analysis of Notes.

He said the writing was that of a person who learned to write first in German. It was written, Osborn continued, by a writer who was "somewhat illiterate." The writer was one "who wrote what is known as the Latin script in an imperfect way," Osborn continued.

"I called attention to various expressions which would serve to identify the writer," Osborn said. "At that time there were no suspected writers, although later, of course, there were many of them."

Fawcett asked whether the note indicated to Osborn the occupation of the writer.

"I gave no opinion as to the occupation," Osborn replied. He acknowledged there were certain disguises in the note. There were, he said, inconsistencies in the note "which is th evidence of disguise."

Osborn said that the writing, summed up, was highly individual.

GIRLS IN WEIRTON CO. PARTY GUESTS ON EVE OF POLL

Entertained at Country Club and Told to "Vote Right if We Wanted Our Bread and Butter."

TESTIMONY OF TWO WHO LOST THEIR JOBS

Affidavit Quotes Song: 'Ice Cream, Soda, Ginger and Pop; Company Union Goes Over the Top.'

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 16.—A party at which women employes of the Weirton Steel Co. were told "if we wanted our bread and butter every day to vote the right way" in the plant election was described yesterday in testimony at the trial of the Government's injunction suit.

The Government is asking for a court order to restrain the company from interference in an employes' election to select collective bargaining representatives.

Miss Katherine Zinaich and Miss Pearl Holland, former employes of the company, testified they were transferred from the sorting room of the tin mill to the black plate department "where we almost froze to death." The shift was made, they said, because "they thought we had too much influence over the other girls."

Both are members of the Amalgamated Associated of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers .

Party Day Before Election.

Miss Zinaich testified that the forewoman invited all the girls in the sorting room to attend a party at the J. C. Williams Country Club, near Weirton, last Dec. 10. The primary election of representatives for collective bargaining was held on the following day.

She said there was entertainment, cigarettes and beer at the party and "they even had some hard liquor there." She ascribed the "bread and butter" statement to Harry Richards, a mill superintendent.

Both women witnesses charged discrimination because of their union activities, to which they attributed their present lack of employment. Miss Zinaich's name is attached to an affidavit in the case which says that two of the girls at the country club party "passed out," and that during the evening a ditty was sung:

"Ice cream, soda, ginger and pop,
The company union goes over the top."

Another Pre-Election Party.

Louis Varvakas testified another pre-election party was given in Weirton for Greek employes of the company, that two officials attended and that there were free beer and sandwiches.

Eli Della, another former Weirton employe, told of being arrested and assaulted by mill policemen as he distributed handbills advertising an amalgamated lodge picnic last June.

The father of Miss Holland, Robert Holland, testified that he was threatened with the loss of his job if he did not vote for the "company union." He said he was given a "temporary lay-off" about two months ago.

Opening the third week of the hearing, the Government summoned 17 witnesses.

DAILY AUTO RIDE ONLY ACTIVITY OF ROCKEFELLER

He Makes Brief Trips About Florida Home Regardless of Chilly Weather.

By the Associated Press.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Oct. 16.—John D. Rockefeller Sr., who made his trip to Florida much earlier this year than usual, has confined his outdoor activities to daily brief automobile drives. The 95-year-old philanthropist draws more tightly the circle of seclusion about the Casements, his winter home.

His drives continued the last few days despite an early breath of fall that sent temperatures somewhat lower. The thermometer dropped to 65 last night.

TRUCK DRIVERS GET INCREASES

Two Pay Rises Granted in Minneapolis.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 16.—Virtually all the 166 companies whose employes were involved in truck drivers' strikes here in May and July had agreed informally today to follow the lead of 22 produce and fruit companies which Saturday decided to grant employes two 2½ cent an hour increases.

The new wage scale, retroactive to Sept. 15, will be 42½ cents an hour for helpers and 52½ cents an hour for drivers. An additional two and a half cents an hour increase will be added June 1, 1935. Estimates of the total number of workers affected were not available.

Dancer Held for Killing Admirer

ELAINE MOREL,

KNOWN also as Jeanne St. Pierre, and Dolores Lopez. Montreal police say she has confessed she stabbed to death William Owen, bond salesman, in her apartment the night of Oct. 5. She says she did it in self defense when he beat her.

THREE SOVIET ENGINEERS GET DEATH FOR SABOTAGE

One Accused of Giving Information to Foreign Powers; Another to Have Headed Disturbers.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 16.—Three engineers were sentenced to death yesterday for counter-revolutionary activity and sabotage at the Kuznetz Metallurgical Combine in Siberia. Three others receive prison terms.

One who received the death penalty was an engineer named Sarov, accused of giving information to an unnamed foreign Power. Another was his companion, Davidov, who collected facts about numerous Soviet factories.

The third was Engineer Latkin of the open-hearth department of the combine, who is said to have headed the group of disturbers and to have distributed literature of a Fascist character.

FIRED FROM NRA, ACCUSED OF CONTINUING TO CASH CHECKS

Ousted Employe Was Not Taken Off Payroll After His Discharge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A former employe of NRA was arrested here yesterday on charges that he had received and cashed Government pay checks after being discharged last June.

Police said Albyn F. McCulloh, 29 years old, a native of Omaha, Neb., who came to Washington from Winetta, Mont., was notified his services with NRA would be terminated June 15. But, they said, his name was not stricken from the payroll and he had been reporting twice a month to collect the pay checks.

MISSOURI CONVICT HANGS SELF

Kansas City Prisoner Uses Belt to End His Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16. — Andrew Hurlburt, Kansas City convict, serving his fourth prison term, hanged himself with his belt in his cell in the Missouri penitentiary here last night. Guards in I cell building found him early this morning. Hurlburt was the only occupant of the cell.

Hurlburt, 52 years old, was received at the prison Nov. 21, 1933, to serve five years for assault with intent to kill. Prison officials said he previously had served terms in a reformatory in California, the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, and the Colorado prison at Canon City.

GANGSTER TO DIE TOMORROW

Dillinger Aid Facving Execution in Ohio Fails in Appeal.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Harry Pierpont's last hope of escaping the electric chair was removed today when Gov. White refused him executive clemency.

The Dillinger gangster had appealed for commutation of the death sentence imposed upon him for the killing of Sheriff Jess Sarber, at Lima, O., when John Dillinger, then held as a bank robbery suspect, was freed a year ago. The Governor said "I see no justifiable reason to extend executive clemency." Pierpont will be executed tomorrow.

Cooling System for White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Public Works Administration today allotted $150,000 to keep the White House living quarters cool in the summer. Air conditioning equipment is to be installed in the mansion proper. The executive offices, now being enlarged, also are being air-conditioned.

$12,811 ROBBERY IN CITY HALL AT BROCKTON, MASS.

Just Across Street From Police Station, Three Men Hold Up Treasurer's Office and Escape.

By the Associated Press.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 16. — Three armed men raided the Brockton City Treasurer's office this morning, overpowered a policeman, from whom they seized a riot gun, and escaped with $12,811.

The City Hall, in which is the City Treasurer's office, is directly opposite Police Headquarters.

The robbers entered the Treasurer's office shortly after 9:30 o'clock and seized the money from the office inclosure behind the iron grill work. They escaped in a blue sedan, which, police said, sped in the direction of Boston.

MARJORIE CRAWFORD GETS DIVORCE FROM DOWLING

Says He Stuck Pistol at Her Head and Forced Her to Write Check.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 16.—R. C. (Danny) Dowling, movie dance director, was divorced yesterday by Marjorie Crawford, flying actress, who married him some months ago and thereby caused the dropping of kidnaping charges she had brought against him.

She testified yesterday he rushed home one afternoon and ordered her to turn over all her money, stocks and bonds to him because he wanted to enter business.

"I asked him what the business was and when he refused to tell me," she said, "I told him I couldn't give him everything I had without knowing where the money was going. We talked it over and finally he got mad and pulled out his automatic, stuck it at my head, and made me write a check for $75."

POINCARE FUNERAL SATURDAY; NUNS WATCH OVER BODY

Inscription on Coffin Bears Only Name and Dates of Birth and Death.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The body of former President Raymond Poincare lay in his study today, watched over by nuns, while President Albert Lebrun was speeding to Belgrade for the funeral of King Alexander.

The body of the World War President, who died yesterday, was placed in a coffin last night in the presence of his nephews and nieces and a few friends. The coffin, as Poincare desired, was of plain oak with silver handles and was lined with blue satin. Its plate bears the inscription: "Raymond Poincare, twentieth of August, 1860—fifteenth of October, 1934."

The funeral will be held Saturday. Burial will be in the little family cemetery at Nubecourt near Bar-le-Duc.

FIVE OFFICERS OF THE MORRO CASTLE FOUND NEGLIGENT

PRELIMINARY REPORT BY INQUIRY BOARD

Charges Include Delay in Sending Out Distress Signal and Unduly Jeopardizing Lives of Passengers and Crew.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The board of inquiry of the United States Steam Boat Service in a report made public today charged Capt. William F. Warms and four staff officers of the Morro Castle with negligence in connection with the burning of the Ward liner and the attendant loss of 132 lives.

The preliminary report, signed by Capt. Karl C. Neilsen and James Smith, inspectors of the New York District, gives no cause or fixes no responsibility for the fire. It was explained that the board's duty ended with determining whether the officers were negligent in the performance of their duty.

Officers charged with negligence in addition to Warms are Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott, Second Officer Clarence Hackney, Third Officear Harold Hansen and First Assistant Engineer Antonio R. Buija.

The officers charged with negligence are ordered to appear at a hearing Oct. 29 to show cause why their licenses should not be suspended or revoked.

One Deck Officer Exonerated.

Acting Chief Officer Ivan Freeman was the only deck officer who was not found negligent in the report. Freeman, according to the testimony, the report says, fought the fire and later went forward and let go the anchor.

Five specifications are charged against Capt. Warms accusing him of delay "in sending out wireless distress signals" and "unduly jeopardizing the lives of passengers and crew," and of failure to stop the vessel after he was "aware that the superstructure was on fire and the vessel was steaming into a fresh breeze."

In addition, he was charged with failure to have fire hose ready for use, to have the fire doors closed and with having an insufficient number of men on watch at the time of the fire.

Charges Against the Others.

Abbott is charged in the report with failure to go below to the engine room and fire room "to direct the engine room crew in the performance of their duty."

Hackney, the report charges, failed to supervise the proper lowering of lifeboats, and Hansen is charged with failure to carry out the ship master's order to stand by and assist passengers into lifeboats.

Buija, as firt assistant engineer, is accused of failing to stay below in the engineroom and direct the crew.

The report charges that when the alarm was sounded the crew did not take their stations nor did the officers do anything to organize them. It charges that the Morro Castle continued at full speed for some distance after the fire had been reported.

"t was not until the fire was out of control," the report says, "that the course was changed and the vessel slowed down.

"Had the vessel been stopped immediately afte rthe fire was discovered in the superstructure — which would have tended to prevent the rapid spread of the fi re— and the call for assistance not delayed, it is apparent that rescue vessels wouud have been in the vicinity of the stricken liner much earlier and no doubt would have been instrumental in saviing a greater number of lives."

GOLF CLUB ROBBED OF $125

Intruder Enters Building and Opens Office Safe.

The Normandy Golf Club, 7600 St. Charles road, was entered by burglars, who took $125 from an office safe, between 8 and 9:30 o'clock last night.

The intruders entered the building in the absence of William Wilcox, manager, who said that he turned out the lights on his departure and found them all lighted when he returned. The combination of the safe had been worked.

TESTIMONY THAT INSULL COMPANY USED THE MAILS

Government Calls Three Witnesses to Establish How Annual Reports Were Sent to Investors.

TWO OF 25 COUNTS ARE BASED ON THIS

Report That Utility Man in "Depression Defense" Will Cite Hoover's Statements in 1930.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Three witnesses described to the Insull mail fraud jury today how two letters got into the mail.

This relatively simple matter was scrutinized with such care because the mailing of the letters, the annual reports of Samuel Insull's Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago, a $100,000,000 bubble, constituted two of the 25 crimes charged against Insull and 16 co-defendants.

Washington Flexner, proprietor of the Lincoln Printing Co., testified that his company printed the reports, running off 35,000 copies each of the corporation's 1930 and 1931 reports.

Charles A. Mackey, Flexner's superintendent, traced the letters to Charles G. Black, proprietor of a mailing concern, who testified that they were trucked to the postoffice. They were sent out in envelopes supplied and addressed, he asid, by the corporation.

"Depression" Defense.

Rumors that Samuel Insull Sr. would use part of his defense the confident statements about business conditions which the Hover administration made in 1930, grew during the slow session to a report that the farmer President himself would be subpeaned.

Because of friends of Insull long have asserted that Insull spent large sums for re-employment, after the White House conference on that subject toward the end of the Hoover administration, it has been expected that the Washington statements would be used as background for a claim that Insull failed to realize how bad business conditions were late in 1929.

This "victim of the depression" defense never has been announced by Insull's attorney. Insull's own statement, when he was returned from Europe to stand trial in Chicago, was that he was not greatly swayed, at the start of the depression, by optimistic opinions from Washington.

DEATH OF BOETTCHER WITNESS FOUND TO BE ACCIDENTAL

Inquest Verdict Returned in Fatal Shooting of Man in Colorado.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Oct. 16.—Roy T. Gibbs, killed near Estes Park last week a few days before he was to have been a witness in the Boettcher kidnaping case, met his death accidentally, a Coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Gibbs, a Denver bookbinder, related by marriage to Verne Sankey, leader of the gang that abducted Charles Boettcher II of Denver in 1933, "met his death by the discharge of his own gun," the verdict said.

He was killed when the automobile he was driving overturned. In the accident a pistol he carried in a holster was discharged and the bullet struck him in the head.

The inquest was held because Gibbs' life was reported to have been threatened in connection with information he gave Federal agents in the Boettcher case. He got $8137 reward after Sankey was captured. Sankey committeed suicide and his widow is scheduled to be tried this week at Sioux Falls, S. D., on a charge of conspiracy to kidnap.

NEWSPAPER PAYS $500 FINE

Two San Francisco Editors Also Pay $250 Court Penalties.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—The San Francisco Chronicle and two of its editors yesterday paid the $1000 in fines imposed by the State Supreme Court for contempt, following publication of a story Sept. 10 saying the Court had voted to grant a new trial to David A. Lamson, convicted of killing his wife.

Chester Rowell, editor, and W. D. Chandler, managing editor, each were fined $250, and the Chronicle Publishing Co. $500. The Court in assessing the fines, declared the story false, and said its publication tended to put the court in disrepute. A new trial was granted Lamson by the Court Saturday.

Hauptmann on Stand at Bronx Hearing

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN.

This individuality was expressed, he said, by forms and styles of letters, by arrangements, by abbreviations, proportion and connections and also by certain repetition of errors. His final opinion, Osborn said, was based on these qualities and characteristics.

Questioned by Fawcett.

Fawcett, over objections of Wilentz, asked the witness to pick out similarities between the penmanship in the ransom notes, and six motor vehicle applications.

Osborn studied the exhibits intently, and admitted to Fawcett that he had made no memoranda on his findinXs on his first examining of the notes.

"Tell the court," urged Fawcett, "on what your opinion is founded."

Osborn, referring to a motor vehicle operator's renewal application, said:

"You ask about errors which would identify the writer. Well, here is the improper relation of the letters 'H' and 'T.'"

"This inversion of the letters is an error, characteristic of this writer."

"Often, he spells the word 'the' as 'hte.'"

"Any other peculiarities?" Fawcett asked.

"Now in this exhibit," said Osborn, "he has spelled the word 'anything' as "anyding,'—a Germanic characteristic."

Wilentz resumed questioning his expert and on the proper cue repeated his assertion that "in my opinion, the same hand wrote the ransom notes and the applications."

Hauptmann Denies Killing Baby; Presents Alibi.

Hauptmann shouted his denial yesterday that he kiled the baby. He offered an alibi — that he escorted his wife home from her job in the Bronx on the night of the kidnaping — and explained that the ransom money found in his garage had been given to him by a friend for safekeeping.

Wilentz laid the groundwork for fingerprint testimony. He introduced State Trooper Frank Kelly, fingerprint expert, and then excused him after the policeman had told of carefully opening the ransom note left in the baby's nursery. He called James Taylor, attache in the office of Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's lawyer, who told of receiving another note from the kidnaper through the mail, and asked him if many persons had handled it

Police Denied Finding Prints.

Whether New Jersey has any fingerprint evidence is another matter. Having it, Wilentz still might not offer it. State police have denied finding fingerprints at the Lindbergh home, and the prosecution is revealing no more of its murder case than it feels is necessary to obtain Hauptmann.

The war-time German machine gunner probably will not know before the end of the week whether he must stand trial for the murder. His attorney is prepared to appeal if Justice Hammer hands down an adverse opinion. The appeal presumably would not be considered by the Appellate Division before Friday. New Jersey, however, does not wish to try the prisoner before the general election next month.

Hauptmann yesterday freely admitted he had lied to police and volunteered the information that he had told them where to find more than $13,000 of the ransom money. They had announced its recovery as the result of a search.

Hauptmann's Closing Testimony.

Closing the examination of Hauptmann, his attorney asked him:

"Were you in the State of New Jersey on March 1, 1932?"

"No," replied the prisoner.

"Did you murder the child, Charles Augustus Lindbergh"—

"No," interrupted Hauptmann.

"—On March 1, 1932, or any other time?" Fawcett continued. "I never murdered," said Hauptmann firmly.

"That is all," the lawyer concluded.

Wilentz jumped to his feet.

"Didn't you build a ladder and put it up against the Lindbergh house," shouted Wilentz, "and didn't you go up that ladder into the house and murder the child?"

Hauptmann's deep-set eyes flashed. "No," he shouted, half rising from his chair. Then he became again the stolid, monosyllabic carpenter. It was his only outburst in five court appearances.

Alibi of Hauptmann.

During the day, Hauptmann testified that he spent the night before the kidnaping with his wife in their Bronx home; he drove her to her work at a bakery that morning; he looked for work in Manhattan during the day, met his wife at the bakery, had a late dinner there and drove her home, where both spent the night.

Hauptmann explained a criminal record in Germany by saying he stole only "to secure sustenance." He readily admitted to Wilentz he lied the day of his arrest, three weeks ago, when he told his captors the $20 gold ransom certificate found on him was part of his savings.

Hauptmann, after a moment's reflection, added:

"I later told Mr. Lyons (Inspector John J. Lyons) where I had put $14,000 more."

This surprise statement concerning the gold certificates found on Hauptmann and at his home—certificates found to be part of the Lindbergh ransom loot—was volunteered by the prisoner. In his questioning, Wilentz did not touch on the source of the certificates.

Hauptmann, on re-examination, repeated his declaration the bills were left at his home in a shoe box by Isidore Fisch, the furrier-friend who died in Germany. He said he knew he could be arrested for hoarding gold certificates, but that he hid them any way, fearing his alien status would become known and he would be deported.

"Did Fisch tell you it was Lindbergh ransom money?" Fawcett asked, "and did you discuss the Lindbergh case with him?"

"No."

"Previously, his wife, Anna, laid the foundation for the alibi. She testified she worked late every Tuesday night at Christian Fredericksen's bakery in the Bronx. She worked late those nights, she said, because Mrs. Fredericksen was off duty. Inasmuch as the kidnaping was on a Tuesday night, she was sure her husband called for her that night.

Her certainty wavered a bit, however, under the questioning of Wilentz, who obtained an admission that Hauptman was absent from home either working or on hunting and fishing trips on frequent occasions.

"Then there were some Tuesdays that he did not call for you in the evenings?" Wilentz asked.

"I couldn't remember that," she replied.

ADMITS FRISCO'S TEXAS LINE DEAL WAS A 'MISTAKE'

E. N. Brown Former Chairman, Says, However, Purchase Has Excellent Future Outlook.

Interrogation of Edward N. Brown of New York, chairman of the board of the Frisco Railroad, about certain financial transactions of the railroad prior to its present bankruptcy, was resumed today before Federal Court Master John T. Harding in the Frisco Building.

Frank A. Thompson, attorney for John G. Lonsdale, co-trustee of the railroad with J. M. Kurn, and representatives of creditors are seeking information about the railroad's purchase of the Gulf, Texas & Western Railroad and the Muscle Shoals, Pensacola & Birmingham; its acquisition of stock in the Rock Island and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern; its declaration of dividends in the years preceding receivership; setting up of a $400,000 fund to further a reorganization which was abandoned; financing in 1928.

Brown, under questioning by Thompson, testified that, "looking back," he considered purchase of the Gulf, Texas & Western for $1,800,000 in 1930 a mistake, but that the property had excellent future prospects.

First Price $2,300,000.

Frisco directors authorized the purchase from a receiver for $2,300,000 in 1928, he related, but the purchase was delayed because of objections by other railroads also seeking the property. The $1,800,000 price was fixed by authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, he said.

At the time of the purchase, he conceded, the current liabilities of the Frisco exceeded its current assets, adding, however, that there was a "so-called" profit and loss surplus of $16,000,000 and that the financial statement did not take into consideration $10,000,000 of bonds in the treasury.

In acquiring the Texas railroad, he said, the Frisco planned to shorten its haul into Fort Worth by extending the line to connections. Further questions elicited testimony that the Frisco spent $34,000 on the railroad but did not make the extensions, "because the depression came along and the outlook was not encouraging for outlay of money."

"Duty as Salaried Officer."

Brown said he personally bought a 38 per cent interest in the Muscle Shoals, Pensacola & Birmingham at a receiver's sale in 1925 and turned over his interest to the Frisco later without profit, "because I considered that my duty as a salaried officer." A Florida syndicate sold its 62 per cent interest to the Frisco at a profit of 20 per cent, about $30,000, he said. The sale to Brown and the syndicate was for $229,000.

About $51,000 "came back" to the Florida railroad, however, through a profit in the bond account, the witness said. The Frisco spent $3,800,000 in rehabilitating the property, he testified, and about $7,000,000 in building extensions in 1927 and 1928.

Under further questioning Brown said he owned no property along the lines of either the Texas or the Florida railroad. His wife's sister owned several lots in Pensacola, Fla., he said, and his son, superintendent for the Frisco at Enid, Ok., owned five lots in the same place, purchased after the extension was begun.

Asked if he considered purchase of the Florida railroad a wise venture for the Frisco, Brown replied, "That depends—we thought it was earning its interest the first few years but separate accounts were not kept. It may earn more when business in forest product increases. The Frisco bought to obtain an outlet to the Gulf of Mexico.".

Brown said he had been chairman of the board and of the executive committee since 1919. His salary of $30,000 a year was eliminated through economies effected soon after the consent receivership of Nov. 1, 1932.

German Trade Near Balance.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Germany almost managed to balance its imports and exports in September, it is indicated by a Government report. Imports for the month were valued at 352,000,000 marks (about $140,800,000), while exports were valued at 350,000,000 marks (about $140,000,000).

WOULD QUESTION 500 IN CHECK ON 5TH WARD VOTES

Defeated Candidate Wants to Ask Voters Whether Ballots Marked for Winners Are Theirs.

A wholesale questioning of Fifth Ward voters, as to how they voted on Republican candidates for Justice of the Peace in the primary Aug. 7, is planned by Maurice J. Gordon, defeated candidate whose contest brought about a recount of the vote in the Fifth Court District.

Gordon today said he would issue subpenas for more than 500 Fifth Ward voters, whose ballots, as shown in the recount, were marked for the winners, G. M. Allen and Harry C. Meyers, there being two justices for the court district. Gordon wishes to ask these voters whether they marked their votes for him, or whether, if illiterate, they asked the judges and clerks to prepare their ballots in such manner that they would be votes for him.

It was anticipated that the defense in the contest might seek to prevent this questioning of the voters, and that the legal question involved might be taken before Circuit Judge Ryan, under whose order the recount has been made.

The recount of the 24 precincts composing the court district is nearly completed. The figures will not be made known until they are reported to Judge Ryan, but those interested in Gordon's case say that his vote has shown large gains, in comparison with the count made by the precinct election officials. Even larger gains, Gordon's friends say, have been made by Walter Lowe, Negro candidate, who is not a party to the contest. Lowe's vote is said to have been increased by as much as 100 by the recount in some of the precincts.

While a change affecting 850 votes, and making a net difference of 1700, is claimed by Gordon as a result of the recount thus far, the final change may not be great enough to overturn the majority given in the count to Allen and Meyers. The vote shown for Allen was 3875 and for Meyers 3800, while Elmer Moore had 693, Lowe 609, Gordon 474, and Michael Creane 164.

The recount, however, will furnish valuable material for the grand jury, which is expected to investigate the actions of the 66 judges and clerks of 11 Nineteenth Ward precincts, suspended last week by the Election Board, and to carry the inquiry into the Fifth Ward if developments should justify it.

Jeff Covington, Negro, who is contesting the nomination for Constable, has also a large lead to overcome. The count showed 4105 votes for Gabe Roth and 3051 for Ira Dorsey, Negro, they being nominated for the two places as Constable; 907 for Samuel J. Lane, Negro, and 655 for Covington. Lane, who at first joined in the contest, withdrew, saying he lacked funds to carry it on, and Justice Meyers thereupon announced his own resignation as Nineteenth Ward member of the Republican City Committee, with the recommendation of the precinct organization that Lane be named to succeed him.

This leaves a problem for the City Committee, which is not obligated to follow the wishes of the precinct organization, but has done so in past instances. Chairman Pape said he could not predict what would be done as to naming Lane as Meyers' successor on the committee.

COL. TURNER AND PANGBORN REPORT FOR BIG PLANE RACE

American Flyers Land in Strong Wind at Mildenhall Airdrome in England.

By the Associated Press.

MILDENHALL AIRDROME, England, Oct. 16.—Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, in their large twin-engined airplane, made a fine landing here today despite a wind with practically gale force and intermittent storms which swept across the airdrome. They were reporting their readiness to start Saturday in the 12,000-mile England-to-Australia air race. The Americans had flown from Martlesham where their machine was weighed and checked.

As they left the ship, Turner laughed and shouted at Pangborn: "Let's go somewhere and get warm." Both the men were shivering in the unseasonable weather.

Their machine was the fifteenth to report at Mildenhall, and was to be followed today by seven more, making a total of 22 in readiness.

Michigan Man Divorces Wife No. 1, Falsely Reported to Be Dead.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 16. — Louis Crenno of Muskegon Heights, who last week got a divorce from the dife he had believed to be dead, today obtained a license to marry Ella N. Start, his second wife.

They were married several years ago after a body taken from Lake Michigan at Chicago had been identified as that of the first Mrs. Crenno by Mrs. Frey Savoy of Bessemer, Mich., her mother. They separated when the first Mrs. Crenno wrote her mother from Eggertsville, N. Y., to say she was alive. Crenno and the woman he will remarry have two children.

KILLED IN AUTO-TRUCK CRASH

C. E. Usery, St. Louis, Victim of Collision Near Odessa, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

ODESSA, Mo., Oct. 15.—C. E. Usery, 40 years old, St. Louis, was killed near here last night when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a truck on Highway No. 40. His niece, Mrs. Thelma Niemeyer, 29, was injured.

Dode Gregory, driver of the car, was uninjured. He and Mrs. Niemeyer, who was taken to a Kansas City hospital, live in East St. Louis.

Child's Death Not Due to Poison.

The death of Harold Kiefer, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kiefer, 4034A Laclede avenue, was caused by acute leukemia, a blood disease, and not by poison as originally reported, an autopsy performed yesterday showed. The child died Sunday night at St. Mary's Hospital after becoming suddenly ill that morning.

HELMET SLIPS OFF, DIVER IS DROWNED

Kansas City Man Loses Life in Mississippi While on Salvage Job.

Ira Hughes, 53-year-old professional diver of Kansas City, was drowned yesterday in the Mississippi on the Missouri side opposite Wood River, Ill., when the helmet on his diving suit slipped off while the was attempting to salvage a cargo of nails and wire from a sunken barge. It is not known how the helmet was loosened.

Hughes, who was employed by the Woods Bros. Construction Co. of Kansas City, came here Saturday for the salvage work. He had made four trips into the water and on the last had recovered three spools of wire.

Arvel Hankins of Hartford, Ill., and Alvin Gerl of Wood River, who were handling the life rope and air line, said he entered the water the fifth time and soon signaled to be brought to the surface. Half way up, they said, he apparently became entangled in some brush and signaled to stop pulling.

Another diver, sent down to investigate, found the body, with the diving helmet detached. Firemen worked on the body with an inhalator.

NO EXECUTED CONVICTS FOR BACK-TO-LIFE TESTS

Three States Deny Request of Californian Who Has Been Experimenting With Dogs.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 16. — Dr. Robert E. Cornish, who yesterday suggested that he try his back-to-life experiments—thus far limited to dogs—on executed convicts, heard today that three states, Nevada, Arizona and Colorado, where executions are by lethal gas, would not permit such tests.

Dr. Cornish disclosed that he had appealed to the Governors of the three states, requesting that he be permitted to attempt resuscitation of an executed man.

"There will be nothing doing like that in my prison," was the reply of Gov. B. B. Moeur of Arizona. Warden Roy West of the Colorado prison at Canon City said the proposed experiment would be impossible under the State's laws. Authorities of Nevada have refused a number of similar requests.

SCHOOL CEILING FALLS, 12 CHILDREN INJURED

20 Others Run to Safety in Building in Philadelphia Suburb.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16. — A classroom ceiling fell in a public school building in suburban Narberth yesterday, burying 12 children beneath it. All were hurt, one seriously.

The members of the second-grade class ran for the doors as a chandelier began to sway violently. The teacher, Miss Frances Bishop, shouted a warning that was drowned out by the crackling of rafters.

Twenty children reached the hallway before the plaster ceiling, bound together by a steel wire netting, crashed.

Many of the 12 trapped pupils were unable to free thmeselves and had to be dragged to safety by the teacher.

All the injured were sent home after medical treatment except Emily Fennimore, 6 years old, who was taken to a hospital.

SAYS JUROR WAS PREJUDICED IN "AMERICAN TRAGEDY" CASE

Defense Offers Testimony That Man Remarked He "Could Push Electric Chair Button."

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 16.— Opening its fight to save Robert Allen Edwards from the electric chair in the killing of his neighborhood friend, Freda McKechnie, the defense introduced testimony yesterday in an effort to show that one of the jurors was prejudiced against Edwards before the trial.

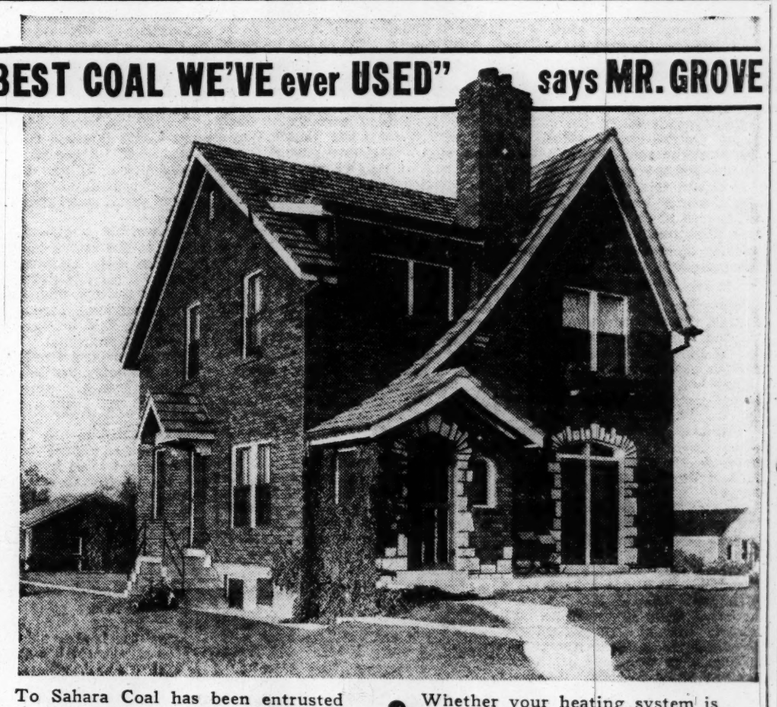

"I could go down and push the button on the death chair," William Jenkins, an insurance salesman, testified that John Lufts, one of the jurors who convicted Edwards, told him in Atlantic City last August.

Jenkins was called by the defense at a hearing on the motion to set aside the verdict sentencing Edwards to death and grant a new trial in the "American tragedy" case.

Lufts denied he had prejudged the case or expressed a determination to execute the convicted murderer.

Judge W. A. Valentine announced that the testimony will be considered by the court en banc at argument sessions during the week of Oct. 29 when other reasons for a new trial will be presented.

"BEST COAL WE'VE ever USED" says MR. GROVE

To Sahara Coal has been entrusted the heating of this fine English-type, St. Louis Hills residence at 6360 Murdoch Ave. Says Mr. C. C. Grove: "Sahara is the best coal we've ever used. It burns to a fine white ash, and we are rarely bothered with clinkers. It works in a thoroughly satisfactory manner in our hot water heating system, and as an example of its economy, we have enough left from last Winter to do us until November. You might say, too, that we are as well pleased with Merchants service as we are with Sahara coal."

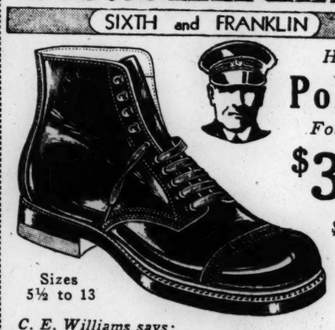

● Whether your heating system is hot water, warm air, steam or vapor, you will find that Sahara Coal gives you real heating satisfaction at a very appreciable saving. Sahara's great heating power (greater than any other Illinois Coal on the market, according to government analysis) causes your heating system to perform at its very best, making hard-to-heat rooms and chilly spots a thing of the past. Fill your bin now with Guaranteed Sahara, the King of Illinois Coals, and enjoy real heating comfort this Winter.

SHERIFF DEUSER SAYS HE DOESN'T NEED STATE HELP

Replies to Associate Prosecutor Who Threatened to Ask for Aid in Law Enforcement.

TELLS OF INQUIRY IN ATTACK ON ANDERSON

Cites Arrest of Man With Bomb and Says He Will Continue Efficient Support.

Sheriff P. G. Deuser of St. Louis County, replying by letter today to a threat by Associate Prosecuting Attorney John J. Wolfe to appeal to Gov. Park for preservation of the county's peace if the Sheriff did not make an immediate "forthright" effort to catch criminals, declared he saw no reason to call on the Governor for aid.

He insisted his office had given the prosecutor "most efficient and loyal support" and would continue to do so. The Sheriff, Constables and suburban police were entirely capable and willing to perform needed police duty, he asserted. There was no situation requiring declaration of martial law or "an order to State military officers to overrun our county in an effort to apprehend criminals," he added.

Attack on Anderson.

Wolfe, in a letter sent to Deuser Saturday, cited the bombing of three new homes in the county last month and the assault early last Tuesday on his superior, Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson. A group of men in a fast automobile followed Anderson from Clayton, forcing his car off the pavement and against a telephone pole on Lindbergh boulevard, south of Kirkwood. He suffered concussion of the brain, a broken leg and bruises.

Deuser wrote to Wolfe that the Sheriff's office had acted immediately on the "meager information" available from Anderson, who was able to give only "the most general description" of his assailants and their car.

The Sheriff's Letter.

The letter sent to Wolfe by Sheriff Deuser follows:

"I am just in receipt of your letter which appeared in the public press several days ago, in which you call attention to recent bombings that have taken place in the county and also to the recent assault on Hon. C. Arthur Anderson, our Prosecuting Attorney, and complain that no arrests have been made. Since writing this letter, you no doubt have learned that the Sheriff's office has taken into custody a person who was in possession of a dynamite bomb and to whom all the evidence available points as being connected with the bombing outrages that have occurred in the county in the last few months.

"You are further advised that the Sheriff's office acted immediately upon the meager information on hand to apprehend the persons who were guilty of the assault upon our Prosecuting Attorney. You fully understand that my office was greatly handicapped in its investigation by the fact that Mr. Anderson unfortunately could give but the most general description of the automobile and its occupants who were responsible for this unfortunate occurrence. As soon as I learned of this assault on Mr. Anderson I started an immediate investigation by running down every clew and investigating every rumor that threw any light upon the perpetrators of this accident, and made the fullest investigation by every means available, and did my utmost in this, as I have done in all other matters coming under the jurisdiction of my office.

"You know this better than any one connected with the Prosecuting Attorney's office, and you also know that I have given your office, during your incumbency, the most efficient and loyal support that I was able to give, and shall continue to do so as long as I am Sheriff of St. Louis County.

"I desire to add further that in my opinion the police officers of the various cities of the county, together with the officers acting directly under the Sheriff and the various Constables of St. Louis County are entirely capable and willing to perform such police duty as may be required in the county, and certainly there is no situation which would authorize an appeal to the Governor of this State to declare martial law in our midst or order the State military officers to overrun our county in an effort to apprehend criminals."

Grand Jury to Be Called.

Impaneling of a county grand jury a week from tomorrow was ordered by Circuit Judge Mueller at Clayton yesterday, as a result of a request sent to the four Circuit Judges of the county by Sheriff Deuser Friday. The Sheriff asked that the grand jury investigate the recent bombings and the killing Sept. 15 of Anton Kuliniewicz of Granite City, and that it act to assure an honest election next month. The Sheriff's letter to the Judges did not mention the assault on Anderson. The Judges directed the Sheriff to draw the grand jury, over the objection of Wolfe, who argued that the efficiency of Deuser's office might be under investigation.

A relative of one of the men charged with the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley was taken into custody for investigation by a Deputy Sheriff at Clayton yesterday. Anderson was requested to look at the man, but refused to do so, saying he could not identify his assailants. The man was released under $1000 bond to answer any charge that might be placed against him. Anderson is at County Hospital, Clayton, under protection of Clayton policemen. It was stated today that he was "getting along as well as could be expected."

Zoo Baby and Native Attendant

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

TERENGOSI, beside his charge, Toto Tembo, outside the Bird House at the Zoo, where the baby elephant is quartered temporarily.

Native Aid of Johnsons Makes New Leopard Purr

Terengosi, Remaining Here Temporarily, Fraternizes With Animals, but Gets Bronx Cheer From Chimpanzee.

Terengosi is enjoying his stay in "Missouri—U. S. A." The skinny, grinning black boy whom the Martin Johnsons left here as temporary nurse maid for Toto Tembo, the fuzzy baby elephant they sold the St. Louis Zoo, indicated his pleasure today with a sweeping two-armed gesture.

"Nice place," he enunciated. "New York," he continued with stern contempt, "no good. Too much water."

The two remarks are all that Zoo Director Vierheller has been able to elicit from the native boy with the wide-brimmed frontier model hat and the shapeless, baggy khaki pants. Terengosi, able to read and write his native Swahili, does not attempt abstract discussions in the small amount of pidgin-English at his command.

Martin Johnson told him Friday afternoon, before leaving for Chicago and New York, that he was to do whatever Bwana Vierheller or the Docteri told him, the Docteri being R. A. Kammerer, zoo veterinarian. So he obeys, and answers their questions when he can understand with a subservient "Yes, Bwana," or "No, Bwana."

Sleeps in Bird House.

He sleeps on a cot in the office of the Bird House and spends his spare time fraternizing with the animals, writing in his diary, or reading from the First Swahili Book, a textbook in English and Swahili. His wants are few. Food is sent over from the Vierheller home. Chicken and ice cream are particular treats. Vierheller gives him cigarettes and keeps his money for him. So far he hasn't wanted any money, because people take it from him. "Get robbed," is the way he explained, when Vierheller offered him money yesterday.

Before Johnson left, telling the native that he must remain in "Missouri-U. S. A. two-three weeks," or until Bwana Vierheller tells him he can go, Terengosi informed his master in Swahili that he was lonesome; that he wanted to get back to his wife, in Central Eastern Africa, north of Nairobi, Kenya Colony.

On that subject he said, when asked, "How many children, you?" "Two and one die. Two boys and one die."

With the animals he is perfectly at home, even with the untamed ones; even with the trained chimpanzees, Billy and Sammy, who can be restrained only with difficulty when a Negro is within reach.

He Masters Leopard.

For example: One of the animals shipped to the Zoo by the Johnsons is a leopard named Jennie. Upon arrival she refused to come out of the shipping box until ammonia had been squirted inside. Since then she has snarled and spit at everyone who has come close to the cage, including Johnson. Yesterday Terengosi went into the hospital where she is confined in quarantine, opened her cage, let her out in the room with him, mauled her about with his hands, put a collar on her and started to take her outside, purring and contented. Vierheller, however, vetoed taking the big cat out of doors.

He attended the performance of Sammy and Billy yesterday afternoon and was greatly amused when Sammy charged to the grating at the side of the stage, roaring and stamping up and down as do all chimpanzees and gorillas when challenging. Terengosi grinned more broadly than ever at this and jumped up and down in imitation. "He bite," Vierheller warned, but the native dismissed this airily, with, "I know, I know."

When the chimps roller skated about the stage, he laughed and laughed and commented, "Ummm, nice."

By the time the show was over Sammy had forgotten his animosity for a black skin and shook hands with Terengosi and pressed his hand to his lips in a gesture of farewell. Billy was still a little distant and after he had been placed in the cage, Terengosi undertook to deride Billy's performance in the ring.

"Ho," he cried. "You bad, No good. Bad. Ho! Bad."

High in the cage, Billy, who has been in the United States years to Terengosi's weeks, stared at the disparager a moment in sovereign contempt. Then he answered, with a Bronx cheer so fervent and sustained that the very bars of the cage vibrated.

INQUIRY ON CHARGE BREWERS PAID FOR SALOON LICENSES

Excise Commissioner Scullin Asks to See Man Who Made Statement in Divorce Suit.

An investigation of the assertion made in a divorce suit, that breweries had furnished the money for licenses for two saloons and that one of them held a mortgage on fixtures in one of the saloons, has been started by Excise Commissioner Scullin. The State liquor law prohibits breweries from having any interest in saloons.

Alvin J. Buckel, 2959 Walton road, St. Louis County, plaintiff in the divorce suit, made the assertion, saying he owned a saloon at 816½ North Grand boulevard, but did not operate it, and that he had a half interest in a saloon at 2900 Chouteau avenue. The Blatz Brewing Co. of Milwaukee held a mortgage on the fixtures of the Grand boulevard place and supplied the funds for the license there, while the A. B. C. Brewing Corporation furnished the money for the Chouteau avenue license, he testified.

Commissioner Scullin has sent for a transcript of Buckel's testimony and has requested Buckel to see him at his office. He also has taken under consideration the question of Buckel's residence.

"I am loath to believe a brewery would do this, knowing it would violate the law," said Scullin, commenting on Buckel's testimony. "I am going to find out about it. This very practice was what helped bring about prohibition."

Officers of the A. B. C. Brewing Corporation declared today that their company had not furnished money for a license for Buckel or anyone else.

Licenses for the two saloons were issued to Buckel June 1, according to records of the Excise Commissioner's office. Buckel then gave his address as 720 Clarendon avenue, in the city. He declared under oath, in the applications, that he owned the fixtures and was indebted to no one for money or property to be used in the businesses. His applications showed that Charles Colombini, 1129 North Grand, had a part interest in the saloon on Grand boulevard and that James Hogan, 3865 De Tonty street, had a part interest in the Chouteau avenue place.

The State liquor law provides that a person granted a license to sell liquor must be a qualified voter and taxpaying citizen of the city in which the license is sought. It does not provide that he must continue to reside in the city after obtaining the license. It declares that brewers and others in the liquor producing and manufacturing business and their employes and agents may not have any interest in the retail liquor business, and may not lend, give or furnish money or equipment.

Buckel sued for divorce in Circuit Court at Clayton. His wife, Mrs. Lesta Buckel, 3630 Blaine avenue, filed a cross bill. Both alleged general indignities. Circuit Judge Nolte on Saturday awarded the decree to Mrs. Buckel, ordering Buckel to pay her $7.50 a week alimony. The testimony about the breweries was brought out by Mrs. Buckel's attorney, Jules R. Fields.

SECOND DAY WITH NO RADIO PLEA TO STOLL KIDNAPER

This is Taken to Mean That Some Word Has Been Received About Abducted Woman.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 16.—Two days have passed since the family of Mrs. Berry Stoll, kidnaped Wednesday, broadcast an appeal to the kidnaper and a suggestion has been made that lack of radio appeals indicated word had been received from Mrs. Stoll. The family, however, declined to comment.

For four consecutive days such messages were sent.

"Berry Stoll has just found the note regarding the ransom and arrangements are being made accordingly," went on the air shortly after the kidnaping was reported last Wednesday night.

"We plead for a message from Mrs. Stoll tonight," was the message Thursday.

"We are awaiting fulfillment of promises," was broadcast Friday.

"Not having received any word from Alice, we fear that she may have been abandoned—we have complied with everything requested," the kidnaper was reminded Saturday.

Sunday and Monday went by without further appeals of this kind by radio.

"Only Want Alice Back."

"We don't want the kidnaper caught. We're not interested in that. We only want Alice back and we're still hopeful she will be returned to us safely," Stoll, the husband, told the Associated Press in an interview today.

Stoll appeared hopeful that his wife would be returned safely. He said he personally had answered all telephone calls to the home since the day of the abduction, in the hope a contact could be made with the kidnaper.

Explaining that no one was allowed on the premises, Stoll said "we are trying to keep the place absolutely isolated so the kidnaper will not think we are trying to trap him."

"There have been several cities which are possible contact points," Stoll began in the course of the conversation, but he turned from that remark.

"Isn't it true that you feel more confident now than you were before the case began?" the interviewer asked. He countered with a smile and the remark: "I shaved this morning for the first time in five days."

Reported Alive Yesterday.

The Louisville Times said it had reliable information that Mrs. Stoll was alive yesterday and might be freed within 24 hours.

The article adds:

"The above information gathered by the Times is confirmed, in part, by the cheerfulness of Mrs. Stoll's relatives since Sunday, by the passing of two days without any appeals to the kidnaper over the radio and by the Associated Press report that the $50,000 ransom had been sent to Nashville."

There had been indications since last night that the Stoll family expected something to happen within a short time, that the way again had been cleared on the possibility that the kidnaper or some agent might bring the woman back. Squads of police searching the neighborhood of the Stoll estate had moved southward today, and police again were keeping clear of the Lime Kiln Lane on which the home fronts.

George Stoll, a brother-in-law of the woman, said yesterday: "If we could just get some word it wouldn't be such a terrific strain. If there were only some way of knowing how she is . . ."

Police Official Pessimistic.

Maj. William Schmidt Night Chief of Police, pointed to another angle. "Figure it out for yourself," he said. "Mrs. Stoll was sick and thinly clothed. It was the coldest night of the season, and she was struck. It looks bad."

Indications that Frederic M. Sackett, former Ambassador to Germany and uncle of Mrs. Stoll, has become the real intermediary in the case, were given in reliable quarter by persons who declined use of their names.

Sackett is known to be spending a large part of his time within the closely-guarded seclusion of the Stoll home, although disclaimers of his presence are frequent.

HANS SCHWARZ DIES AT 83

Editor of German Paper at Belleville for 30 Years.

Hanz Schwarz, editor of German language newspapers in Belleville for 30 years before his retirement in 1915, died of infirmities of age today at his home, 300 North Illinois street, Belleville. He was 83 years old.

Coming to America from Bavaria in 1884, Mr. Schwarz worked for a time as a typesetter for a St. Louis German language paper. The following year he established the daily Arbeiter Zeitung und Tageblatt in Belleville. In 1911, he changed the paper to a weekly. The publication went out of business on his retirement. Surviving are two sons, Hans Schwarz Jr. and Andreas Schwarz.

MRS. H. P. WHITNEY TO TESTIFY TODAY

Will Take Stand in Suit Over Custody of Niece, Gloria Vanderbilt.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney is scheduled to take the stand today in her court fight to keep Gloria Vanderbilt, 10-year-old heiress, from the child's mother.

What the society matrons says to support her charge that Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is an unfit mother will get no farther than the ears of the Court. Justice John F. Carew has discontinued the daily summaries of testimony which he had given newspaper men since he found the evidence too sensational for the public to hear a week ago.

Mrs. Whitney, maternal aunt of the heiress, has the girl in her custody and the widowed Mrs. Vanderbilt is suing to get back her daughter. Dr. William P. St. Lawrence testified yesterday that he thought the child's health required that she stay with her aunt.

But to Prince Gottfried Zu Hohenlohe Und Langeburg and his Princess, Margarita, the whole proceedings are "piffle." They arrived here from Germany yesterday so that the Prince might deny charges of improprieties with Mrs. Vanderbilt while he was her fiance. The engagement was broken out of consideration for the child, he said. Mrs. Vanderbilt fearing the New York Surrogate would cut off the girl's income.

Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, said he would call Prince Hohenlohe as one of his first witnesses, possibly today. Harry C. Smyth, Mrs. Whitney's attorney, was not certain that he could complete his case before tomorrow, however.

'PARIS BY NIGHT' SHOW RAIDED; FOUR WOMEN, MAN, BOOKED

Police Report Dancers at 105 North Sixth Street Were Scantily Attired.

"Paris by Night," 105 North Sixth street, was raided yesterday afternoon by the police, who reported that three young women were dancing in scant attire before a male audience.

The officers booked Lee Parker, manager; Miss Mary Grace, 21, ticket seller, and the dancers, Mrs. Dorothy Baker, 23; Miss Doris Johnson, 23, and Miss Dorothy Nicholson, 21, to appear in Police Court No. 1 on Oct. 19.

SURETY OFFERED FOR ROSEGRANT CHECKED

Title Company to Report on Holdings Listed by Bondsmen.

A Clayton title company today began investigating the real estate holdings submitted by friends and relatives of Angelo Rosegrant seeking to qualify as signers of his $30,000 bond.

Rosegrant, convicted kidnaper of Dr. I. D. Kelley, was formally sentenced Saturday to 20 years in prison, but Circuit Judge Nolte decided that he might be released on bond, pending appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court.

The list of real estate held by those who want to sign Rosegrant's bond was submitted to Associate Prosecuting Attorney Wolfe yesterday by Thomas J. Rowe Jr., attorney for Rosegrant.

Mrs. Theresa Rosegrant, mother of the convicted man, listed her holdings at $125,000. His brother, Vincent, and Vincent's wife, are on the list for $17,000. Others are Martin E. Burgess, Cedar Hill, Mo., $17,000, and Joseph Biggio and wife, Lucas and Hunt road, $18,000. The total is $177,000.

If the title company's report is received in time, the bond hearing will be held tomorrow before Judge Nolte. Wolfe will be given an opportunity then to examine the prospective signers on the basis of the report he receives from the title company.

Wolfe opposed release of Rosegrant on bond when that motion was made by his attorney Saturday after Judge Nolte had overruled a motion for a new trial and passed sentence. Rowe, however, cited decisions of the courts to show that release on bond was mandatory under the statutes and the Court took that view.

OTIS STEEL DIRECTORS VOTE AGAINST MERGER OFFER

Turn Down Proposal to Join Corrigan, McKinney and Republic Corporation.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16.—Directors of the Otis Steel Co. yesterday voted not to accept an offer to join the merger of the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Co. and the Republic Steel Corporation.

E. J. Kulas, president of Otis, said: "Two tentative proposals have been made for the acquiring of the Otis company by Republic Steel. These proposals have been analyzed carefully by our board of directors. They have decided the proposed terms of acquisition were such that they could not recommend them to the shareholders of the Otis Steel Co."

ACTRESS IS SUED FOR ANNULMENT

MRS. HELENE M. NEWCOMBE.

TWENTY-YEAR-OLD Chicago girl who told the court she was married to Dr. Charles D. Crawford of Chicago, last April 24. The doctor in his annulment suit, alleged he was the best man at the ceremony that was to have been her marriage to Billy Geddes, acrobat, and that he was 14 feet from the marrying Justice. Mrs. Newcombe disclosed after the wedding that she took out a license in her and Crawford's names. The court continued the case.

Victim Says Friend Became Angry; Attacker Released to Mother.

Stabbed in the back by a 16-year-old playmate, John Slack, 12, 2215 South Third street, is at City Hospital for treatment for the knife wound beneath his left shoulder.

The boy told police that he and his older companion were playing near the Slack home, when the latter became angry, drew a pocket knife, stabbed him and fled.

The older boy was arrested and released on the promise of his mother to produce him in Juvenile Court later, if summoned.

Mixup of the Prichard Twins.

It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's Post-Dispatch that Leslie Prichard was attorney, and at other times, secretary, treasurer and supervisor of the Lemay Ferry Sewer District, organized under the old Ralph sewer law. The attorney is Lester Aldridge Prichard. His twin brother, Leslie Eldridge Prichard, an advertising man, had no connection with the sewer district.

BROWN'S AIRMAIL POLICY APPROVED BY LINDBERGH

Tells Aviation Commision Farley's "Blacklist" Is One of "Most Discouraging Factors."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told the President's Aviation Commission today that the "black list" of former air line executive officers constituted one of the "most discouraging factors" in aviation.

He was referring to the Postoffice Department ruling that no officers of the old air mail carriers might retain office under the reorganization which accompanied the contract letting after the first contracts were canceled.

The "black list" was imposed upon the executives, who, Postmaster-General Farley said, had participated in a "spoils conference" to divide up all air mail contracts.

The conference was arranged by former Postmaster-General Brown, and Lindbergh said he considered the allocation of Transcontinental Lines established by Brown the best solution thus far.

The small hearing room was packed when Lindbergh took the stand.

A few moments of indecision followed after Chairman Clark Howell Sr., asked the flyer to feel "perfectly free to go right ahead in your own way."

Offers to Answer Questions.

Lindbergh replied that he had no prepared statement, but that he would be glad to answer questions on "any particular subject that I might have knowledge of."

Commander Jerome Hunsaker, retired, an expert on lighter-than-air craft, then took up the questioning.

The belief that regular transoceanic flights are "not far away" was expressed by Lindbergh. He said he thought flying boats should be used at the start because of economy but "primarily because of safety."

Lindbergh explained that the flying boats in case of forced landing could descend without damage to the ships or to the personnel. He added that would give a tremendous psychological boost to the undertaking.

Thinks Subsidies Needed.

Lindbergh told the commission he thought Government subsidies to air lines would be necessary for a few years longer but that the major transport lines ought within a reasonable time be self supporting. Smaller lines, however, he added would require Government aid for a longer period.

"There must be some Government regulation of air transport lines—at least to the extent that any line carrying particularly passengers, but operating as a transport line, should meet certain requirements as to efficiency and personnel," Lindbergh said.

He added that the regulation should be "the minimum consistent with efficiency."

For Permanent Commissions.

"I believe," he said, "there should be a permanent aviation commission or some similar body completely independent of any other form of transportation."

Lindbergh explained that he believed aviation would be better fostered if it was not regulated by "the same body regulating the railroads."

His declaration that the system set up by Brown, with three transcontinental lines separately owned and operated, with competition eliminated on smaller routes, was preferable to any other came after his statement that "there should be competition."

Lindbergh said regulation of competition was "much more fundamental than the problem of air transport," and asserted that "too much competition under wrong conditions might retard the development of aviation."

Lindbergh, after explaining that the same policies governing executives in other industries should apply to aviation, said that the men on the "blacklist" constituted "some of our oldest and some of our ablest leaders."

"The men in the industry don't know what their status is today," he said.

"The charges should be brought and carried through to the proper courts. If not, they shrould be cleared," he said.

Use of Parachutes.

Asked about the use of parachutes, Lindbergh said they were not generally being employed on passenger ships "and I do not believe they would increase the safety of passenger travel."

He explained that studies had been made of all the major accidents and it was found that parachutes would not have saved any lives.

Accidents happen so quickly, he added, that those unfamiliar with the use of parachutes do not find them of any service.

"Their use on transports," he said, "would increase the hazard through improper use."

Lindbergh said he believed "we could inaugurate a transoceanic mail route within a few months' time."

The planes now being built could be used for that service, he added.

At the start he said, daily schedules should not be attempted but that should be left for future progress.

As for hours that the airplane pilots work, Lindbergh said there should be a limitation but that conditions might not make it desirable to have it on a daily or even on a weekly basis. It should be on a yearly or possibly a monthly basis, he added.

"I think we can look forward within the next few years to having two crews, one to relieve the other and possibly to sleep on the plane," he said. "Certainly that would be necessary on transoceanic flights."

The salary of pilots, he said, should vary with working conditions and experience.

"Any system would be undesirable which does not permit paying pilots on the large transport lines more than those on the small feeder lines," he added.

BOY ADMITS 17 ROBBERIES

Names Accomplice, Who Confesses Aiding in One.

A 14-year-old boy arrested by Soulard District police yesterday, after he displayed a revolver to companions, confessed 17 minor burglaries, and named a 14-year-old accomplice. The second boy asserted he took part in but one robbery.

The boy stated that since August he broke into eight groceries, three garages, two restaurants, two shoe stores, a hardward store and a barber shop. The loot included $25 cash, candy, food, chewing gum and the revolver, which led to his arrest. Both boys were placed in the House of Detention.

PLAN FOR LIQUIDATION OF STOCK LAND BANK

Bondholders' Committee Proposes Buying All Assets, Ending Receivership.

A plan for terminating the receivership of St. Louis Joint Stock Land Bank and completing liquidation of assets of the bank through a trustee and a corporation to be formed by the Bondholders' Protective Committee was announced today by the committee.

The plan contemplates that the committee will buy all assets of the bank at a foreclosure sale, paying the purchase price out of amounts distributable to the committee by the receiver as liquidating dividends.

An upset price would be fixed by the Land Bank Commissioner, and bondholders not joining the committee would receive distributive shares of the purchase price in cash from the receiver. They would then have no further interest in assets of the bank. The plan is to become effective when approved by holders of 90 per cent of the outstanding bonds, or a lesser percentage, if approved by the Land Bank Commissioner. The committee now has obtained deposit of about 77 per cent of the $18,134,500 of outstanding bonds.

Cash and Government bonds included in assets of the bank to be acquired by the committee would be distributed to depositing bondholders after deductions for the expenses of the committee and the expense of seting up a liquidating corporation. Federal Farm Mortgage Bonds to be acquired would be assigned to a trustee, to preserve their exemption from taxation, and the proceeds distributed ratably among depositing bondholders as these are liquidated. All other assets, including real estate and mortgage loans, would be assigned to the liquidating corporation, stock of which will be distributed pro rata among depositing bondholders.

Included in the pamphlets announcing the plan is a statement of the bank's condition as of Aug. 31. This shows mortgage loans, exclusive of those in foreclosure totaling $8,385,586, although $5,340,825 of these are in default. In addition there are $1,002,458 of loans in foreclosure. Purchase money mortgages and contracts total $1,464,652, some of which are in foreclosure. The receiver has $1,436,760 in cash and $605,600 in Government securities. Real estate owned is carried at $3,056,122, and Sheriff's certificates and judgments subject to redemption, $793,698.

Total book value of assets is $16,845,520. Aside from the $18,134,500 of bonds, and accrued interest, the only substantial liability is $118,910 in trust accounts.

W. W. Martin is chairman of the bondholders' committee, which has offices in the Railway Exchange Building. S. L. Cantley has been receiver for the bank since June 1, 1932.

TRUMAN APPEALS FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION OF NEW DEAL

Says at St. Charles "We Might as Well Revert to Savagery" as to Neglect the Aged.

Unless a Federal old-age pension law is passed, "we might as well revert to savagery and kill and eat our aged as to make their declining years a mockery and shame," Judge Harry S. Truman, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, said in an address at St. Charles yesterday reviewing results of the New Deal social legislation.

The aged who have found themselves unable to find work "should not be stigmatized in law and public opinion as paupers and deprived of their votes because they are public charges," Truman said. "These good citizens should have old-age pensions. They should be allowed to live as other people live, to keep their few household goods and maintain their decency and self-respect. This situation must be and will be corrected."

Creation of the Civilian Conservation Corps has "kept thousands of families off the relief rolls by using the money earned by members of the corps," Truman declared. "Instead of feeling that society had no place for them, these young men have learned that their Government has a real and abiding interest in them and regard for them."

"It will be the effort of the Democratic party to put every worker possible in employment and keep him there or compensate him for enforced idleness," he said, pointing out that employment insurance legislation will be one of the problems facing the next Congress.

LABORER FATALLY HURT; FALLS INTO ROCK CRUSHER

Man, 51, Injured When Working in Clay Mine, Dies on Way to Hospital.

Victor Oldani, 51-year-old laborer, 2210 January avenue, was killed yesterday when he fell into a rock-crushing machine while working at a clay mine, owned by the Laclede-Christy Products Co., at 5900 Manchester avenue.

He died on the way to St. John's Hospital.

Falls 70 Feet at Bagnell Dam.

By the Associated Press.

ELDON, Mo., Oct. 16.—Lewis Brandenburg, 26 years old, of Hermann, Mo., is in a hospital here following his 70-foot fall Sunday down the face of the Bagnell Dam. He suffered a fractured skull, a dislocated shoulder and a broken arm. Brandenburg jumped over the railing near the north end of the dam, intending to land on a narrow runway of concrete five feet below. He missed his footing and fell.

SEVEN IN DISABLED BOAT RESCUED IN LAKE ERIE

Three Women and Four Men Picked Up After 20 Hours in Rough Water.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16.—After their disabled speedboat had been tossed for 20 hours in rough water on Lake Erie, three women and four men were picked up by the steamer Calcite 12 miles off the mouth of the Cuyahoga River yesterday and brought here.

Chilled and hungry, the seven, who left Rocky River at 5 p. m. Sunday for a trip to Vermilion, told how they bailed constantly to keep the 24-foot boat afloat as high waves broke over them.

Those rescued were: Elmer Beuther, 21 years old, owner and pilot of the speedboat; William Geiger, 28; Leo Olmsted, 31; Miss Mary Knight, 23; Miss Florence Collmorgan, 18, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Alton, all from Cleveland and Lakewood, a suburb.

WANTS ILLINOIS COAL USED

Committee Urges Governor to Change Road Contract Terms.

A committee from Southern Illinois went to Springfield yesterday to attempt to get Gov. Horner to authorize the inclusion of a clause in all Illinois road construction contracts which would make it mandatory that the cement companies use coal from Illinois mines.

The committee was headed by Mayor Brechnitz of Belleville, Mayor Carter of Coulterville and J. W. Bristwo, managing director of the Southern Illinois Reciprocal Trade Association. Mayor Brechnitz said that the inclusion of the clause would increase the output of Southern Illinois mines 300,000 tons a year and would help to relieve unemployment in the mining regions.

Former Broker Indicted.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Julius L. Marks, former president of the defunct J. L. Marks Co., brokerage house, was named yesterday in an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud, returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes. Three former employes of the company also were indicted. The indictment was the result of a grand jury investigation after a bankruptcy hearing had brought charges that the company was operated as a "bucket shop."

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR A. L. ABBOTT

Former Member of Law Firm Had Been Ill for Several Months.

The funeral of Augustus L. Abbott, attorney, who died yesterday at his home, 5449 Maple avenue, will be held at the home at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

He was 76 years old, and had been in poor health for several moiths. His widow, Mrs. Annette Blair Abbot, two sons, John Blair and Preston Ober Abbott, and a daughter, Mrs. Marjory Hague, survive him.

A graduate of Washington University Law School, he was admitted to the bar in 1884, and in 1902 entered a partnership which continued 31 years, the firm name in later years being Abbott, Fauntleroy, Cullen & Edwards. He was for many years a deacon of Second Baptist Church. In 1932 he was president of the St. Louis Safety Council.

Last year, his connection with the law firm was terminated, and one of the partners, John B. Edwards, stated in court that Abbott had admitted misuse of funds of an estate of which the firm was trustee. A disbarment proceeding resulted, and an order of disbarment was issued last May by Judge Green. Abbott at that time stated that his age, illness and lack of funds prevented his making a defense to the disbarment petition, which charged wrongful conversion of $17,000.

OWNER OF BARNEY'S STORES SEEKS $500,000 FOR ARREST

Damage Suit Filed Against 17 Fire Insurance Companies; Third Action of Kind.

Barney Grosberg, proprietor of Barney Grosberg, Inc., which operated Barney's Army and Department Stores when a fire damaged the firm's warehouse and contents at 917 Lucas avenue, May 16, 1932, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday against 17 fire insurance companies for $500,000 damages. Grosberg says he was arrested Dec. 12, 1932, and held for six hours before he was released on a common law bond to answer to a charge of arson in connection with the fire. He appeared in court on the bond and was discharged, the petition stated.

Similar suits have been filed by David N. Grosberg, an officer of the company, and Sam Saffran of Kansas City, an appraiser. James T. O'Donnell, chief of the Underwriters' Salvage Corps; John W. Mackay, 6160 Waterman avenue, and Howard Jennings, 4311A Margaretta avenue, representatives of the insurance companies, are named as co-defendants.

DENIES KNOWING OF FIRE IN FURNACE WHERE HE PUT CHILD

Laborer Admits His Victim Was Alive at the Time, However.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Lawrence Stone admits knowing that 5-year-old Nancy Jean Costigan was alive when he threw her into an apartment house furnace, District Attorney Frank H. Coyne says, but he denies realizing that the huge oil burner was in use.

Announcing that Stone had confessed yesterday, Chief Inspector Michael I. Silverstein of the Mount Vernon police, described the prisoner's assertion that the fire was out as one of several discrepancies in the statement. The 24-year-old laborer was quoted as saying the girl fell heavily while playing ball with him and that he, panic-stricken, dumped her in the furnace after she "turned blue."

FOSSILS OF PREHISTORIC DOGS

Relics 20,000,000 Years Old Found in the Black Hills.

By the Associated Press.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 16. — Unearthing of hitherto undiscovered specimens of the dog family, fossils that have lain in the Black Hills of South Dakota for 20,000,000 years, has been disclosed by Prof. Frederick B. Loomis of Amherst College geology department in an informal address before the College Science Club.

Prof. Loomis and two students spent last summer searching in the Black Hills for remains of prehistoric animals and the address was Prof. Loomis' first public report on the expedition. Of all animals, the dog family has changed the least throughout the ages, Prof. Loomis said.

DON'T LET PAIN TORTURE YOU!

Use This Quick, Simple, Economical Treatment of World Famous Maker

Should you have a back-ache, or any kind of muscle or body pain, and fail to use the time-proven Johnson's Red Cross Plaster, you are needlessly torturing yourself. The warmth . . . the mild massage . . . the muscle support, that a Red Cross Plaster gives, soothes pain completely away. While you go about your work, the medication sinks in through the pores, and treats the root of the trouble.

Do you want to get relief? Then place a Johnson's Red Cross Plaster over the painful part, and forget about it. There is nothing else to take. There is no fuss, no mussiness, no tell-tale odor. When you feel completely relieved, the plaster can be removed easily. Besides this, it is very inexpensive. Is it any wonder that millions of Johnson's Red Cross Plasters are used every year?

Johnson & Johnson, who make Red Cross Plasters, are the largest makers of surgical dressings in the world. Many of their products are used daily in practically all hospitals, doctors' offices and dentists' offices. So you can be sure Johnson's Red Cross Plasters are safe.

When you have a body ache or a muscle pain, don't look around for sympathy. Better look around for a Red Cross Plaster, and be relieved. Yes, all drug stores carry Johnson's Red Cross Plasters. The Red Cross on the wrapper tells you it's Johnson's. Adv.

19,000 SEALSKINS SOLD AT ST. LOUIS AUCTION

$336,000 Paid—Prices 18 to 20 Pct. Under Those of Last Spring.

The twenty-first fall auction of Alaskan sealskins by the Fouke Fur Co., held yesterday at the company's showrooms at Fourth and Market streets, drew about 25 buyers from all parts of the country, who paid $336,846 for 19,000 skins.

Prices paid for skins of various qualities declined 18 to 20 per cent as compared with the sales last spring, when a total of $603,952 was paid for skins, including also several fox pelts and Japanese sealskins. The total amount taken in yesterday was $350,833, including receipts for 480 Japanese sealskins, 457 blue fox and 25 white fox pelts.

The average price for all sealskins yesterday was $17.88 compared with $21.11 last spring and $19.38 at the auction a year ago. Yesterday's price decline was attributed to uncertain business conditions. The sale last spring was the largest in several years.

A new shade in sealskins, safari brown, was introduced to buyers yesterday and 6000 were sold at a price of $127,327. The new color, obtained in the fur company plant after several years of experimentation, is slightly darker than the logwood brown, which has been popular in recent years, and is said to bring out the natural luster of the skin to better effect.

Of the remainder of sealskins sold, 10,000 were black and 3000 logwood. The former sold for $160,552, the latter, $48,966.

The Alaskan skins came from the Government herd on the Pribilof Islands, in the Bering Sea. The Fouke company is under contract to market the entire annual output. The herd now numbers about 1,350,000 and is ten times larger than when it was placed under Federal protection in 1910. Only three-year-old males are killed.

PARK GRANTS EXTRADITION OF BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT

Cecil Worsham Wanted in Connection With $9500 Holdup in Arkansas.

Gov. Park yesterday granted a requisition for the extradition of Cecil Worsham to Clay County, Ark., where he is wanted in connection with the $9500 holdup of the Corning Bank and Trust Co. 10 days ago.

Worsham, 21 years old, was arrested last Friday at his home in the 1900 block of Wright street. He denied knowledge of the bank robbery, although Arkansas officers say his photograph was identified by witnesses. Two men held up the cashier and fled in an automobile driven by a third man. The car, stolen in East St. Louis, was later found abandoned.

WOMAN KILLED BY ANOTHER IN PISTOL FIGHT ON STREET

Negroes Meet Outside Saloon in East St. Louis; Said to Have Quarreled Over Man.

Louaddie Dixon, Negro, was shot and killed last night by Flora Hopper, another Negro, following an argument outside of a saloon at Twenty-second street and Kansas avenue, East St. Louis.

Both women fired shots, one striking the Dixon woman below the left shoulder. Police found the other woman at her home with the two pistols used in the fight. She told police the other woman had fired first and she returned the fire in self defense. According to police, the argument was over a man.

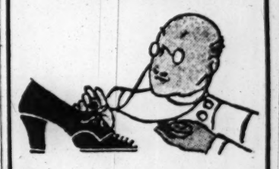

Boy, 5, Injured by Auto.

Vincent Collico, 5 years old, 1430 North Fourteenth street, suffered a fractured left leg and internal injuries yesterday when he was struck by an automobile near Cass avenue on North Fourteenth street. The machine was driven by Edward Daily, 1456 Warren street, who told police the boy ran in front of his machine.

EPISCOPAL GROUP FOR FURTHER TEST OF DIVORCE RULE

Suggests That Provision for Canonical Court to Pass on Cases Remain for Present.

CHANGE IN CHURCH NAME PROPOSED

Bishop Objects to Reference to Roosevelt in Greeting As 'Loyal Communicant.'

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 16.—A longer trial for the church law relating to marriage and divorce was recommended to the Episcopal general convention yesterday by the Joint Commission on Marriage and Divorce.

The commission recommended one change in the canon, which would make it possible for clergymen to waive, "for weighty cause," the rule requiring that they must have three days' notice of intention to wed before performing a ceremony.

Concerning the section of the canon on the remarriage of divorced persons, under which a diocesan court is provided to pass on the church legality of civil divorces, the commission said:

"In the adoption of the present canon, the church acted distinctly in favor of giving the blessing of the church to many divorced persons who have been remarried.

"It is to be noted that when the Bishop or the Court has favorably recognized their communicant status or their right to apply for holy baptism or confirmation, a minister of this church may at his discretion bless the parties to the union. It is doubtful whether the church as a whole has begun to comprehend the significance of this change in the canon. It embodies the growing conviction that it is essential to distinguish between legal marriage and ecclesiastical marriage, which is but the blessing of a legal union.

For Further Trial of Rule.

"This section certainly should have much further trial before it is amended. Naturally, it must be unsatisfactory to those who believe that any blessing by the church implies the condoning of adultery, nor is it satisfactory to those who feel that ministers of this church should have a larger right, not merely to bless a marriage, but as clergymen to act as officers of both state and church.

"We think that the outstanding value of the present canon lies in its emphasis on education for marriage—biological, moral, economic and spiritual. The Western church has worked under the present restrictive canon for centuries, but nevertheless the divorce rate continues to increase all over the world.

"The educational attitude is so now that we cannot look yet for results, but experience seems to make it clear that all hope of progress in our civilization lies along educative lines.

"Our eighteenth amendment and the carnage by automobiles afford abundant evidence that laws are impotent unless based on public opinion."

The commission, of which the Rt. Rev. Herman Page, Bishop of Michigan, is chairman, includes Bishop Matthews, George W. Wickersham of New York, former chairman of the Wickersham Commission.

Report on Church Name.

A change in the church's name was reported favorably by the committee on changes in the constitution before the house of deputies. The proposal would eliminate the word "protestant" by making the official title "the Episcopal Church in the United States of America."

A resolution which would commit the convention to approval of broader laws on the distribution of birth control information was offered by the Rt. Rev. A. Arthur Huston, Bishop of Olympia, Wash., before the House of Bishops. Action was deferred.

The House of Bishops voted to send its greetings to President Roosevelt, b : one Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Paul Matthews of New Jersey, objected:

"Do I understand the wording of the greetings to refer to the President as a 'loyal and faithful communicant of the church?'" Bishop Matthews asked, and being assured that it did, added: "Then I object."

Bishop Matthews made no explanation of his objection at the meeting, but later declared he did not object to the description of the President as a "loyal and faithful communicant," but felt there was no necessity for including the words in the resolution.

"It simply seems silly to me to word the resolution that way," he said. "We should send our greetings to Mr. Roosevelt because he is the President, not because he is a communicant of this church."

Fires at Alleged Thefts.

Patrolman John Kilfoy fired two shots at two men who were stealing gasoline at a filling station at 2900 North Market street at 1 a. m. today. The bullets went wild and the men got on their truck and sped away.

FREIGHTER AFIRE AT SEA

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—The 5000-ton freighter, Point San Pedro, its No. 1 hold swept by fire and its rudder disabled, limped toward Portland from off the Oregon coast today.

The fire which blazed for two hours last night was reported under control at 1:01 a. m., and the freighter notified Coast Guard cutters rushing to its aid that it was proceeding by hand-steering gear. The Point San Pedro, owned by the McCormick Steamship Co., left here Saturday night for Portland. It carries a crew of about 30 men. No passengers are aboard.

This 8 room house heated with Gas for $118.85

OCT. 8, 1933
MAY 11, 1934

This attractive home on Federer Place is similar in size and construction to many other St. Louis homes that are being satisfactorily heated with gas.

Because gas heat has so many advantages over other fuels, some people imagine that it is proportionately expensive. Many of these people are convinced that gas is the ideal fuel for home heating but have delayed installing it because of a mistaken idea of the cost.

There are two ways to determine whether or not gas heat would be worth its cost to you; one way is to learn its cost in homes similar to yours, the other is to compare your last year's fuel bill with an engineer's scientific estimate of the cost of heating your home with gas.

Telephone CEntral 3800—Househeating Department, and ask for an estimate on the cost of gas heat. This estimate is computed from a heating survey of your home, and both survey and estimate will be made without cost or obligation.

DEAN LOEB SAYS GOVERNMENT NEED IS MODERNIZATION

Tells City Managers Large Part of Public Business Is Carried on by 18th Century Methods.

Modernization is needed in all branches of American government, Dean Isidor Loeb of the school of business administration at Washington University, said in a speech today at a luncheon of the International City Managers' Association at Hotel Statler.

The three-day conference of the association opened yesterday and will continue through tomorrow night.

A vast expansion of governmental activities necessarily affects the governmental organization that is needed for the exercise of such functions," said Dean oLeb. "Private business and industry were confronted with similar problems and economic organization has been subjected to revolutionary changes.

"When we turn from private to public business we find a far different situation. Governments have not been able to escape the modern influences that have produced large scale operations and complicated mechanisms and functions. It is still true, however, that a large part of our governmental business continues to be operated with the obsolete organization and antiquated methods of the Eighteenth Century.

"While public interest and welfare distinguish governmental from private business organizations there is no difference between them in the fundamental matter of honest, economical and efficient administration. County and other rural governments need reorganization of their areas to correspond with modern transportation and communication and business methods must be substituted for the antiquated machinery of an earlier period."

Mayor Hoan's Speech.

At a dinner last night, Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist Mayor of Milwaukee, reviewed some of the policies, campaign methods, and administrative measures developed in his 20 years as chief executive of the Wisconsin metropolis.

Hoan, hoarse from recent municipal campaigning, said that perhaps the most important attribute of success in city administration lay in an understanding of economic trends and changes.

"A knowledge of economic trends and changes is indispensable to a good administrator," he said. "No man can be a good administrator without it. Every event and every phenomenon in our history can be explained by economic change.

"Some of my measures in Milwaukee were thought radical at first, but I defy any of my associates in the city administration to put his finger on anything that I have recommended that was impractical. That is one reason why they can't get rid of me up there.

Opposes Sweeping Budget Cuts.

"You city managers should study economic changes. Lack of knowledge of this subject was responsible for the craze of efficiency which in the last few years has resulted in sweeping reductions in budgets. I do not see how such reductions can help. When you reduce the budget and cut men off payrolls you are simply adding those men and their dependents to relief rolls.

"I have never been in sympathy with such reductions. It reminds me of the farmer who wanted to make use of a pile of sawdust and mixed it with his chicken bran. Each day he fed his chickens a little more sawdust and a little less bran, until finally he was feeding them all sawdust. What happened? One of the hens finally hatched 12 chickens—11 had wooden legs and the other was a croquet ball. If we pursue the policy of cutting down budgets we are apt to develop wooden heads or wooden legs or something of that sort.

Tells of His Organization.

Hoan told in detail how he had built up the organization of supporters in Milwaukee which has kept him in office since before the World War.

"When we started out, he had to be careful in accepting support and campaign funds," he said. "It's like the musicians who are hired to play. Naturally if you hire and pay them you can tell them what to play. You can usually tell what kind of tune an administration will play by the contributors to the campaign fund.

"We discussed asking the bankers to support us. They wouldn't do, because after all they were interested in lending the city money. They might ask for special privileges. We thought of contractors, utility company owners and professional groups. But they all had special interests, so we left them out. There wasn't much left after that but the working people and the small merchants, and it is they who formed the nucleus of our organization."

Hoan spoke of the opposition of the Milwaukee newspapers, declaring that he believed the fact that they opposed him was responsible for his continued success at the polls. "They have said lots of things about me, some of them pretty bitter," he said, "but the voaers have continued to support me."

Alfred J. Cleary, chief administrative officer of San Francisco, was also scheduled to speak last night but was unable to be present. In his place, O. E. Carr, former city manager of Oakland, Cal., and Hollis R. Thompson, city manager of Berkeley, Cal., discussed the administrative set-up of San Francisco.

Comments on St. Louis.

Among the more than 100 delegates to the conference are Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, noted authority on political science, and C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, who was the principal speaker at a luncheon yesterday.

"St. Louis housing could be transformed quickly," said Prof. Merriam. "I have noticed that most of its older buildings in what might be called the slum districts are not more than two stories high and could be torn down very quickly. In Chicago, with high buildings and narrow streets, we are not so fortunate.

Merriam also said he believed the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County were ideally located for consolidation at any future time, although he recalled that a city-county merger plan proposed by Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan had been defeated here in the election in November, 1930.

The concluding session of the conference tomorrow will include more breakfast discussions, an afternoon session at which reports of the discussions of the first two days of the conference will be presented, and the annual banquet, at which officers will be installed and Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing House of Chicago, will speak.

GETS ORDER FOR RETRIAL OF SUIT OVER BRACELET

Dr. V. J. Meinhardt Claims Articles Jury Awarded to Estate of A. C. Lindsley.

A motion for a new trial filed by Dr. Victor J. Meinhardt, 3219 Sullivan avenue, in his suit to replevin from the Police Department a platinum bracelet set with 114 diamonds was sustained by Circuit Judge Kirkwood today.

Dr. Meinhardt purchased the bracelet from a jewelry salesman who called at his office in May, 1932. It was afterward seized by the police and held as evidence in connection with the reported robbery of a jewelry store in the Arcade Building conducted by Aubrey C. Lindsley.

Lindsley ended his life June 14, 1932, and the bracelet was claimed by both his widow as executrix of his estate and by Dr. Meinhardt. At the trial of the replevin suit, a jury rendered a verdict in favor of the estate.

Child Burned to Death.

Melvin Ross, 2-months-old son of Albert Ross, Negro, was burned to death last night, and his father was seriously injured when fire destroyed their three-room frame house on Agnes avenue, near Sutton avenue, Brentwood. The fire was caused by an explosion of a gasoline stove.

WOMAN BURNED IN GAS EXPLOSION DIES

Husband and Son of Mrs. Lydia Mallette Seriously Injured.

Mrs. Lydia Mallette, 35 years old, died today at City Hospital of burns suffered Saturday night in an accidental explosion of illuminating gas at her home, 3638 Finney avenue.

Her husband, Frank Mallette, unemployed truck driver, and their 14-year-old son, Frank Jr., were seriously burned at the same time and are under treatment at City Hospital.

A slow leak in a gas pipe leading to a stove on the third floor of the house caused the gas to permeate the upper two floors. The Mallettes moved into the first floor Saturday from another house on the same block.

They had gone to the second floor in search of a piece of linoleum, and for lack of other light there struck a match. The explosion followed instantly. There was no fire after the first blast that consumed the gas.

PINNED UNDER AUTO AFTER IT PLUNGES DOWN 40-FOOT BANK

West Alton Farm Hand Suffers Skull Fracture in Accident on Route 94.

Hugh Brown, 55-year-old farm hand of West Alton, suffered a skull fracture last night, when an automobile in which he was riding plunged down a 40-foot embankment off Missouri Route 94, the old St. Charles road, near the intersection of the C., B. & Q. Railroad tracks in St. Louis County. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at Alton.

His companions, James Fitzhugh of West Alton and Frank Meyer of Newroad, Mo., escaped injury. Police were unable to learn how the accident happened.

When Alton police reached the scene, they found the injured man pinned under the overturned machine and his companions trying to extricate him.

20 Years for Attack.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 16.—John W. Brewer, 35 years old, convicted last week of a criminal attack upon a 12-year-old girl, was sentenced today to 20 to 30 years in prison. The courts recently declined to give permission to physicians to operate to prevent the girl from becoming a mother. The courts held the operation would be illegal because it was not necessary to save the child's life.

STEPSONS LOSE SKOBEL SUIT

Sought $2000 From Bathhhouse Proprietor's Widow Under Agreement.

A verdict in favor of Mrs. Marie Skobel, widow of Ivan Skobel, bathhouse proprietor, was returned by a jury in Circuit Judge Taylor's court yesterday in a suit charging her with failure to comply with an agreement.

The suit was filed by David and Samuel Skobel, sons of her husband by a prior marriage, who said she had not given $1000 to each of them for relinquishing any claims they might have in property at 3941-45 Olive street. The agreement, they said, was made in November, 1932. Mrs. Skobel contended a reasonable time for payment had not yet elapsed.

DISCUSSES TAXES

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

HENRY W. TOLL.

EFFORT TO AVOID DUPLICATING TAXES

Legislators' Association Head Discusses State and Federal Levies.

The tax problem, with its growing conflicts between the taxing powers of the Federal and State Governments, is one of the most important matters before State Legislatures, according to Henry W. Toll, executive director of the American Legislators' Association.

Toll, a former Colorado State Senator, is here for the convention of the International City Managers' Association, and for conferences with St. Louis members of the State Legislature.

He explained in an interview that the American Legsilators' Association, with offices in Chicago, served as a research organization and a clearing house through which any member of a State Legislature or General Assembly could obtain information for use in preparation of bills for determination of policy. Legislatures of several states have made appropriations toward its maintenance.

Duplicated Taxation.

"The principal purpose of our association," he said, "is to try to harmonize and co-ordinate the legislative enactments of our various states and the Federal Government. Government expenditures have increased so greatly in recent years that almost every taxing authority is looking for new sources of revenue.

"This is particularly true of the Federal Government whose expenditures have grown so greatly. It leads to much duplication in taxation. Perhaps the most glaring example is the gasoline tax. For years most of the states have been imposing a tax on gasoline for highway revenue, and now the Federal Government has encroached on that field. We feel that is one tax which should have been reserved for the states.

Income and Sales Taxes.

"There are many other examples of duplication in taxation. For instance, many of the states have an income tax in addition to the Federal income tax. It appears now that most of the states will enact sales taxes and the Federal Government also is considering such a tax. Numerous commodities, such as tobacco and liquors, are taxed by several government agencies—Federal, state and municipal.

"We would like to bring about an understanding that would recognize certain fields of taxation as belonging exclusively to states and other fields as belonging to the Federal Government, so as to avoid undue burdens on taxpayers. Where taxation overlaps, we think there should be standards of uniformity set up that would avoid confusion and discrimination."

Toll served eight years as a member of the Colorado Legislature.

STATE COMMISSION APPROVES HAMPTON AVENUE VIADUCT

City Authorized to Build Structure at Estimated Cost of $375,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Plans of the city of St. Louis for construction of a viaduct to carry Hampton avenue over Manchester avenue and tracks of the Missouri Pacific and St. Louis-San Francisco railways, and the St. Louis Public Service Co. in St. Louis, were approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission yesterday, and the city was authorized to build the structure.

Estimated cost of the viaduct, which will be of concrete, is $375,000. The commission made no order as to division of the cost, stating the city, railroads and several public utilities affected had reached an agreement as to the division.

The viaduct is part of the city's plan for opening Hampton avenue, from Gravois avenue north to Oakland avenue, to provide an additional thoroughfare for traffic between the western and southwestern sections of the city. The viaduct will be about 800 feet in length. The application for authority to build the viaduct was filed by the city on March 7, 1933, but the case was deferred several times, at the request of the city, and hearings were not held until last June.

PROTEST ON LABELING WHISKY WITH PRODUCING STATE'S NAME

Complaint Made by Rectifiers Against Regulation Ordered to Go Into Effect Nov. 1.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Rectifiers protested yesterday to the Alcohol Control Administration against being required to label every bottle of straight whisky with the name of the State in which it was distilled. The rectifiers, who buy whisky from distillers in various states, bottle it and market it under their own trade name, contended at a hearing that cheap, young whisky from one state was just as good as that from another.

Walter H. Phillips, president of the New Jersey Rectifiers and Blenders' Association, asserted that New Jersey rectifiers would have to throw away $100,000 worth of labels now on hand if the Alcohol Control Commission went ahead with the regulation it has ordered into effect Nov. 1. Joseph H. Choate Jr., chairman, disputed contentions of some rectifiers that the labels were designed to protect the "whisky reputation" of Maryland, Pennsylvania and Kentucky. The regulations, he said, were intended to protect consumers generally.

ASSAILS "TRADUCERS" OF AMERICAN LEGION

Report Urges Veterans to Consolidate Position in Interest of War-Maimed.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 16.—A report to be presented at the American Legion convention here next week by its Legislative Committee will admit that proposed veterans' legislation had by 1932 exceeded original intentions, resulting in legislative reverses, but will declare that "our position has been consolidated once more."

Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, chairman of the committee, said yesterday that "We must hold our consolidated line tight and fast in the interest of those who are our first charge—our service-connected disabled comrades."

Quotes From Report.

Quoting from his report, Kelly said:

"Our opponents are even now preparing vigorously for a new attack upon the American Legion and veterans' legislation. Even before the President vetoed our legislation, when Congress appeared favorable, their attacks began, and immediately following our victory over the presidential veto unfair criticism and misleading information became the ammunition of these attacks.

"Vicious traducers of the Legion [illegible] from the press and pulpit that the Legion had been battling for hundreds of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money to be paid to World War veterans whose disabilities were not even remotely connected with the service.

Charges Evasion of Facts.

"When confronted with the facts, many of the character assassins have evaded or ignored them. This cannot be helped. Anyone who has the ready cash of the Economy League jingling in his pockets may be expected to be true to the ready money thus provided. . . .

"In the past we have been called many offensive and unpleasant names, but it has remained for certain ministers, who are supposed by their calling to be gentlemen of God preaching love and faith and hope and generosity, to lay down the most vicious attack and to call us the worst names of any that have been voiced."

Kelly said the Legion's universal draft legislation, for which the organization has been fighting since 1922, "has been given new impetus" through the disclosures of the Senate committee investigating activities of munitions manufacturers.

PERMITS WIRE-TAPPING IN FIGHT ON SMUGGLERS

Morgenthau Says "We Can't Get Them in a Sissy Manner."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Wire tapping by Federal agents seeking to apprehend narcotic peddlers, smugglers and bootleggers was approved yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Asked about reports that the department had sent out a letter authorizing such a procedure, the Treasury head said he knew nothing of it, but added:

"We'll use any method we can to get dope peddlers, smugglers and bootleggers.

"We can't get them in a sissy manner. We've got to go after them."

Morgenthau reported that a committee representing the Secret Service, Customs Bureau, Narcotics Division, Alcohol Tax Unit and Coast Guard was holding sessions weekly to co-ordinate the Federal Government's campaign against such offenders.

As a result of an intensive movement against dope peddlers, he said, the price of opium on the Pacific Coast has more than doubled.

Narcotics Bureau officials, questioned about employment of wire tapping to detect violators, said it had been used whenever necessary.

BANK ROBBERS OBTAIN $1200

But Miss $6000 More by Arriving Late at Hawarden, Ia.

By the Associated Press.

HAWARDEN, Ia., Oct. 16.—The First National Bank of Hawarden was robbed here late yesterday by three unmasked men armed with a machine gun and automatic pistols.

The robbers escaped with $1200 in cash, but arrived five minutes after a time lock on the vault safe prevented them from obtaining an additional $6000 in currency. Three hostages taken with them were released unharmed a short distance in the country. They were H[illegible] der Stoep, cashier, and Dr. D[illegible] Steffen, dentist, who were dropped a mile from town, and Miss [illegible] garet Petry, bookkeeper, who was let out seven miles further.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT YOUR TELEPHONE

THE scientists of Bell Telephone Laboratories, research unit of the Bell System, are paid to be dissatisfied with telephone service...to find better ways of furnishing it...to keep the cost of service low. Without their help, the men and women who give your telephone service here could not do their job so well.

1. The telephone had its birth nearly 60 years ago in a makeshift research laboratory, where Alexander Graham Bell watched a tiny straw attached to the eardrum from a human skull trace wavering lines on smoked glass. In the half-century and more since then, the history of the telephone has been told in the countless scientific problems that have been solved.

2. Bell Telephone Laboratories, the research arm of the telephone service, has contributed the developments that led to transcontinental and transoceanic telephone calls; that make possible 1800, instead of 50, pairs of wires in a single telephone cable; that allow, by using special equipment, for four simultaneous conversations over a single long distance line.

3. Entirely as by-products of this research, the scientists employed at the laboratories have invented an artificial larynx for persons deprived of speech by throat operations, produced many aids for the hard of hearing, and developed equipment for sending pictures over wires.

INVENTIONS of the research scientists at Bell Laboratories have been devoted, not to swelling profits, but to improvements and economies that have aided this company in giving good service at a fair cost to the telephone user.

This policy has been adopted in the belief that, as much from your standpoint as from our own, it is sound and workable. It is based upon the feeling that in an undertaking planned like the telephone service for the long pull, what is best for the telephone user is in the end the course that will bring us the surer, more enduring success.

WILL URGE WORLD PLANNED ECONOMY FOR AGRICULTURE

Tugwell, Dr. H. C. Taylor, Other American Delegates Go to International Institute at Rome.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 16.—A planned world economy in agriculture is suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture in a memorandum to be submitted to the biennial general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture, beginning Monday.

Rexford Tugwell, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, and Dr. Henry C. Taylor, former head of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, and now a delegate to the institute, will arrive tonight to lead the discussion for the department, assisted by six other American delegates.

The memorandum suggests discussion of "long-time planning as a means of avoiding in the future such maladjustments as have arisen in recent years."

"Consideration should be given to the problems which would be involved in an attempt to plan agricultural production in individual countries through international co-operation, in such a way as to avoid the maladjustments (overproduction, rapid fall of prices, etc.) which have greatly strengthened the tendency to raise trade barriers in recent years," the memorandum states.

Questions Involved.

"The connection between agricultural planning and economic planning in other fields is important, as is also the question of how far such planning is possible under the conditions and economic policies of the various countries existing at the present time.

"The possibility of adopting such measures depends largely on:

"1. Whether nations are willing to sacrifice certain domestic interests or demand nationalistic economic policies, and

"2. The extent to which governments will continue to assume control over economic activity in general."

The question of a planned world economy in agriculture is the most important on the agenda of the general assembly. A canvass of the delegates seems to indicate that it will be approved.

The suggestion for the change in the Institute's work is officially credited to the American delegate, Dr. Taylor. He already had put the idea through the Executive Committee of the Institute. He will make an extensive report outlining his idea in detail.

What Is Proposed.

The world planned economy in agriculture is designed to induce nations to grow or make almost exclusively the products they can grow or make best and cheapest and import from other countries the products those other countries make or grow best and cheapest.

As matters are at present, there are terrific disparities between one country and another in prices of agricultural products. An example of what Dr. Taylor is seeking to change is contained in an address at the end of September made by the German Minister Darre, who said: "In Germany agricultural prices are maintained at 300 per cent more than those in the world market. The new corporative regime, completed by the system of fixing prices, has avoided the catastrophe of the fall of agricultural prices."

Dr. Taylor's Argument.

Dr. Taylor, however, says in effect: "If it costs you three times more than the world market to grow your agricultural products, why not buy those products from agricultural countries and sell them manufactured products which you can produce cheaply."

He believes a planned world economy in agriculture, combined with a similar economy in industry, would raise the world's standard of living by permitting a freer international flow of trade at lower prices.

LEGISLATIVE ENTRIES ASKED FOR VIEWS ON REGISTRATION

Division of Chamber of Commerce Wants to Know if They Favor Permanent St. Louis System.

Questionnaires have been sent out by the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce to all candidates for the State Legislature, asking them to make known their attitude on the proposal to establish a system of permanent registration for the City of St. Louis.

All 44 candidates are asked whether they "favor the principle of permanent registration of the voters for the City of St. Louis," and whether, if elected, they will "aid in the passage of an adequate law by the Legislature for permanent registration of voters in St. Louis."

The Young Men's Division is conducting a movement for adoption of a system of permanent registration for this city. Franklin F. Wehrle, chairman of its Permanent Registration Committee, in a letter accompanying each of the questionnaires, stated that "a system of permanent registration will decrease voting frauds, save approximately $100,000 annually for the City of St. Louis, and add greatly to the convenience of the voters."

ANTI-FASCISTS MAKE DEMANDS ON GERMAN CONSULATE IN CITY

They Protest Against Trial in Berlin of Ernst Thaelmann, Communist.

Representatives of the American League Against War and Fascism, the International League for Peace and Freedom and other groups visited the German Consulate, 408 Pine street, yesterday noon, to protest against the trial in Berlin this week of Ernst Thaelmann, general secretary of the German Communist party.

They demanded that Consular officials cable to the Nazi People's Court, calling for immediate release of Thaelmann, granting to him of the right to choose his own counsel and cessation of "inhuman tortures" which the protestants said were practiced on Thaelmann and thousands of political and religious prisoners. The protests asserted that hired witnesses, falsified records and a forged "plan of insurrection" would be presented against Thaelmann.

A further demand on the Consular office was to stop Nazi activities here, cease inviting Nazi officials to St. Louis and quit making alleged payments to Nazi terrorist organizations and a German language newspaper.

GOVERNMENT INQUIRY IN GASOLINE PRICE WAR

Federal Investigator Hears Complaints of Independent Dealer at Belleville.

W. E. Gardner, special investigator for the Oil Division of the Department of the Interior, arrived here yesterday by plane to obtain first-hand information on the gasoline price war now being waged on the East Side between the major companies and low-cost independent dealers.

Gardner, sent here at the request of the Petroleum Association of Greater St. Louis, composed of 18 low-cost operators, conferred for there hours with the executive committee of that orgnaization at Belleville. Wallace Wright, member of the Illinois Stabilization Committee, also attended the meeting, which was closed to the press.

The Federal investigator declined to discuss the meeting before depeparting for Washington today. From other sources it was learned that the dealers promised to hold in abeyance for "a reasonable time" the threat to give up their Blue Eagles and abandon NRA wage and hour provisions, although demanding prompt intervention by the Government. The independents were reported to have charged that major oil companies are prepared to defy the Government, sell below cost and ultimately fix prices their own way after driving low-cost independents out of business. The low-cost operators demanded that a Federal mediator, with full authority to protect their interests, be sent to this area immediately.

Word From White House.

Prior to the arrival of Gardner the independents received the following communication from Louis McH.Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt: "This will acknowledge the receipt of the telegram of Oct. 11 from th Petroleum Association of Greater St. Louis. By direction of the President, the matter to which you refer is at once being brought to the attention of the Secretary of the Interior, who is Administrator of the Petroleum Industry Code."

The letter was in reply to a message to the President in which the independents threatened to abandon Blue Eagle operation. Similar messages were sent to Secretary of Interior Ickes, the Federal Trade Commission and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Comparative Prices.

Activity in the price war has centered in the "regular" grade gasoline, which is now selling in East Side towns at 9.5 and 9.9 cents a gallon, as compared with 16.4 two weeks ago. There is practically no market for ethyl gasoline, at 18.4 cents a gallon, or for third-grade, formerly the cheapest, at 15 cents the gallon.

One East St. Louis independent dealer sold out gasoline on hand at 7 cents a gallon and closed his station pending anticipated Government intervention. East Side wholesale dealers reported losing an average of 5½ cents on every gallon of gasoline sold at this time. Losses are beginning to run into the thousands of dollars, one wholesaler stated.

CHAUFFEUR ATTACKED BY TWO MEN AND ROBBED OF $30

Dragged Into Alley and Choked —Tourist Loses Clothing and Cash.

Charles Gage, chauffeur, 4609A McMillan avenue, was dragged into an alley on Walton avenue, north of Delmar boulevard, at 11:30 o'clock last night by two men, who choked him and fled with his wallet containing $30 and two hunting licenses.

George Hubert, Beloit, Wis., reported that a suit case containing clothing valued at $80 and $20 cash was stolen from his automobile, parked on Delmar boulevard near Grand boulevard, last night. The thief forced a door of the car. The money was sewed in a pair of trousers.

Leslie Rossiter, manager of the Addressograph Sales Agency, 315 North Tenth street, reported that a man, who selected $1830 worth of equipment yesterday afternoon, stole $20 from a desk and fled. The man took the money while Rossiter was getting him a blank check.

TYPHOON STRIKES MANILA; 5 KILLED, HEAVY DAMAGE

Thousands Homeless After Five-Hour Storm in Philippine Capital — Streets, Parks Flooded.

11-INCH RAIN FALLS IN 24 HOURS

Business at a Standstill Due to Lack of Power Service — Four Vessels Driven Ashore.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 16.—Five persons were drowned and thousands were left homeless by a typhoon which struck Manila early today. The drownings were all in one section of the city.

"It seems a miracle that there are not numerous deaths, in view of the falling roofs, trees and poles," said Governor-General Frank Murphy after a survey of the city. "Everything has been done that can be done to prevent suffering." He said estimates of damage in Manila alone varied from $250,000 to $2,500,000.

No reliable source attempted to estimate the extent of damage north of the city, where the gale reached its height as it roared across Luzon Island, ripping thatched huts to bits, flooding roads and blowing down power and communication plants.

Eleven and a half inches of rain fell in the city in the 24 hours ended at 4 p. m. today, the Weather Bureau reported, with showers still falling tonight.

The Damage in Manila.

Unlike the smaller typhoons which preceded it in recent weeks, the tropical storm struck without warning. Filipino, European and American residents awoke in the midst of a howling storm, which continued for five hours.

Manila was a scene of desolation today as convicts, police and city workmen joined to clear debris-strewn streets. Streets and parks were flooded. Thousands of trees were uprooted by the 57-mile-an-hour wind. Four ships were washed ashore. Telephone and telegraph poles were blown down. Business and transportation were at a standstill. Without power, newspapers did not publish.

After his survey of the damage, Murphy announced Secretary of Finance Antonio de Las Alas would release $500,000 for relief in the city and other affected districts. He declared the day a bank holiday and ordered police to take prisoners from Bilidid, the insular penitentiary, to aid city workmen in clearing the streets.

Grounds of the Alacanan Palace were virtual lakes. The suburban home of Col. Frederick W. Manley, the Governor-General's aid, was unroofed, ruining the trousseau of his daughter, Helen Manley, of Manila and Washington, D. C. She is to marry Lieut. Max Sherred Johnson Saturday.

Liner's Sailing Canceled.

Ships had no time to leave their anchorages behind the breakwater and seek safety in broad Manila Bay. The round-the-world Dollar liner President Johnson remained lashed to its pier, but escaped damage. However, its midnight sailing was canceled.

The heaviest marine damage was to the American freighter Gertrude Kellogg, a 5063-ton ship washed ashore between two piers. Both the Gertrude Kellogg and the 2693-ton American-owned salvage vessel Atlantic Gulf probably will be refloated.

Little hope was held for salvaging two small inter-island craft, the Ulysses and the Gregory, which also were stranded.

Numerous small craft also were washed ashore.

Damage North of Manila.

A correspondent of the Manila Tribune estimated 10,000 Filipinos were left homeless in Bulucan Province, north of Manila. He reported 2000 small, thatched houses were blown down and many persons were injured. He had no reports of fatalities.

Father Miguel Selga, director of the weather observatory, said the typhoon was among the most severe ever recorded here, but he recalled the wind reached a velocity of 122 miles an hour in 1882, more than double the fury of today's storm. He compared the power of the latest typhoon to that of gales in 1905, 1919 and 1921, all of which caused heavy damage and took a toll of lives.

The storm today was one of a series of seasonal typhoons which have swept Luzon in recent weeks. Thirty-nine Filipinos were killed in a tropical hurricane 10 days ago.

Declares United States Is Losing Its Cotton Export Market to Japan

Member of Textile Association Tells Tariff Committee Oriental Nation "Is Spreading Out All Over Latin America."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A story of the United States surrendering its cotton textile markets in Latin America to Japan was told here yesterday as the United States prepared to conclude a reciprocal trade treaty with Haiti.

H. Lauten, representing the Textile Export Association of the United States before the Committee on Reciprocity Information, said the Japanese were making deep inroads into American textile markets because of better machinery, canny buying, quick assimilation of production experience, and labor costs one-fifth as much as those in this country. The committee is headed by Thomas Walker Page, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission.

Lauten said that prior to 1932 the United States sold the great bulk of the textiles bought by Haiti. But in the first eight months of 1934 Japan sold 15,323 packages of cotton goods in Haiti, while the United States sold only 1377. In September Japan's sales were 2900 packages and America's sales less than 100.

"The picture is the same elsewhere in Latin America," Lauten said. "Japan first went into the Haitian market. Now Japan is spreading out all over Latin America.

"That whole market is lost to us unless we can get the help of the Government."

Page interrupted to ask why Japan's cost per manufactured unit was so much less than 15 years ago.

That, Lauten explained, was because Japan had obtained better machinery than that used generally in the United States, had learned to mix cotton better, buy raw materials better, and had the advantage of lower labor costs.

ONE-STATE UNION NEAR, SAYS SENATOR LEWIS

He Declares Situation Will Result From Advancing of Relief Funds.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Dem.), Illinois, here in the interest of co-ordinating Democratic campaign issues, said yesterday he saw an "end of the sovereignty of states" close at hand and the establishment of one "state of the union."

This situation, he predicted, will result from refusal of states and political subdivisons to pay back to the Federal Government money advanced for relief. An impression that the Federal Government will not demand return of this money, he declared, "is erroneous."

To force the collection of these advanced funds, Lewis said, local governments will be abolished and the Federal Government will impose and collect all taxes, retaining for itself the amount of the advances. Taxes would be allocated back to the states according to their needs.

"I don't like to see such a system developed as I belong to the other school of thought," Lewis declared.

Lewis, as he visited Gov. George White, also said he saw "the possibility in the near future of a cancellation party demanding the cancellation of all debts created for relief purposes.' He also said there would be "strong advocacy for a national sales tax at the next session of Congress."

DOUMERGUE COMPLETES FRENCH CABINET CHANGES

Senator Henri Lemery of Martinique Named Minister of Justice.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Premier Doumergue completed his drastic Cabinet changes yesterday, naming Senator Henri Lemery of Martinique as Minister of Justice to succeed Henri Cheron, who resigned Saturday. Lemery inherits the task of completing the Stavisky investigation.

Pressure brought to bear on Cheron by the complicated Stavisky affair was generally regarded as the chief cause of his resignation, precipitated by the Marseilles assassinations.

Lemery was Undersecretary of State in the war Cabinet of Georges Clemenceau. He is a fiery orator, and made a speech against American war debt payment in the French Senate in 1932 at the time Premier Herriot fell while supporting payment.

Lemery is a skilled boxer and fencer. A Philadelphia heavyweight, "Blink" McCloskey, once trained him. He was born in Martinique in 1874. His parents were killed in the eruption of Mount Pelee in 1902.

King Leopold Opens Part of Canal.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 16.—King Leopold today formally opened the second section of the King Albert Canal. A large throng applauded him. The canal, linking Liege and Antwerp without passing through Dutch territory as does the present waterway, was started in 1930. It will be completed by 1937.

To Keep Signs Out of Parks.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The Outdoor Advertising Association of America, Inc., voted today to refrain from erecting signs in national, state or local parks. The association further agreed not to erect signs on the inside of road curves or near railway crossings in any fashion as to be a menace to public safety.

BYRD RESUMES ACTIVE COMMAND OF PARTY

Directs Affairs of Camp Again After Long Stay at Weather Base.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 15.—(By Mackay Radio.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today resumed active command of his expedition, after a long solitary sojourn at the Bolling advance weather base, 123 miles south of here.

On his return by airplane from the meteorological outpost, there were still visible on his face the effects of the illness he suffered. He rested a long time after the journey back to headquarters, but even before he arose from his bunk he began directing affairs of the camp and its several exploration expeditions. While still rolled up in his blankets, he received reports and issued instructions.

Pork Chops, Mashed Potatoes.

The men of this base made the commander's return the occasion for a dinner party, at which pork chops and mashed potatoes were served. Dr. Earl Perkins made a welcoming address and Byrd was asked to tell something of his life at the weather outpost.

"I have been through a wonderful experience," he replied. "In many ways my life has been enriched. No man can live alone for four and a half months of winter darkness on the coldest spot ever inhabited without learning something.

"Still, the finest part of it was the way the camp has carried on in my absence. You are ready now to undertake, after a year of preparation, the field work that called us down here. If we are successful, the credit will be yours."

Interested in Tractor Party.

Byrd was especially interested in the experiences of the tractor party headed by Harold I. June, now turning back to camp, after an expedition far to the east.

June reported last night that he was camped at latitude 77.54 south and longitude 148.30 west, at the foot of a mountain he believed to be Mount Grace McKinley. The peaks of the Edsel Ford range were in view to the north and east, and the mountain at which he was encamped was the most westerly of the range of peaks. June reported there were 42 mountain masses in view and that his elevation was about 3000 feet.

The tractor party, returning after a difficult journey, has left supplies for sledging parties which are to make more extensive explorations.

LEAGUE CALLS SPECIAL ASSEMBLY IN CHACO WAR

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 16.—Goaded by failure of conciliation efforts and apparently determined to halt the war in South America's Chaco Boreal, even if it requires resort to extreme penalties, the League of Nations yesterday convoked an extraordinary assembly for Nov. 20.

The action is the same as that taken in the Chinese-Japanese conflict when the assembly's expressed disapproval of Japan's military policies in Manchuria resulted in Japan giving notice of withdrawal from the League.

The decision was made by a consultative committee of 22 in which Russia made its bow as a working member.

Opposition to the step had come from Alberto N. Guani of Uruguay, whose nation lies close to the scene of the protracted border conflict between Paraguay and Bolivia. He argued that the American nations should have further opportunity to obtain a settlement by mediation.

SLAIN KING'S BODY LIES IN STATE IN YUGOSLAV CAPITAL

Thousands of Persons Stand in Rain to Pay Tribute to Alexander at Belgrade Palace.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Oct. 16.—In the marble hall of the royal palace, where King Alexander Obrenovitch and his Queen Draga were murdered and thrown from a window in 1903, Alexander I lay in state today.

At the head of his body, priests chanted prayers in the dim light. On the lid of his casket were his golden crown and his sword.

Thousands of Yugoslavs with bowed heads filed past the great bronze sarcophagus.

The lines of people waiting to pay homage to their King extended for miles. Many of them carried flowers, lighted candles, rosaries and prayer books.

A heavy, cold mist of the morning later turned to a fine rain driven by a cold, biting wind, wetting and chilling the thousands of mourners.

Sentinels on Guard.

The body rested on a high glass catafalque, banked with flowers and illuminated by candles. All night and throughout the day, honorary sentinels stood on guard beside their murdered King.

The new King, young Peter II, his mother, Queen Marie, and her mother, the Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, were the first to enter the King's palace this morning. The widowed Queen looked as though she were on the point of collapse.

After praying with tears running down their faces, the three returned to Peter's new castle on the heights beside the Danube where Peter walked out on a balcony to look out at the capital of his kingdom.

After the members of the royal family left the death chamber, the members of the regency, including Prince Paul, the members of the Cabinet, and high dignitaries in the state, the church and civil life filed past Alexander's coffin. Each made the sign of the cross and offered brief prayer as he passed.

The Duke of Kent, fourth son of King George of England, and his fiancee, Princess Marina of Greece, arrived today for the funeral. They departed immediately for Dedinje to visit the boy King and his widowed mother.

Body Arrives From Split.

Alexander's body, which arrived from Split shortly after last midnight, will lie in state until the funeral service Thursday.

Half a million Yugoslav and distinguished representatives of nearly every European nation, including many noblemen, crowded Belgrade today. All Belgrade was in deep mourning. King Carol of Rumania, brother-in-law of Alexander, was to arrive from Bucharest by train.

The only rays of light in the darkened, crape-draped capital last night came from the flickering candles carried by devout peasants. Sharp winds from the Danube caused the mourners to shiver in the cold, moonless, starless night. Many of them had been standing in the city's streets all day to pay their final tribute to Alexander.

The widowed Queen could be heard sobbing as her mother tried to console her when they knelt beside the casket.

Peter looked up at his mother and said bravely: "Mother, don't cry, be brave. Father is with God."

Bride Also Hit in Shower of Garden Truck During Meeting at Glasgow.

By the Associated Press.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 16. — Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, and frequently mentioned as a likely choice for the next Prime Minister, was pelted with eggs and tomatoes yesterday at a students' union meeting.

Mrs. Elliott, a recent bride, also was struck. Elliott suffered a direct hit on the head with a ripe tomato which spread over his face. The front of his coat was dripping with egg from a missile that broke on a screen over his head.

The curtain was drawn in front of the minister and his wife, but Elliott almost immediately returned to the stage to face the boisterous students alone. This was the signal for another fusillade, but Elliott stood his ground.

Order was restored after protests had been voiced against the behavior of a minority in the hall. Mrs. Elliott later returned to the platform, where her husband was given a good hearing during a speech devoted mainly to an attack on Socialists.

GAIN IN IRON AND STEEL EXPORTS TO SOUTH AMERICA

Increase for 10 Months of This Year Is 135,000 Tons, or 285 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A gain of 285.5 per cent in exports of iron and steel products to the 10 South American countries during the first eight months of this year over the same period last year is reported by the Department of Commerce.

Exports amounted to 182,447 gross tons, an increase of 135,115.

The increase, the department says, is due to better business conditions in South America, a general alleviation of the exchange situation and, with respect to the United States, the depreciated dollar.

CANDIDATE ASKS F.D.R. TO CALL OFF SON JAMES

Frank A. Goodwin Complains of His Activity in Massachusetts Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 16. — Frank A. Goodwin, Independent candidate for Governor, yesterday wrote to President Roosevelt that "it might be well" to keep his son, James, in Washington "until this campaign is over."

James Roosevelt at Worcester Sunday night said the administration approved the candidacy of Senator David I. Walsh for re-election and offered his own indorsement of James M. Curley, former Mayor of Boston, and now Democratic nominee for Governor.

"I know you will be grateful when I tell you that in the political circus now playing in Massachusetts, there is a side show operating with your son, James, on the outside advertising the show," wrote Goodwin, who was defeated for the gubernatorial nomination on both major tickets in the recent primary.

"On the inside is James M. Curley with one of your new deal coats on and a make-up which has created the illusion in the minds of thousands of morons that you are running for Governor of Massachusetts.

"Now, if you are a candidate for Governor we would like to know if you intend to end the insurance racket here and how you are going to lower the public utility rates and the real estate taxes.

"If you are not a candidate, tell your son James to take that new deal coat and false face away from Curley and bring them back to Washington. Let us have an honest campaign.

"P. S. It might be well to keep James in Washington until this campaign is over."

CAROL MAKES SECRET TRIP TO BELGRADE FOR FUNERAL

Newspapers in Rumania Forbidden to Announce King's First Absence Since He Took Throne.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 16.—King Carol is on his way to Belgrade today to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, King Alexander of Yugoslavia, but his subjects, with a few exceptions, do not know it. By Government order, newspapers were forbidden to mention the King's absence.

This is the first time King Carol has risked leaving Rumania since his seecrt return to seize the throne more than four years ago.

Apparently fearing that unauthorized decisions affecting affairs of state might be taken by the Government during his absence, he ordered before his secret departure last night that in his absence all decrees or acts requiring his signature must be submitted to the Ministerial Council subject to his own subsequent confirmation.

Prince Nichols of Rumania, who is accompanying the King, will go to Paris after Alexander's funeral to represent Carol at the funeral of former President Poincare.

Preliminary Naval Conference.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The United States' representatives came to England today for exploratory talks directed toward the 1935 naval conference. Norman H. Davis and Rear Admiral William H. Standley arrived at Plymouth on the Manhattan. They were met by the British Admirals Fullerton and Binney and immediately boarded a train bound for London.

JUDGESHIP HOLDS VOTERS' INTEREST IN FIRST CIRCUIT

Adair, Knox and Lewis County Democrats Still Bitter Over Their Fights in Primary.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 16.—The voters in the three counties comprising the First Judicial Circuit—Adair, Knox and Lewis—are much more concerned about who will be elected Circuit Judge than they are in the United States senatorship.

This was Cochran territory in the Democratic senatorial primary, Truman, the nominee, running third, and now there appears very little interest in Truman's candidacy, this being far from the Boss Pendergast influence from Kansas City. As for the Republicans, of whom there are few in the circuit, except in Adair County, they are not all aroused over returning Senator Patterson to Washington.

But the Circuit judgeship is another matter. On the Democratic side, there was a bitter [illegible] fight with five candidates in the field, and as a result of the victory of Walter A. Hilbert of Lewis County there has held over into the general election campaign some of the bitterness of the primary.

Close Struggle Expected.

Particularly in Adair County, the Republican nominee, Roland A. Zeigel has strong Democratic support, and, although the three counties usually return a comfortable Democratic majority, it seems now that Hilbert will have a close battle with some indications that Zeigel will win.

On the senatorship, on Congress, Supreme judgeships and State superintendent of Schools the three counties are virtually certain to return Democratic pluralities of something between the 1930 figure of 2385 and the 1932 figure of 5617, depending on the size of the total vote. A plurality of 3500 for the Democratic State candidates is the estimate most generally given by informed politicians here.

The money paid out of Federal and State funds for direct relief is expected to have a bearing on the vote in these purely rural counties, as well as elsewhere in the State. About eight one-half per cent of the population is on direct relief.

In a total population of 41,187 in the three counties, 970 families and 133 non-family individuals are now receiving Federal and State aid. According to Federal relief statisticians, the number of persons to a family averages about 3.5. This would mean 3528 persons on relief in the three counties.

Got $174,239 in Direct Relief.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Wolf Cry of "Liberty."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE working of the conservative mind is always an interesting phenomenon. Despite the most obvious transformations in the conditions of life, transformations in those factors which constitute the reality of the present as distinguished from the past, your reactionary resolutely turns his face backward to some bygone golden age and to the formulas which, very doubtfully, served for that blissful period.

In connection with the pronouncements of the Liberty League, I should like here to reproduce a set of principles in the same vein, referred to by Walter Rauschenbusch in "Christianizing the Social Order," published so long ago as 1912. Dr. Rauschenbusch quoted these principles, as declared by the American Liberty and Property Association and signed "by a number of individuals and corporations for whom I have the highest respect." The principles are:

1. As the proper function of government is to maintain equal liberty, we are opposed to all class legislation, whether directed against the rights of individuals or of corporations.

2. Every man has a right to labor at whatever useful occupation he chooses, and is entitled to all he earns by proper mental or physical exertion.

3. It is not the duty of the Government to save men from the results of their own improvidence, or to make them virtuous by law.

4. Our system of taxation should not discourage the accumulation of capital by taxing the results of superior ability, industry or thrift.

5. The best results to the community are attained under such open competition and personal liberty as does not interfere with the equal liberty of others.

To one of a new generation, whose teeth have been set on edge because our fathers partook of such grapes as the above, there is bitter irony in the present attempt to propagandize us with the same delusive doctrine of "liberty." The publicists for the American Liberty League and all of their kind ignore and pointedly evade the fact that, for the mass of men, the "rights" of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness are largely fictitious so long as economic injustice and insecurity obtain. However painful the experiments of the Roosevelt administration may be, it is at least trying to give us jobs, and the burden of proof will continue to rest on those gentlemen who got us into this mess. A thoroughly disillusioned generation is not going to be carried away by any wolf cry of an academic "liberty."

Fulton, Mo. A. LELAND JAMISON.

Sermonette.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial, "Dictators' Lives Are Cheap," and the accompanying cartoon by Fitzpatrick, may generally be applied to the lives of all of us. While we are all mere mortals, with the period of our duration on this earth a very short one at most, the difference is in the manner in which we have lived, and in the circumstances surrounding us at death. By the latter, I mean the feeling of those whom we know and with whom we have had dealings, whether they are sympathetic or antagonistic toward us.

It is the amount of good that we do for humanity, to offset our shortcomings, that determines whether we have been a benefit to mankind or have lived in vain. Regardless of any prestige created by wealth and power, we have accomplished little or nothing for the race if such position has been used to display arrogance and physical force rather than diplomatic persuasions in our relations with fellow men.

How much better it will be for the world if the stage is ever reached where people will be always mindful and respectful of one another in their dealings and actions. M. RADER.

Carinthian Travelogue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent letter column, a correspondent takes issue with American dailies that Latinize many of the distinctive Germanic names of Europe. He seems to have failed in locating that division of Austria proper which is known to the traveler as Carinthia. This political division of Austria lies secluded in the wonderful plateau surrounded on all sides by great mountain ranges.

The entire country presents a picture of great and wild confusion, of irregular mountains culminating in rugged peaks whitened by the snows of centuries, down whose naked and precipitous sides glaciers move to the rivers and valleys below. The Drave River skirts its southern boundary. Its largest city has a distinctive Germanic name, Klagenfurt.

Carinthia was added to Austria in about 1286, by the Dukes of the Hapsburg line. Duke Rudolph IV founded the University of Wien (Latinized Vienna). In territorial extent, Carinthia is very small, less than 5000 square miles. It was occupied by the Romans as far back as the time of Augustus, and roads and bridges were built by his soldiers. Many of the stories of Ganghofer are laid in this rugged country. Salzburg was called Juvavum by the Romans.

The good old city of Trier, whose changed name your correspondent deplores, is frequently called Treves; the name was long ago Latinized and in ecclesiastical lore is known as Trevirensis, abbreviated Treves.

FOR A NATIONAL CORPORATIONS LAW.

The question of a Federal incorporation law in place of the various and widely differing state statutes in this field has come to the fore again.

A few days ago, Senator Borah advocated the enactment of such a law by Congress as a means of protecting investors and as an aid in preventing the concentration of wealth in too few hands. The final chapter of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee's report on its investigation into the practices of the American financial world urges legislation of the same character. The committee's report proposes a national incorporation law to restrain holding companies and investment trusts from dubious practices.

This issue, of course, is not new. When Senator Norris of Nebraska a year and a half ago hung up his graphic Wall Street spider web chart in the Senate to show his colleagues how the wealth of the United States had become concentrated, and then came out for an act of Congress giving the Federal Trade Commission powers of corporation charter permit and revocation, he was renewing a campaign which far-seeing critics of American business methods launched long ago.

The demand for a national corporations law arose from what A. A. Berle Jr. and Gardiner C. Means of Columbia University, authors of "The Modern Corporation and Private Property," have described as the slow abdication by the states of control over corporations in the last century. Some few states had sought to exert proper control over corporations. Others treated the matter with more or less indifference. Still others, for the sake of revenue to be derived thereby, frankly made a bid for the establishment of corporations under their statutes. Naturally, the broad corporate powers granted by the "corporation-mongers," as these states came to be called, attracted those promoters who had little or no concern for the safety of the rapidly increasing amount of "other people's money," to use Justice Brandeis' fine phrase, entrusted to their care.

The wide-open statutes enacted by such states as New Jersey led the late Frederick W. Lehmann of St. Louis, Solicitor-General of the Taft administration, to take up the cause of a national corporations law a quarter-century ago. Championing the idea before the Bankers' Club of Chicago, in 1910, he said that the national Government, having the power to deal with the corporation, should do so. "The states neither can nor will."

One state requires honest capitalization (he said); another leaves it to the directors to fix what value they please upon the property for which they issue their stock. Mississippi limits the capital of an industrial corporation to $2,000,000; Missouri permits $50,000,000 and Montana imposes no limit whatever. Mississippi prohibits any corporation from holding the shares of another. Missouri permits it to some companies and Montana to all. However clear the final interest of every state to adopt the safe system, the immediate interest of some state will appear otherwise.

Changes which may have come with the passing of 24 years in the corporations statutes of the three states which Mr. Lehmann cited to the Chicago bankers will affect his illustration only in its particulars. Generally speaking, the situation is still the same, and the names of the "corporation-monger" states of the present can be cited as proof. It is just as true today as it was then that a foreign corporation can do business with the people of a state without that state's consent. Indeed, the evil which aroused Mr. Lehmann is the graver now because of the immense growth in corporate wealth and power in recent years.

The argument against a national corporations law brought out by those who oppose such control was effectively answered by Mr. Lehmann. We quote again from his address before the Chicago bankers:

> It is absurd to say that one state may be safely trusted to charter corporations with power to conduct business throughout the entire country and with investors in every state of the Union but that the United States cannot be trusted with like power. In either case, the power may be abused, but how much more probable is such abuse when the power is exercised by a part over the whole with reference to the special benefit of the part, than when it is exercised by the whole, equally over, equally for the benefit of every part.

The problem of preventing the domination of the state by the corporation challenges the best thinking in the United States today. We have no way of knowing how much good could be accomplished by the enactment of a corporations law by Congress, but even a brief survey of the present chaotic situation bears out the view that such a law would be a long step in the right direction. With leaders in the upper chamber of Congress joining hands in favor of such a law, we can expect to hear much more about it in the near future.

MANNA FOR THE DRYS.

If it is true that the brewers are again putting men in the saloon business, as related in the hearing of a divorce suit, the dry leaders may sit down and take it easy. The brewers will give us prohibition again, just as they did before.

ARCHEOLOGICAL NOTE.

We should like to take time out, during the current revelations of primary election scandals in St. Louis, to show that the disclosures were made possible by a campaign conducted in 1921 by the Missouri Women's Legislative Committee. This committee was composed of representatives of the Missouri League of Women Voters, the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, the Women's State Bar Association and other women's organizations, who felt that the extension of suffrage to women, which had just been granted, called for the performance of a conspicuous public service. They hit upon the 1909 primary election law as offering the opportunity and employed Joseph M. Jamison, St. Louis attorney, to draft certain amendments to it, which have proved to be of great value.

One of these amendments authorized the courts to compel the production of ballots cast in primary elections for use in evidence in criminal prosecutions against officials and others charged with fraud. Another provided that courts may compel the production of primary ballots for examination and inspection by grand jurors. Under the first, it became possible, in the election contests now proceeding, to open the ballot boxes and recount the votes. Under the second, the present grand jury may check the sweeping charges of registration irregularities recently made by the Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee.

Prior to the campaign of the Missouri Women's Legislative Committee in 1921, no provision existed for registration immediately prior to the August primary election, which meant the disfranchising of from 25,000 to 60,000 voters. One of the amendments remedied this by providing for a supplemental registration before the primary. Still another—one which the Board of Election Commissioners may find highly useful now—authorized the board, when it is unable to find competent election officials in any given precinct, to make appointments from other precincts.

We engage in this bit of archeology, not only to award a well-deserved palm, but to show the benefit to the public that follows from vigilant attention of citizens to the details of government.

RAYMOND POINCARE.

France has lost one of her most useful public men, a great patriot and a wise leader, in the death of Raymond Poincare. He had given almost a half-century of his 74 years to serving his country, and his keenly logical mind had helped France through several of the most dangerous crises in her modern history. At times, his own people turned against him; on other occasions, world opinion dissented severely from his policies, but he pressed implacably ahead. The French Parliament, in formal tribute, declared he had "deserved well of the fatherland," a verdict that stands in France today and may be broadened to include the world.

Always a fervent nationalist, Poincare yet sought, according to his lights, to maintain peace. As Premier and Foreign Minister, before the World War, he saw the gathering clouds, and moved to insure his country's safety by increasing its military strength and its foreign alliances, while maintaining friendly relations with rival Powers. Critics have accused him of helping foster the fatal arming of Europe and the network of intrigue, yet his work in smoothing several pre-war crises attests the sincerity of his peaceful intentions. In late July, 1914, he vainly sought a firm declaration from England against the Central Powers that might again have postponed, though it probably could not have averted, the World War.

As President, and notably in war days, Poincare was never the traditional figurehead. He pressed the conflict with unfaltering courage, through dark days when France's spirit wavered. Bolstering the morale of soldiers and citizens, he put aside personal animosity to place in power Clemenceau, "the Father of Victory." After the war, when he was again Premier, Poincare ordered the Ruhr invasion, which Germany met by a disconcerting passive resistance. The move was widely criticised, but it was dictated by Poincare's stern determination, his resolve to make the recent military enemy live up to the letter of the treaty. He served France to better advantage in 1926, when he pitted his resourceful mind against the economic enemy and "saved" the franc. It was a successful stabilization effort in a period verging on chaos, and it alone would assure the undying gratitude of his country.

Poincare typified the best and less spectacular side of the French character and intellect. His coldly logical personality aroused no such enthusiasm as did the firebrands, but his record of accomplishment will endure. Perhaps he inspired little love as a popular leader, but, even in temporary eclipse, he was respected. Grief comes to France a second time within less than a week, for the last of her great war figures has departed soon after the assassination of a still active collaborator and successor, Louis Barthou.

A PROMISING LEAD.

Scores of bombings have occurred in St. Louis and St. Louis County in the past few years without a single arrest. Now, at last, through the vigilance of Ralph Barthels, a private citizen, a promising lead has been given the police and the public expects them to make the most of it.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGE A CRIME.

Senator Borah continues on his Idaho tour. Brief reports appear in the news columns from time to time of speeches made in obscure places. The other day Nampa was the date-line. Nampa, Idaho—as vague to most of us as that shabby Iberian village which Caesar put forever into legend.

It will hardly be disputed that Mr. Borah is the first man in any Idaho community. In point of intellectual independence he is, perhaps, second to none anywhere. The Idaho circuit is of his own choosing. The Republican National Committee would gladly and gratefully arrange for him, in theatrical parlance, the "big-time" itinerary. The complimentary overture has been declined.

At Nampa, Mr. Borah, pursuing his present quarry, monopoly, stressed as a consequence the concentration of wealth in a few hands. Those immense fortunes, which he pronounced as wholly evil, were mostly acquired, he said, through advantages given by the law. In his calculation, he allowed 10 per cent to business genius, the remainder to special privilege. Those inequitable laws and policies he charged impartially to both of the major parties. His arraignment of such vast wealth, blighting the possessors and pauperizing the dispossessed, was sweepingly severe.

In far different circumstances, a prophecy has recently been ventured into which may be read affirmation of Mr. Borah's sentiments. The place was Williamstown, Mass., the occasion the induction of Dr. Tyler Dennett into the presidency of Williams College. Dr. Dennett's inaugural address was, of course, marked by the clarity, vitality and felicity to be expected from so distinguished a man of letters. It was a message, we feel sure, the student body was yearning to hear. The striking expression, occurring in a prefatory discussion of the college as a corporation, was this:

> The college of course must comply with the rules of law and simple honesty; but in its relations with students, with instructors and with the public generally, it must go beyond that in the maintenance of standards of humane business practice. Students passing through an educational institution which violates the code of generous, humane practice will be ill prepared to take up citizenship in a world where, whether you like it or not, the possession of special privilege is more and more going to be regarded as a crime.

Reassuring words. Sufficient to convince its young and aging sons that the destiny of that old college has been placed in trustworthy and capable hands. One can imagine the tall and stately elms nodding approval. There are those who know that the immortals of Williams—Hopkins, Bascom, Perry—must have joined in the applause.

Admiral Byrd has returned to Little America, which is having a much balmier October than New England.

ENTHRONED!

—From the Brooklyn Eagle.

"We Must Scrap the Grade Crossing!"

Every six hours a motorist is killed at one of our 240,000 grade crossings, and toll will be greater with use of high-speed trains; huge cost of separating grades delays remedy, however; writer urges closing many little-used roads and streets; thinks railroads then will aid, and job can be finished as a "great PWA project."

Russell Holt Peters in the Forum.

MILLIONS of words have been written protesting the existence of grade crossings. It is only reasonable that such vehement and sustained condemnation should bring a certain amount of correction. Nevertheless, there are still in this country 240,000 level crossings, every one a potential death trap.

The railroads have hitherto had no great reason to be interested, for they must set aside the human angle and figure in cold dollars and cents. The damage a farmer and his team may inflict on a locomotive is negligible; but the damage a grade separation can do to a railroad's pocketbook is an item that brings shrill protests from the wealthiest lines.

It happens that there has never been a time when the chances for successful action were greater. A number of factors, none of which existed until a short time ago, make it seem possible that the grade crossing is at last on its way out.

In the first place, the railroads, once so secure from damage in crossing accidents, must now take an increasing interest in this danger of the grade crossing. Until this year, the advantage at the crossing was overwhelmingly in favor of the locomotive. In 1932, for example, when 1310 motorists died on grade crossings, only two trainmen were killed at the same time.

* * *

But with the development of the new high-speed trains, this advantage is going to dwindle sharply. It is one thing to race into a two-ton automobile with a 300-ton locomotive, backed by as many as a dozen 80-ton coaches, and quite another to do the job with 85 tons, the approximate weight of the new speed trains, complete. Moreover, the automotive equipment now using our highways is increasing in weight. Some of the huge trucks, with their broods of trailers, run up to 10 or 12 tons. Such an apparatus is quite a foeman for a standard train running at 40 or 50 miles an hour; for the light speed trains traveling around 80 or even 90, it is a real threat.

For that reason, railroads are more receptive to a grade-crossing program than ever before, even if they are not financially capable of instituting such a program.

Estimates of the cost of eliminating all grade crossings run from 20 to 30 billion dollars. As the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said in a recent editorial: "What a public works project that would be in the United States!" What a project, indeed, but what a fantastic expenditure.

In the first place, it is extremely doubtful if a crossing-elimination program is worth that much. Even certain members of the National Safety Council, whose first and foremost thought is safety, are inclined to think not. In the second place, the United States could, with a little intelligence and some unselfishness, solve the greatest part of its grade-crossing problem at a fraction of that figure.

Much of the trouble would disappear by the simple expedient of eliminating a number of the roads that now cross the tracks. This country needs not more but fewer roads. Our present highway system was created before an automobile was ever conceived, let alone manufactured. And much of our trouble may be laid directly to our endeavor to fit a horse-and-buggy highway plan to modern high-speed transportation.

From Ohio west, the country is networked with "section roads," many of which cross railroad tracks. Section roads are a mile apart, and 30 years ago those who used them would have suffered a real inconvenience if they had been shut off by the railroad. But that situation does not exist today. There is no reason under the sun, except the selfishness of various individuals, why three-fourths of these section roads which now cross the railroads should not end in a fence at the crossing. After all, if their users are forced to travel three miles to a railroad crossing, they will have consumed only five or six minutes, at the most, in their automobiles.

The same situation exists in towns along the rights of way. One town of 10,000 sends 12 streets across the main line of a great transcontinental railroad within two miles. Such a situation is absurd. Three or possibly four crossings would adequately serve. This condition can be found in hundreds of other towns and cities.

These small, infrequently traveled roads are the real danger spots, both to the railroad and to the motorist. Figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission tell the story. Of the 3453 grade-crossing accidents in 1932, 2252, or about 65 per cent, occurred at unprotected crossings.

Coupled with a program of closures must go a program of protecting remaining crossings, through signals or gates or through overpasses or underpasses.

* * *

Obviously, the ideal solution is separation of rail from road, but such separations are costly. The most inexpensive overpass, built under the most favorable conditions, costs in the neighborhood of $25,000. Probably we shall have to content ourselves with warning signals on secondary roads.

Presumably the railroads, relieved of many of their crossings, will lend a sympathetic ear to absorbing part of the expense of protecting remaining crossings. And the separations may well be considered as a great PWA project. However, it will not be a project involving 20 billion dollars, but one that may be undertaken for a sum commensurate with the benefits gained.

Such a program must come if we are to capitalize to the fullest extent upon our great highway system and our great railroad system. Given such a program, the nation need no longer estimate that a motorist will die every six hours on a railroad crossing. And with it, the 150-mile-an-hour train racing across the country in 30 hours ceases to be the vision of a dreamer and becomes a possibility.

We MUST scrap the grade crossings. They are an anachronism, in disharmony with our present system of transportation. No case can be made for them except on the basis of their cost of removal. And when that is removed—and it can be removed—their justification ceases. Here is a challenge to public-spirited citizens looking for a cause. They will have difficulty finding another more worthy.

Awakening of the Bar

From the Baltimore Sun.

THE reawakening of the conscience of the legal profession throughout the country to its responsibilities for improving the standards of the bar as well as the bench has been a noteworthy development of the past two years. There has been an unusual exhibition of interest in bar associations in many cities in supplying leadership to the electorate in selection of Judges and in every instance, stress is laid on the wisdom of ignoring party affiliations in casting ballots in judiciary elections.

In this city, our own bar association is taking a similar stand, and has come out openly against a Democratic nominee who, it holds, is deficient in professional training.

But it is not only in relation to the bench that these associations are making commendable efforts to improve standards. There has been marked increase in the vigor with which they are endeavoring to clean out of the profession those unworthy members who bring discredit upon it.

At the present time in Philadelphia, a special committee of the bar association is making an investigation of the connections of members of the bar who are alleged to be "the hired men of racketeers," with an intimation that when the inquiry is completed, the names of the offenders will be made public and summary action taken against them.

In a number of other cities, similar attention is being centered upon devious legal practices which heretofore have been passed over with little more than a vague general rebuke in a little-read annual report. It is a wholesome development and promises worthwhile accomplishment.

KING PETER II.

From the Pittsburgh Press.

OF the few surviving kings of the earth, pity most King Peter II of Yugoslavia. This lad of 11 went to bed last Tuesday night thinking himself a boy among boys at an English school in Surrey. He awoke Wednesday morning to find himself "ruler" over 14,000,000 turbulent Balkan subjects and a land known as Europe's powder keg. By a bullet that had slain his father, little Peter had become "Your Majesty." As he left England for his precarious throne, he said good-by not only to his playmates and fellow Boy Scouts, but to boyhood and equality. No wonder his face was pinched and white as he was led away under guard to become a prisoner in a castle, the pawn of dictators and diplomats.

Of all the figures in the somber drama being acted in Southern Europe, the most pathetic is that of the little Serb monarch who would rather be playing Rugby or badminton in England. Every boy will wish him what happiness he can snatch from a life that seems to hold small promise of anything but tragedy.

MISS PERKINS' NEW HAT.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

MISS PERKINS, Secretary of Labor, is wearing a new hat, gift of the United Hatters' Union. Women of the nation may be interested in knowing that it is of black felt with a brim that turns up on one side and down on the other and is decorated with two bows and a silver buckle. The recipient pronounces the new hat most becoming, and of a type that she hadn't realized she could wear.

The incident is recommended for study to the hatters' union in England—if England has one. What a fallow field for ingenuity could be found in evolving a chic little creation for the Queen!

BORI AT HER FINEST SINGING 'LA BOHEME'

Vocally and Emotionally She Realizes Role in Opera at Auditorium.

BY THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE forces of the St. Louis Grand Opera Company reached a high and moving pitch of distinction last night at the Municipal Auditorium when they presented Puccini's four-act opera, "La Boheme." The vitality of the production was reflected in every part. Principals, ensemble, orchestra and conductor reinforced each other in achieving a clear articulation of this fragmentary, sentimental, but still affecting musical narrative. And Mme. Lucrezia Bori never sang better.

Ordinarily "La Boheme" might be described as a tragedy of engaging puppets, but under the touch of Mme. Bori it somehow became infused with that haunting mystery of life that hangs over all authentic works of art. The frail midinette became the embodiment of ephemeral beauty—the essence of something that is too poignant to last. It was a characterization that was fused and complete. The expression of an idea that started as a gesture of the hand had its fulfilment in the turn of a phrase.

Madame Bori exhibited every characteristic of great singing. Her voice was consistently true in pitch and pure in quality and her skill in imparting a delicate color to its texture, as well as her gem-like phrases, her flowing, vocal line and her subtle dynamics would have enabled her to fill out the portrait without the aid of a single appeal to the eye. But the visual aspects of her portraya. were just as finished. And her sense of the ensemble was such that when the course of the dialogue passed from her to another performer she helped in maintaining the interest of her succeeding passage.

The other members of the cast also performed in a highly effective fashion. Mario Chamlee's singing was not so completely free from tightness as on Saturday evening but he gave a broad, expansive quality to the role of Rodolfo. Alfredo Gandolfi was in fine voice and played Marcello with a enkindling zest. Whether it was because Mr. Gandolfi was just beginning to find himself or because this was the first time he had been cast in a congenial role, he had a freedom and force that made his performance the best he has done in St. Louis. Lucy Monroe repeated the excellent impression she made last year as Musetta. The difference between her treatment of that role and that of Micaela showed that she had dug under the surface of both for an essential motivation.

Guido Guidi was an excellent Colline and impressed the audience favorably with his "Song of the Coat" in the last act and Wilfred Engelman filled out the picture presented by the four Bohemians with a spirited playing of the part of Schaunard.

The chorus sang especially well in the second act and Maestro Papi, as usual, preserved the necessary balance and continuity throughout the performance.

The next opera to be performed in the fall series is Verdi's "Forza del Destino" which will be given Wednesday evening and which will feature Elisabeth Rethberg Giovanni Martinelli and Coe Glade.

RICHARD L. SPRAGUE DIES; U. S. CONSUL AT GIBRALTAR

Post Had Been in His Family for 102 Years; He Was Last of Line.

By the Associated Press.

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 16.—Richard L. Sprague, United States Consul at Gibraltar, a post which has been in his family for 102 years, died today. He was 62 years old. He suffered a sudden attack of diabetes early this month which necessitated an emergency operation.

He was the third in the line of Spragues to serve as consul at Gibraltar. The first was Horatio Sprague, appointed by President Jackson, April 30, 1832. He held the office until his death in 1848, when President Polk appointed his son, Horatio Jones Sprague, who was born in Gibraltar. He served as Consul for 53 years until his death there in 1901. His son, Richard, succeeded him to the post, having previously held the position of Vice-Consul.

Richard Sprague was to have retired automatically May 26, 1936. He had no sons, thus ending the family succession.

DR. ELMER BURRITT BRYAN, PRESIDENT OF OHIO U., DIES

Directed Educational Work in Philippine Island for Many Years.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—Dr. Elmer Burritt Bryan, president of Ohio University, at Athens, O., died yesterday in Henry Ford Hospital after being ill for three weeks. He was 69 years old.

Dr. Frank Sladen said death was caused by a thrombosis in the cerebral vessels.

Dr. Bryan, who first taught in a Kokomo (Ind.) high school, had been president of Franklin (Ind.) College and Colgate University. Born in Van Wert, O., he was educated in Indiana and took postgraduate work at Harvard and Clark Universities. For many years he directed educational work in the Philippine Islands.

He is survived by his widow and three children, Julius Scott Bryan of Pelham, N. Y.; Mrs. Helen Sater of Summit, N. J., and Mrs. Florence Bryan Belcher of Houston, Tex.

Closing Time for Foreign Mail.

Closing time for parcel post for Great Britain and full European mails will be p. m. tomorrow. Later full European mails will close at 9 p. m. Thursday at the Main Postoffice, Eighteenth and Walnut streets.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE first debutante tea of the season will be given from 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon when Miss Jane Caulfield, daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Henry Stewart Caulfield, 6253 Washington boulevard, will make her bow at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Among the outlof-town guests will be Mrs. Guy B. Park of Jefferson City, wife of the present Governor.

The floral decorations and the tea table appointments will be pink, Mrs. Lucien Galena, Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Clarence Barksdale, daughters of former Gov. and Mrs. Caulfield, will assist their mother and sister in receiving. Miss Caulfield will wear an afternoon gown of pale pink crinkled crepe made with a square off-the-shoulder neck line and long sleeves that come to a point over the hand. The clinging skirt falls into a short train. She will carry a bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Caulfield will be gowned in aquamarine heavy crepe with long tight sleeves and a short pointed train. She will wear a shoulder bouquet of white orchids. Mrs. Galena will wear a gown of blistered satin of plum shade, trimmed with gold cloth flowers at the neck line and a girdle of gold cloth. Mrs. Barksdale will be gowned in light blue crepe and will wear a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

There will be two tea tables decorated with pink blossoms and lighted by pink tapers in silver candelabra. The following debutantes will serve: Miss Jane Wells, Miss Frances Garneau Bates, Miss Blair Boyle, Miss Lucie Mackay, Miss Adelaide and Miss Katherine Mahaffey, Miss Gladys McRee, Miss Nancy Mitchell, Miss Ruth Duhme, Miss Lois Burkham, Miss Peggy Cabell, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Jacqueline Busch Jones, Miss Anne Woolsey, Miss Mary Josephine Wagner, Miss Athlea Hickey, Miss Katherine Miller, Miss Elizabeth Russe, Miss Marjorie Henger and Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe.

The out-of-town guests, in addition to Mrs. Park, will be: Mrs. Frank Atwood, Mrs. Howard Church and Mrs. Hugh Steffens, all of Jefferson City; Mrs. William Jonothan Delano of St. James; Mrs. Charles Barker of Bonne Terre; Mrs. Kossuth Weber of Farmington; and Mrs. Estelle Mahan of Hannibal, who was a classmate of Miss Caulfield at Smith College.

Mrs. Nelson B. Gatch, 5086 Westminster place, gave a luncheon today at the St. Louis Country Club in honor of Miss Anne Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, 6464 Ellenwood avenue. The debutantes' table was decorated with a large centerpiece of white fall flowers and white tapers. The guests included: Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Marjorie Boettler, Miss Lucie Mackay, Miss Peggy Cabell, Miss Blair Boyle, Miss Stella Cartwright, Miss Louise Kennard, Miss Anne Woolsey, Miss Katherine and Miss Adelaide Mahaffey, Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe, Miss Frances Bates, Miss Alice Sullivan, Miss Dorothy Dobson, Miss Genevieve Lamy, Miss Gladys McRee, Miss Lois Burkham, Miss Betty Noland, Miss Helen Franklin, Miss Jane Wells and Miss Florence Curry.

Mrs. Gatch had as her guests at a smaller table Mrs. Lockwood Hill, Mrs. Hayward H. Gatch and Mrs. Thomas Francis.

A debutante luncheon will be given by Mrs. Hord Hardin, 6338 Washington boulevard, at Glen Echo Country Club Friday, Nov. 2, for Miss Betty King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William King, 5360 Washington boulevard.

Invitations were received yesterday from Mrs. Franklin Miller, 1117 McCausland avenue, for the debut tea of her daughter, Miss Katherine Barnes Miller, which will be given at the St. Louis College Club Monday afternoon, Oct. 29.

Mrs. Edmund A. B. Garesche Jr. and Mrs. James Boyd Hill have issued invitations for a luncheon at the St. Louis Woman's Club Monday, Nov. 5, in honor of Miss Althea Hickey, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Hickey, 10 Crestwood drive.

Invitations were also received from Mrs. James W. Garneau of the St. Regis Apartments for a tea at the St. Louis Woman's Club Tuesday, Oct. 30, from 4 until 6 o'clock in honor of Miss Frances Garneau Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bates, 5915 Lindell boulevard, a debutante of the season.

The wedding of Miss Maxine Judd Silver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Silver of Boston, and Robert M. Cronbach, sculptor, of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cronbach, 46 Washington terrace, took place Friday, Oct. 12, in Philadelphia. The bride attended Bryn Mawr and Radcliffe Colleges. Mr. Cronbach attended Washington University and the Pennsylvania Academy. Mrs. Cronbach attended the wedding which was informal.

An informal reception will be given for Vera Brittain, English author, following her lecture, "Should Autobiographies Be Forbidden?" at the Wednesday Club tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Priwer, 5062 Maple avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy, and Ephriam Miller of Montreal. The wedding will take place in January. Miss Priwer received her Master's Degree from Washington University in 1932.

ALDERMEN TO TAKE UP AUDITORIUM DISPUTE

Wrangle Over Using Opera House for Road Shows at a Standstill.

The controversy over the use of the new Municipal Auditorium Opera House for the presentation of the regular run of theatrical shows has reached a standstill, at least until the meeting of the Board of Aldermen Friday.

Alderman Waldman of the Twenty-eighth Ward, has said that he would introduce a bill condemning the leasing of the Opera House to the Ziegfeld Follies the week of Nov. 4 as unfair competition with private theatrical interests.

Meanwhile Manager James E. Darst of the Auditorium said that the contract to the Follies has been let, the first payment has been made, and, added, "as far as I know they're coming here Nov. 4."

Managers and representatives from 12 theaters met yesterday at the Fox Theater and protested against the leasing. They said they would lodge a formal protest with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and, if necessary, take the legal action they could. Darst has said that the board heard the protest of Paul Beisman, manager of the American Theater, before the lease was granted but sanctiond the lease anyway.

Darst said he had canvassed the use of municipal auditoriums in other cities and found that regular theatrical performances were given in them. As to the management of the Auditorium here, he said there were three alternatives: "Using it as they do in other cities and making it pay; closing it up altogether; or running it at a deficit of approximately $150,000 a year."

"If the tax-payers really want a white elephant on their hands," he said, "let them follow to a logical conclusion the claim of Alderman Waldman and others. If only public gatherings are permitted which do not compete with a private enterprise, then the Auditorium's doors must be closed to Grand Opera, Symphony concerts, expositions, lectures, and any event given for private gain."

"The time for the owners of theatrical real estate to protest was several years ago when the Auditorium was first proposed. If they did protest then, the people overruled them by a large vote and rightly so, because a municipal auditorium had become a civic necessity. It brings business attractions and visitors to a city that would not otherwise come.

"In setting up a policy for the management, the Auditorium Commission and the Board of Estimate decided that the sane middle-ground was to make as much use of the building as possible without unduly and unfairly competing with existing private business. If this course is followed there is a reasonable hope of making the operation of the Auditorium self-sustaining; in other words, not making the tax payers carry an additional burden."

As to the specific booking of the Follies, Darst said that J. J. Shubert, producer of the Follies, told him that the Follies would not play here unless they could obtain the Auditorium. He said the low top price possible in the Auditorium would make it profitable for them to come here.

Beisman, told of Darst's statement, said that as far as he knew there "isn't another large city where the municipal auditorium is used for regular theatrical shows. In places like Tulsa and Oklahoma City they are used for such purposes but these cities have no theaters able to accommodate a big musical show."

Beisman said that in Cleveland the Shuberts themselves led a fight to keep musical shows out of the city auditorium. "The Shuberts are interested in the Hanna Theater there," he said. The Shubert brothers have no interest in any St. Louis theater, but they are hired to produce the Municipal Opera shows here during the summer.

Darst said that he had received letters from the Central Trades and Labor Union and from the Building Trades Council indorsing the use of the Auditorium for theatrical shows.

U. S. BRIDGE TEAM 2510 POINTS BEHIND IN MATCH AT LONDON

Mrs. Culbertson and Albert Morehead Throw in Two Hands That English Players Turn to Account.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The United States' defenders of the Schwab bridge trophy entered the second day of play against England today 2510 points behind, with 240 boards to be played.

The score, after 60 boards was: England, 20,310 points; United States, 17,800 points.

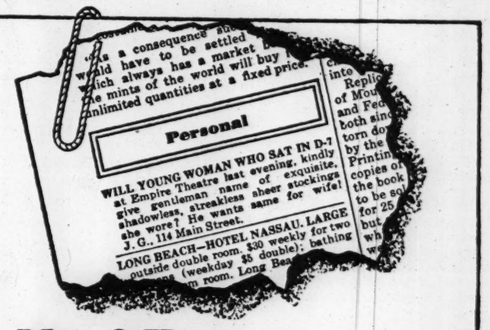

Mrs. Ely Culbertson and Albert Morehead threw in two hands which R. Lederer and R. Rose, of the English team, playing in the other room, found good enough for game bids. On one of these occasions the English team bid four hearts and made 11 tricks for a clear 650-point gain and another time bid and made five diamonds for 500 points.

Thus far the rival teams, which are relying on different systems, have failed to show any marked superiority one over the other.

BILLIKENS WORK IN SECRET FOR TIGERS; BEARS TAKE IT EASY

MUELLERLEILE TO SEND HEAVIEST LINEUP AGAINST MISSOURI TEAM

By James M. Gould

Coach Muellerleile of the St. Louis University Billikens is working out the details of the offense and defense which his team will use against the Missouri U. Tigers Saturday at Columbia. He knows what those plans are and, after a long workout yesterday, his team knows what they are, but the general public will have to remain in ignorance of them until the Billiken grins across the line at the Tiger just before the whistle sends the teams into action. In other, fewer and probably better words, the Billikens are practicing these days in secret.

And, in this case, secret means just that. Guards are on the gates at Walsh Memorial Stadium and the casual onlooker not only is discouraged, he doesn't get a chance to do any looking, casual or otherwise, because he's on the outside, and those stadium walls are neither transparent nor easy to see over.

"Mull" has some pet plays which he hopes will baffle the Tigers—plays which he hasn't used thus far this season. Missouri, then, will see them for the first time, and, if they work as well as "Mull" and his assistants, Jack Corcoran and "Stumpy" Thompson think they will, Missouri is in for a tough afternoon.

No Undue Worry.

The Tigers, incidentally, have been thoroughly scouted in their games with Colorado and Iowa State. "Stumpy" Thompson watched them against Colorado and the scout-delegation at the Ames game consisted of Muellerleile and Corcoran. So the Billiken coaches believe they have an excellent idea what Frank Carideo has and have ordained secret work so that Carideo's ideas of what they have can consist only of what Tiger scouts have picked up in the Illinois Wesleyan and Creighton contests.

From surface indications, the Billiken coaches are not especially worried about the outcome of Saturday's game. They admit that Carideo has a more formidable team than he had in 1933, but they have a private hunch that the Billikens, too, are better and that, moreover, unscored upon in two games, the St. Louis eleven is in the "coming-fast" stage and that it will be about at its peak next Saturday.

Then, they reason, they'll "take" Xavier at Cincinnati the following week and "dig in" for the hardest kind of practice with the laudable purpose of handing Marquette a surprise.

However, if Muellerleile doesn't want the general public to know what plays he intends using at Columbia in the Tiger game, he is quite willing to let them in on his starting lineup.

Starting Lineup.

It will be the strongest possible battle-front which means that "Red" Krause will be at center, Kersens and Bockrath at the guards, Axtell and Conlon at the tackles and Rollen and either Hartle or Mitchell at the ends. If the Billikens kick off, Hartle will do it; otherwise, Mitchell will start. Bittner will call the signals. Apparently, he has won the nod over Lou Drone for the quarterback position. At the halves will be Hurley and Capt. Kane with Bill Cochran at full-back.

In the Creighton game, neither Hurley nor Axtell started. Both were said to be in the "bad books" of Muellerleile for not-so-hot play against Illinois Wesleyan. But, against Creighton, both went well and all has been forgiven. The presence of Hurley means that Capt. Kane can return to his original position at left half.

Now, that lineup is a big lineup and a tough lineup and a veteran lineup for all but Cochran, Bittner and one end, either Hartle or Mitchell, are lettermen. There'll certainly be no lack of experience in the Billiken ranks which will start the fight against the Tigers.

Systems the Same.

There will be practically no difference in the systems of play next Saturday. Both are based on the Notre Dame style and neither strays far from its base. Oh, there may be an extra step or two on the Missouri shift that the Billiken backs omit, but, in the main, they are idential. St. Louis will be heavier if Carideo stays with the lineup he is expected to use.

Missouri hasn't won a game and hasn't scored a point in two games, one of which was a tie. St. Louis hasn't been scored upon in two games, one of which also was a tie. The 13 points the Billikens have scored indicate an edge for them over the 13 points Missouri's opposition has counted.

In recent years, however, though victory has been on the side of the Billikens, the games have been close and hard-fought. The Tiger hasn't been a set-up and St. Louis doesn't figure he'll be one this season. "Tige" is hungry for a bit of touchdown meat. The last three years have been lean ones.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Coming Back Slowly.

IT'S late for flowers. Still, we may be able to find a few bouquets to toss to Mr. Charles Gevecker and Mr. Benny Kessler for their efforts to restore the Amateur Athletic Union and its legitimate activities in this district.

Their first big result, after coming into office a year ago, was to bring the national boxing championships here. It was a great show. Now they have applied for it again and our grapevine informs us that the way is cleared for St. Louis to get it, Cleveland having courteously stepped out of the picture.

GEVECKER.

Before the day of Gevecker and Kessler there was a long, drab period in which the Amateur Athletic Union was something of a joke, as far as major events were concerned. Even local ones were for the most part a flop.

Within a few months the city has become a factor in A. A. U. affairs, instead of a worry to the leaders of the body.

• • •

However track and field athletics, in which the A. A. U. specializes, St. Louis still is hanging back. In this field, a department of physical activity that is one of the cleanest of all, St. Louis is just a double cipher, outside of the high schools and municipal shows.

Where cities like Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles have large followings in track events, you can't pay program costs in this district with an A. A. U. track and field meet.

One wonders what's the matter. The same contests which thrill other district spectators, leave our public asleep. And we will be interested in observing how the new officials of the A. A. U. are going to pulmoter this major feature of A. A. U. activity back to life in St. Louis.

The job is to create athletes who can be talked about. And aside from one or two—who incidentally have exploited their talents elsewhere, this district has not produced many stars over a long stretch of years.

Nor can anything else be expected from a city where one university has no track coach, no track squad and no track interest; where the other university finds a hard time winning even a point or two in its conference meets, and where there is no major athletic club to create or stimulate interest in track and field sports by maintaining a team.

One of the greatest sports features in the world is the annual Olympic games' revival. But since 1896 scarcely a dozen men from St. Louis have even made the team and only two or three have ever gained an Olympic victory. In recent years our representation has been largely a blank.

And it is entirely unlikely that, in the next Olympic games, to be held in 1936, in Berlin, this district will have a representative, man or woman, in the international competition.

Time to wake up.

• • •

New Organization May Help.

THE A. A. U. is planning something that may result in an advance in athletic interest locally and nationally. That is a reorganization of the districts. A pamphlet, issued recently, outlines plans which will be submitted for redistricting the A. A. U.

Instead of the hap-hazard system that exists today the proposal, which we are informed will be adopted, provides for zone areas, state and district organizations.

Several states will be included under each zone area, of which there will be 14. Four of these (one each), will include our distant possessions, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone.

With Missouri, for example, will be grouped Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma in zone area No. 7. Zone area No. 14 will include New York and all of the New England states; Southern states are in another group.

Within the zones each state will have its own organization and with each state districts consisting of sections of several ccuntries will also have their own organizations.

By subdividing the control into small parcels, supervision will be improved and activity stimulated —that's the argument.

• • •

Just a Few Kind Words.

YOU have heard the Amateur Athletic Union of America abused from time to time during 20 years or more—if you date back that far. It's about time somebody went to the front for this most useful organization of men who work—with only one or two exceptions throughout the country—without pay and in a field in which it is most difficult to please everyone.

The late James E. Sullivan, when he consolidated this organization, about the time this century began, did wonderful work; and his important successors, especially the present president of the national body, Mr. Avery Brundage, deserve bouquets and not turnips from the public.

Because, in the early days of the A. A. U., Mr. Sullivan, A. A. U. national secretary and prime mover, was identified with a great sporting goods manufacturing house, the organization was under suspicion. Today, and for many years past, the A. A. U. has been divorced from any commercial connection and its activities have been disinterested and solely for the improvement and the cleaning up of amateur sports. Still, the old suspicion lingers, here and there.

• • •

All Attacks Have Failed.

FOR the most part the services of the A. A. U. to the country deserve nothing but praise. The work has been done disinterestedly by men who, without reward of any kind, tried to do their best with a difficult situation.

Sectional jealousy within the A. A. U. itself has been responsible for much of the criticism. But in the main things have worked out all right. Certainly no opposition has been strong enough to completely overcome public belief in the sincerity of this organization's work.

Usually, opposition to the A. A. U. develops its greatest heat just before the Olympic Games. It is at this time that other influences try to get their representatives in the field without submitting them to the usual tests which all athletes must go through under A. A. U. conditions.

That they never have been able to shake the control of the A. A. U. is proof that the attacks have lacked real merit.

• • •

Still in the Nine Hole.

IF there is one weakness in connection with the A. A. U. it is its failure to find a means of financing the Olympic team other than by soliciting from private individuals.

It is too late now to ask the Government to sponsor Olympic team maintenance. But that should have been done long ago. If the nation is not interested enough in its Olympic representatives to pay to finance the Olympic team, then it is not entitled to have one.

Our success in any line is a source of national pride. And in a competition of many nations, our interest is certain to be involved. Why allow a few "good sports" to bear the nation's burden?

But we're going to do just that thing over again in 1936.

SOCCER LEAGUE CONTESTS TO BE PLAYED AT NIGHT

By Dent McSkimming.

A second innovation in local professional soccer will be attempted Thursday evening when two teams of the St. Louis Soccer League play a league match at the Normandy High School stadium under flood lights. It is planned to play two such games weekly, one on Tuesday and another on Thursday. A further departure from custom, as previously announced, is the sharing of Sportsman's Park on Sunday afternoons with the St. Louis Gunners, professional football team.

Under the new plan, as outlined by President Phil A. Riley, there will be one league match each Sunday, played before the Gunners' game; and single games on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. All will figure in the league championship standing. The admission charge to the Sunday game (for bleacher seats only) will be 40 cents and the purchaser will view both the soccer and the professional football games. A charge of 25 cents will be made to the night game at Normandy field, which is located on Lucas and Hunt road just north of St. Charles road, about three-quarters of a mile west of the Wellston loop. Children will be admitted to the night games for 10 cents. The contests will start at 8:30 p. m., and will be of 45-minute halves. The Sunday games will start at 1:20 p. m.

Jack Dwyer's Central club, a remnant of what was the Stix team, will oppose the Hellrung & Grimms, Thursday night. The Centrals were defeated in the opening program of the season, last Sunday, by the Marres. Phil Kavanaugh's Hellrungs appeared to good advantage in holding the Ben Millers to a 1-1 score and may be expected to give the Centrals a hard battle.

The Soccer League schedule for October follows:

Oct. 18—Hellrungs vs. Centrals, at Normandy.

Oct. 21—Millers vs. Marres, at Sportsman's.

Oct. 23—Marres vs. Hellrungs, at Normandy.

Oct. 25—Millers vs. Centrals, at Normandy.

Oct. 25—Centrals vs. Hellrungs at Sportsman's.

JOCKEY KEESTER OUT OF SADDLE FOR A MONTH; BACK INJURY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Paul Keester, leading rider on Chicago race tracks this season, suffered injuries yesterday at Sportsman's Park which will keep him out of the saddle for at least a month.

Shortly after the start of the third race his reins broke and Keester tumbled from his mount, Hey Flirt. He was unconscious when track attendants picked him up, but was quickly revived. Examination revealed a wrenched back and a possible fracture of his left wrist.

Notre Dame-Trojan Spectators Paid $70,000 a Touchdown

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16. FOR every touchdown scored in the Southern California-Notre Dame football series from 1926 to 1933, $70,000 was taken in at the gate, figures showed today.

In the eight contests gross receipts were $2,050,485, while the number of touchdowns totaled 29.

The two teams meet again Dec. 8 at Los Angeles.

31 Soccer Clubs Start Municipal Season, Sunday

The two champion teams of last season will begin a defense of their titles in the opening round of the twenty-third annual soccer season of the Municipal Athletic Association next Sunday afternoon.

The Doyle Alpen Braus won the city eliminations last spring and then added the State crown to their record by defeating the Fisher Body eleven of Kansas City in a home-and-home series. This season the champions will play under the name "Alpen Brau." The junior winners were the Holy Rosary players of the Fairground No. 5 division.

Thirty-one clubs have enrolled, 24 in six senior divisions and five in two junior groups. Last winter there were 38 teams in action. There are still three openings, two in the Carondelet division and one in the Fairground section. Teams or managers desiring to enroll may communicate with Carl O. (Toddy) Kamp at Room 330 Municipal Courts Building. There is an entry fee of $10, covering all expenses, for ball, referees and playing field.

Senior teams on file, besides the Alpen Braus, are: Russos, Hellrung & Grimm, Russell Flowers, Kelley Recreation, Balsano Fruit and Produce Co., Leo Club, Hartmann Shoe Co., Wellston Bottling Works, L. J. Vogler Ice and Fuel Co., Happy Hollow, Strodtman Realty Co., Irish, Winkler's Market, St. Ambrose Y. M. S., Carlstrom Miracle Whips, La Sociedad Espanola, Busiek Market, South Side Smoke Shop, German Sport Club, St. John the Baptist, St. Hedwig, St. Francis de Sales and St. Agnes.

Junior clubs, besides Holy Rosary, are: Spanish Caballeros, Unbacked Wonders, Eighteenth Ward Democrats and Loop Recreation.

Referees were chosen by members of the Soccer Executive Committee yesterday in a meeting with Alfred Fleishman, Superintendent of Recreation. The 16 regulars are: [illegible]s, L. Robbins, H. Donovan, H. J. Ratican, W. J. Walsh, Dan Barnard, Eddie Burke, Sam Dueker, Nick Ready, Irv Wimer, P. Garcia, C. Brady, C. Roche, R. J. Wall, W. C. Brady and John H. Cradock. The same two alternates of last season were named, J. T. Keenoy and V. Sandusky.

A meeting of these officials will be held at the Sherman Park Community Center tomorrow night, 8 o'clock, to discuss rules and regulations.

FRITZ CRISLER WOULD ENCOURAGE FIELD GOALS

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 16.—H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, head football coach at Princeton University, is in favor of more and better field goals. He would widen the goal posts to eight feet and lower the cross bar, but still leave the posts 10 yards back of the goal line.

If that did not produce a field goal revival he would increase the value to more than the present three points. Crisler told some 50 sports writers yesterday he planned to submit the changes to the Rules Committee this winter.

30 PLAYERS IN TRYOUTS FOR PLACES WITH HOCKEY CLUB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Canada, Oct. 16. — Thirty players were on parade here in the Auditorium yesterday, as Coach Eddie Gerard sent the candidates for places on the St. Louis National Hockey League team through two practice sessions. Of this number, 27 were men with previous professional experience, while the remaining 10 were amateurs who aspire to pro berths.

The arrival of Earl and Dess Roche, wingmen, and Alex "Bud" Cook, young center, completed the squad. The Roche brothers were with the team last season, and Cook, an aggressive and promising player, is a brother of that famous New York Ranger scoring pair, Bill and Bun Cook.

Bill Beveridge, goal; Scotty Bowman and Jeff Kalbfleish, defense, and Billy Touhey, Jerry Shannon, Syd Howe, Frankie Finnegan and Carl Voss, forwards, who formed the first squad reporting for practice, looked impressive in practice yesterday. Now that Gerard has his entire squad on hand he will work the players twice daily and once in the evening.

Irvin Frew, formerly with the Montreal Maroons, a defense player; Vernon Ayres, giant defense player formerly with the New York Americans and Montreal Maroons, who was acquired by the St. Louis club recently; Max Kaminsky, starry young Jewish center who made the jump to pro ranks with Ottawa last winter; Elish Pringle, defense player with Syracuse Stars last season; Nick Wasnie, ex-Ottawa Senator, who resides in Winnipeg; Glen Brydson, who was secured from the Montreal Maroons in a trade for Alex McConnell; Ted Saunders, last year with Ottawa and the Detroit Olympics, and Alex Wood, goalie with the Philadelphia Arrows of the Canadian-American League last season, were some of the others who made pleasing showings.

Of the amateur new comers on the ice were Henri Lauzon and George Hastie with Niagara Falls, Ontario Cataracts last winter; Pete Kelly, right-winger of Charlottetown in the Maritime Big Four; Verdel Price, Canadian junior champion oarsman, a star defense player with Brockville Ontario Magedonas in the 1933-34 campaign; "Fan" Heximer, brother of "Obs" Heximer, of the New York Rangers; Aurel Myre, a big French-Canadian defense player from Ottawa who was with Lake Placid, N. Y., last season, and Maynie Peterkin, star local simon-pure goalie.

Gerard sent them out at 10 o'clock in the morning for a two-hour session and again at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon for about an hour and 30 minutes. He put them in lineup formation, more to get them all into action, rather than with any idea of selecting a lineup. Bowman and Ayres worked together in one defense combination, and Frew and Kalbfleish teamed as another.

The coach of the St. Louis entry, who plans working his players long and hard for the next week, hopes to have the squad in St. Louis a week from Sunday afternoon for the first Mound City workout.

Miss Quier Wins Medal Honor in Pennsylvania Golf

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 16.—Miss Frances Williams of Allentown, defending champion, and Miss Edith Quier of Reading, medalist, led the championship flight of the second annual Pennsylvania women's golf tournament into match play today.

In the first State women's contest, which Miss Williams won from Miss Quier, one-up on the twentieth hole, Miss Quier won the medal round with a 75 to the Allentown player's 76.

Yesterday, Miss Quier's 84 for the 18 holes set a course record, though it was six over women's par. Taking three over par on the 291-yard first, Miss Williams started under difficulties and required a 46 for the first nine, but her incoming round, in 41, two over par, was the lowest of the day.

Of the 17 women who broke 100 on the difficult course, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Merion and Miss Betty Abernathy of Oakmont, with 91s, were nearest the leaders. Sixteen of these are in the championship flight for today's match play. There are three other flights of 16 each.

Pairings for today's championship round, with the players' qualifying scores, follow:

Miss Quier (84) and Miss B. Catherine Clark, Philadelphia (98); Mrs. W. A. Irwin, Pittsburgh (95), and Mrs. J. Raymond Price, Oakmont, (95); Miss Abernathy (91) and Mrs. C. I. Wendt, Pittsburgh, (97); Mrs. W. A. Johnson, Philadelphia (92) and Miss Mary Kuhn, Pittsburgh (97); Miss Williams (87) and Mrs. T. E. Wiederseim, Philadelphia (98); Mrs. E. H. Fitler, Philadelphia, (95) and Mrs. Joseph K. Love, Johnstown (97); Mrs. Hurd (91) and Mrs. H. W. Christie, Butler (97); Mrs. L. G. Riley, Wilkinsburg, (92) and Mrs. J. Walker Hoopes, Kennett Square (97).

The semi-finals will be played Thursday and the finals Friday.

The Harvest.

"Paul and Diz Collect $5000 for Chicago Game."

THE Dean boys on a summer's day,
Tried their hand at making hay,
The series being over.
They took their trusty rakes in hand
And raked in over thirty grand
And then they were in clover.

The sun was shining on the lea
When Dizzy said to Paul, said he,
"It pays to go haywire.
And so we'll start in raking kale
Until we get a goodly bale
And then we will retire.

"The big bad wolf, we'll see no more,
For if he howls around our door
We'll put him on the hummer."
Which goes to prove that pitching hay,
More dividends will often pay,
Than pitching ball in summer.

Bears 41, Wabash 0.

Oh, the moon's behind a cloud along the Wabash,
There's no sound of revelry and laughter gay;
But the Bears of Washington with joy are dancing
On the banks of "Ol' man River" far away.

Frank Carideo's Tigers were trimmed by Iowa State but his cousin Fred, who is taking a course in Four Horsemanship at Notre Dame, helped the Fighting Irish heave a monkey wrench into the Boilermakers of Purdue.

Carideo has a brother at Missouri and Jimmy Conzelman's younger brother, Bob, is coming up at St. Louis U. High. So history might repeat itself and Jimmy find himself directing his forces against his brother, as was often the case in the late Civil War.

Speaking of wars, civil and otherwise, see where Army swamped Drake, 48-0. The Drakes, who were a little bit out of their element against the land forces might have played rings around the Navy.

Saturday's football scores seem to indicate that the setups reversed the field and became upsets.

HOME TEAM HAS YET TO WIN A GAME IN K. U.-AGGIES SERIES

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 16.—The belief that, other things being equal, the home team enjoys an advantage over the visitor, is reversed so far as the Kansas-Kansas State gridiron rivalry in the Big Six is concerned.

Less than 100 miles apart, the Kansas rivals have met six times in Big Six competition and the home team had been not only beaten, but shut out on each occasion.

If the home team jinx holds through next Saturday, when they meet here, Kansas will win.

Here are the scores of their games since the Big Six was organized:

	State.	Kansas
1928—At Manhattan	0	7
1929—At Lawrence	6	0
1930—At Manhattan	0	14
1931—At Lawrence	13	0

ROSENBERG'S HORSE IS VICTOR AT 30 TO 1

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Leo Rosenberg, New York cotton broker, does not win many races with his horses, but when he does, he makes them count.

Two years ago he sent out Kerry Patch to win the $100,000 Futurity at Belmont Park at the long odds of 30 to 1. Yesterday he won his first race of 1934 when Dowdy Dell accounted for the Ardsley Handicap at the opening of Empire City and again the odds were 30 to 1.

MIKE ZBOYOVSKI CREDITED WITH IMPROVEMENT AT WASHINGTON

By J. Roy Stockton

Prosperity on the gridiron depends on team work and every man doing his bit, but you can't have a good machine without an outstanding individual or two. And out at Washington University, where a better than mild prosperity has turned the corner marked by goal posts, a tow-headed boy from Benld, Ill., one of eight children of Russian and Slavic parents, is given much of the credit for the fine performances of Jimmy Conzelman's 1934 Bears.

The name is Michael Zboyovski. He is 19 years old, weighs only 160 pounds, with a physical development like that of a middleweight fighter. He stands only five feet eight inches in his socks, but he's as tough a piece of flesh and bone as you could find, and they say out at Francis Field that you could throw him against a radiator and have more need for a steamfitter than for a surgeon.

Mr. Bullman Exhorts.

Listen to Gale Bullman, line coach, once a chief mourner, but now a man of bubbling and pleasing enthusiasm:

"Just watch that Zibby play defense. He's a team by himself. He's practiced catching punts until he has the instinct of a great center fielder. The center fielder must start with the crack of the bat. Zibby starts as the kicker's toe starts for the ball. They've kicked 'em to one side and then the other, but he's caught every punt this year and you can depend on him to put you in scoring position if the other teams kicks in its own territory.

"And that isn't all. Zibby can block, is a splendid safety man, and you ought to see him kick. He can boot the ball out of bounds between the 10 and five yard lines nine times out of 10. And don't think he's little. If he were a boxer he could fight the heavyweights, even if he is only 160 pounds."

Jimmy Conzelman is more conservative than the effervescent Bullman, but Jimmy broke down when asked about Zibby.

Conzelman Testifies.

"Gale hasn't told you half the story," Conzelman said last evening as the Bears were practicing lightly for Friday night's game with Simpson College of Indianola, Ia. "I think he's another Carideo. Splendid judgment, and can do everything. And a fine boy with it. Think of it—an orphan boy, one of a family of eight children. And with all the time he gives to football and three hours a day waiting on table and cleaning rooms at a frat house, his classroom standing is such that he receives half a scholastic scholarship. Do I like Zboyovski? On the level, I'll feel like crying when Zibby graduates."

Conzelman gave his athletes a light workout, after telling them about the Simpson team. The opponents of Friday night will average about 170 pounds to the man and will present a smooth-running attack, featuring speed and a well developed aerial attack. The Bears can win as easily as they did against Wabash if they don't hold Simpson too lightly, Conzelman told his squad.

During the remaining practice sessions Jim will try to improve the running attack of the Bears. They did not gain consistently enough to suit him in the Wabash game.

HENRY HOOKS WINS DECISION OVER LEE

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—Henry Hooks of Indianapolis used a right hook to advantage here last night to pound out a close 10-round decision over Paul Lee of Nashville, Tenn. Hooks weighed 121½ and Lee 122.

In another 10-round bout, Frankie Jarr of Fort Wayne, Ind., pummeled Patsy Flanagan of New Orleans, to gain a decision. Jarr weighed 119 and Flanagan 122.

Deans Arrive at Newark Airport, Hungry and Tired

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Dean brothers, Dizzy and Paul, pitched in the metropolitan area today long enough for one question:

"Where do we eat?"

It was Dizzy who seemed most worried about the food problem as the pitching brothers stepped out of an American Airways sleeper plane from Milwaukee at Newark airport.

With sleep-fogged eyes, the Deans tumbled out of the plane in shirts and trousers, donning neckties and combing their hair after getting their feet on solid ground.

Paul was willing to answer more questions but big brother Dizzy was engrossed with the food question. He remarked:

"Listen, never mind that stuff. I wanna eat."

They piled into a cab, returning half an hour later with satisfied expressions. Then, they got into a T. A. T. plane which was to take them to Philadelphia where they are scheduled to open a vaudeville tour today.

GRASSLANDS AND ARCADE TO FACE KEEN OPPOSITION AT BRIDLESPUR

The owners of two St. Louis stables are looking forward to next Saturday with the hope of becoming the first local owner of a steeplechaser to capture the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup Steeplechase. This despite the fact that the meet is becoming international in aspect and the outstanding horses of the country are entered.

The owners are Percy Orthwein and Edward Rowan, who jointly bought Arcade, winner of last year's Gold Cup, and Andrew Johnson and Bradford Shinkle, who have the Trail's End Stables.

The Trail's End Stables own On Dott and Making Bubbles, the latter a son of Bubbling Over, the Kentucky Derby winner.

Entries from prominent owners of steeplechase horses throughout the country and one entry from Mexico make the local owners' task difficult, but they feel that this is to be their year. Rowan's horse, Grasslands, last year was third. This time, coupled with Arcade, Rowan and Orthwein feel that they have a good chance to get a leg on the gold cup, which must be won three times by an owner before it becomes his permanent possession.

Entry From Mexico.

The entry from Mexico is that of Carlos Martinez-Zorilla of Mexico City, who arrived yesterday with his Senorita Mejico, famous racing and jumping horse.

Other outstanding entries are Mrs. John Hay Whitney's four horses, Old Bachelor, Hopeful Jim, Poppyman and Loro; Benjamin Behr's entry, Outlaw, which has one of the best records of any steeplechaser for this year, with last year's second leading rider, Bobby Davis, having the mount; R. K. Mellon's two entries from Pittsburgh; T. W. Durant, Long Island, sending two horses; and three entries from Kansas City, one horse each from the stables of Leroy Nafziger, Charles Lazer and Mrs. J. V. Holmes.

These outstanding horses will have a really trying course to race over, for, while its jumps are no more difficult than those at Maryland, the racing stretches are considerably faster. This means that a horse must not only be a good fencer," but must also be fast.

Changes in Course.

A change has been made in the jumps at Bridlespur so that this difference is accentuated still more. The jumps have been placed at the head of the inclines instead of at the bottoms, so that the horses that are fast can approach the fences with the best speed that they can muster. Last year horses had to slow up for the leaps at the bottom.

Three main "jinxes" of the course remain the same. There's the "Stone Wall" a jump just under four feet high built of solid stones cemented together. Strange to say the horses seldom "tick" the stone wall; nevertheless it provides a real hazard to the riders. Next there is the jump part way up "Heart Break Hill." Heart Break Hill is the last eighth mile at the finish when the horses are approaching the grand stand. Its an eighth mile to you, but to quote one famous jockey: "Sir, that hill seemed longer than all the rest of the course. It takes the heart out of horse and rider." They both have to be able to take it. And just as they are fighting for everything it takes to make the finish, a nasty looking jump looms up. It is small wonder that many races are lost here.

The biggest hazard on the course is the "Cropper," a timber fence, leading slightly away from the approaching horse, that looks innocent enough. But it was here a jockey was killed three years ago and another put in the hospital for many months. There are many theories advanced why the "Cropper" causes so much trouble.

Some say it is dangerous because it comes right after heartbreak hill on the first time around and the horses take it at too great a speed. Some say it is because it is placed past the stands and the cheers of the spectators throw the rider and horse off stride. Others credit the fact that the fence is placed on a turn. It may be a combination of all these causes.

AUTO RACES RETURN TO CREVE COEUR, SUNDAY

Louis C. Stock, who promoted the automobile races during the summer at the Creve Coeur Speedway, near Little Creve Coeur Lake, in St. Louis County, last night announced that the fall season of auto racing at the track will get under way on Sunday afternoon, with a program of four races scheduled.

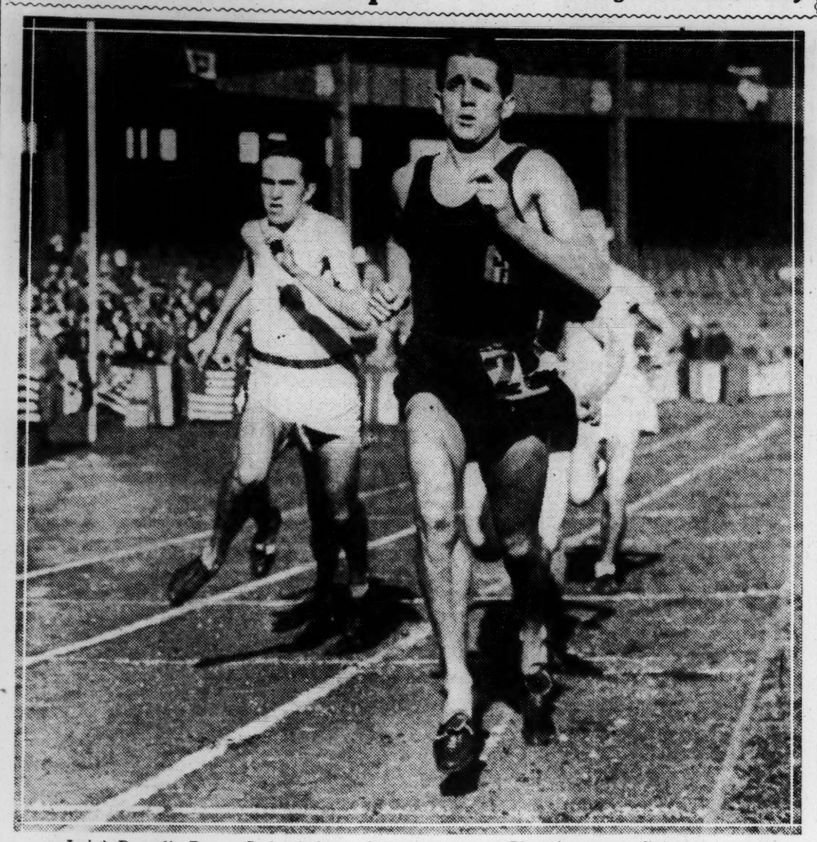

Three five-mile preliminary events support a 15-mile feature grind on Sunday's opening card.

Sam Breadon Looks for Bumper Crop of Fans in 1935; Team to Have Heavy Exhibition Schedule

By J. Roy Stockton

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, expects 1935 to be one of the best seasons that the St. Louis National League club has ever had. And to a magnate, a season can be good only when the cash customers swarm to the baseball park in large numbers.

Breadon had just signed Frankie Frisch to a 1935 contract and admitted that the 1934 year, while a huge success artistically, was not so hot financially. The Cardinal rush was started too late, and while during the earlier parts of the race the team was always in a contending position, the Giants' lead until late September was so impressive that nobody took the Cardinals' pennant chances seriously.

But it will be different next year. The Cardinals will go to the post favorites and they will have in uniform the greatest two-man box office attraction that this city has ever had.

Already promoters in small towns in the South are bombarding the Cardinal office with requests for exhibition games next spring and, whereas the training period too frequently is a red-ink affair, the Cardinals of 1935 should return from Florida to their home base with a substantial profit.

Will Train at "Deanville."

The Cardinals will train again at Bradenton. It was considered possible that an ambitious Southern city might tempt the Redbirds with a cash offer, like the one that caused the Giants to adopt Miami Beach as their 1934 training base. But Bradenton suits the Redbirds. And Breadon has not even considered any other camp.

Because of the widespread fame of the Dean brothers and the desire of the fans in the South to see them in action, it is certain that the Cardinals will arrange a more extended barnstorming tour than usual, for next spring. Instead of staying at Bradenton until the last minute, there will be numerous stops on the way north. And to fill all the exhibition engagements, it is likely that the training period will be longer than last spring.

"I think baseball interest will be at fever heat next year," Breadon said. "Considering that we won the pennant and world series, the 1934 season was not particularly profitable. But with business conditions the way they have been, we are very well satisfied. But I look for many capacity crowds next season and look for a greater interest in baseball all over the circuit."

Kind Words for Frankie.

Breadon paid a compliment to Frisch after signing him for 1935. "Frank is going to be a big man in this game," Sam said. "He has learned rapidly during his first full year. He has learned to be tolerant and to handle his men. I always regarded John McGraw as outstanding in the field of baseball managers and I think Frisch is his successor. He will always have discipline and the respect of his men and he certainly knows baseball. Add his keen desire to win and you have a great combination."

While terms of the Frisch contract were not disclosed, it is taken for granted that Frank was given an increase. His 1935 contract probably calls for a salary of more than $25,000.

For several years it has been the custom of the St. Louis club to retain the 10-day clause in all managerial contracts, and it is understood that such a clause was included in the case of Frisch.

PERRY SAYS HE WILL RETURN TO U. S. FROM HIS AUSTRALIAN TOUR

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—When the Australian exhibition tennis tour is over, Frederick J. Perry, world's singles champion, will return to the United States and Hollywood—not England—he made known here today.

Whether this statement meant he intends to accept a motion picture offer to do tennis shorts in Hollywood, thereby becoming a professional, he would not say.

"I'm sailing Wednesday night with the British tennis team for Australia to defend my Australian title. In February, I am returning to Los Angeles, while the other members of the team continue on to England."

Sol Flammer was elected president of the Winter Garden Ice Skating Club at its reorganization meeting last night. Dr. Sylvester Fendler, first vice-president; Phil McGrath, second vice-president, and John Bretz, secretary-treasurer, were other officers elected.

Championship contests sponsored by the club will begin on Nov. 12.

LEVINE AND STARK ASKED TO TRY FOR JOB AS BLACKHAWKS' GOALIE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League yesterday ended all negotiations with Lorne Chabot, veteran goalie, who played last year with Les Canadiens of Montreal, because of a salary disagreement.

Chabot, who was a part of the original deal in which Howie Morenz came to the Hawks from Les Canadiens and Lionel Conacher went to the Montreal Maroons, held out for the salary received by the late Chuck Gardiner.

The Hawk management refused, and invited Samuel (Porky) Levine, goalie for the Kansa City club of the American Association last year, to vie with Joe Starke for a regular job with the Stanley Cup holders. Levine, a veteran, formerly played with the New York Rangers.

TIGERS AND INDIANS WIN SOCCER GAMES

The Tigers trounced the Clovers 4-1 and the Indians blanked the Wolverines 4-0 in the senior division of the Wesley House Soccer League last night.

In the junior division, the Stix and Scorpions played to a 2-2 tie.

INTERCITY BOUTS FEATURE BOXING AT S. BROADWAY ARENA, TONIGHT

Intercity bouts between St. Louis and East Side scrappers of championship or class A rating and two interclub events featuring local rivals head line the program for the South Broadway Athletic Club's amateur boxing inaugural tonight at the club's gymnasium, 2300 South Seventh boulevard. The tournament also has drawn entries from 24 boxers who will draw for pairings in the open events to be contested as preliminaries.

Gene Sutcliffe, Western A. A. U. bantamweight champion, and Dave Stanfield, who held the Mississippi Valley A. C. featherweight title when that organization disbanded last season, are the local punchers slated to oppose Illinois ring men. Sutcliffe meets Ralph Puhse of Madison, Ill., while Stanfield is paired with Jimmy Burkett of the East St. Louis Knights of Columbus.

Puhse was a consistent winner in valley fistic contention last year and is now regarded as a contender for district title honors. He is a shifty little battler, a hard puncher, and figures to give the speedy Sutcliffe an interesting match. Burkett has turned in eight successive triumphs for the East St. Louis team and he, too, looms as a coming candidate for Western A. A. U. fistic laurels.

Egon Longiaru, a Rhode Island lightweight who recently joined the Sherman A. C. team, makes his St. Louis debut as the opponent of Art Pierson of the Business Men's A. C., in one of the interclub specials. Longiaru is said to have had considerable tourney experience in the East and his gym workouts with Coach Benny Kessler's squad indicate he should prove a tough match for Pierson, a teammate of Sutcliffe and Stanfield and one of the best all-round boxers in the local amateur ranks.

The fourth star bout, with Battling Bill Schreiber of the Walnut Park A. C., engaging Al Beauhold of the Sherman A. C. team, brings a pair of hard hitting welterweights into action. Both boys scored impressive victories in hard fought battles at the Coliseum last Wednesday night, Schreiber defeating George Mruzik, a Community Center champion, and Beauhold winning over Henry Struzik of the Skobel A. C.

Jimmy Webb, Louis Wallach, Eddie Anderson, Paud French, Carl Pieber and Jimmy Melms are among the amateur boxing stars slated to draw for pairings in the preliminary bouts.

The special card and a complete list of preliminary entries follow:

New Football Leaders Established In Every Section of the Country

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The pages of gridiron history don't tell of a time in the past when so early in the season divisional leaderships were as topsy-turvy as they are in the current college campaign. New leaders have replaced the old guard in almost every instance.

Stanford rules on the Pacific Coast. The Indians have things pretty much their own way with the Southern California Trojans toppled out of the picture by virtue of two successive defeats and St. Mary's an upset victim of little Nevada.

Pittsburgh's Panthers are kings of the Eastern lair, taking over control on the strength of their 20-6 victory over Southern California last week-end and decisive triumphs over Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia.

Before the season runs out, however, the Panthers' reign will be subjected to challenge from the Princeton Tiger and the Columbia Lion. Princeton, undefeated last season, has played its early games in mid-season form, but the Tiger has not encountered formidable, testing opposition of the type that Pitt has met and overpowered. Columbia holds a major victory over Yale.

The situation below the Mason-Dixon line is somewhat of a dog-fight with Tennessee, Duke and Alabama scrapping for the bone. Duke conquered the one-time vaunted Georgia Technicians last Saturday. Since Tennessee and Alabama have yet to be tested, Duke holds a slight edge.

Rice and Texas are standouts in the seething Southwest. Rice has played four games to Texas' three and each numbers an outstanding team among its victims, the Purdue Boilermakers losing to Rice, and Notre Dame dropping a 7-6 decision to Texas which also overhalled an inferior Oklahoma team last Saturday on the same day Rice cut down the Southern Methodist Mustangs.

Matters in the Middle West are pied like upset type. Battling for top place are Minnesota, Chicago and Michigan State, with Notre Dame and Nebraska lurking in the background.

STELLA WALSH AGAIN BETTERS WORLD MARK

By the Associated Press.

OSKA, Japan, Oct. 16. — Stella Walasiewicz (Walsh), Poland's Olympic sprint champion, bettered her own world's record for 200 meters for the second straight day when she stepped the distance in 23 seconds flat in an international track and field meet yesterday. Her old mark, made two years ago, was 24.1 seconds. Yesterday she ran the distance in 23.8.

MANION SHOOTS 70 TO WIN PRO SWEEPSTAKES

A record-breaking 31 on the incoming nine gave Johnny Manion a total of 70 and victory in the Pro Sweepstakes held on the Sunset Hill Country Club course yesterday. Manion had a 39 on the first nine, but shot seven birdies on the last nine to get his 31.

Jim Fogertey was second with 36-35—71, while Ben Richter and Jack Burns tied for third with 72s. Tommy Kelleher was fifth with 73, Ralph Scheidegger had 79 and Les Scanlon and Henry Christman 82s.

Deans Pitch Total Of Two Innings; Crowd Gets Mad

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 16.

THE Dean boys, Dizzy and Paul, came near causing a riot here.

Spectators, angered because the world series heroes did not do much pitching here last night in an exhibition game against the Kansas City Monarchs, went on the war path.

Dizzy pitched only two innings and then went to left field after allowing a run on a single and two walks. Paul had a sore arm and did not pitch at all. The brothers were in the game five innings.

Jeering greeted their withdrawal at the beginning of the sixth, and the crowd went to the box office demanding their money back. Rioting threatened until two police squad cars arrived.

Even Dizzy's home run over the left field wall in the third failed to get much of a rise out of the crowd.

COLUMBIA (MO.) BOY FINISHES GRID GAME WITH NECK BROKEN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 16.—Sixteen-year-old Edmond Bysfield, Columbia High School quarterback, wouldn't let a little thing like a broken neck stand in his way.

Taken out of a game Friday with Fulton (Mo.) High, because of an injury, Bysfield went back into the battle on hs assurance to Coach Len Smith that "it doesn't amount to anything."

Hospital examination today revealed his neck is broken. Physicians believe Bysfield will recover without permanent injury, but his football playing days are probably over.

Incidentally, Bysfield ran 60 yards for a touchdown and Columbia, thanks not a little to his brilliant signal calling, won the game.

THOSE fancy pipe mixtures don't get a tumble out of me since I discovered Union Leader. And the shekles I save would make quite a coin collection.

But it isn't the dime-a-tin price that pleases me most. It's the extra pipe-pleasure I get out of this grand old mellow Kentucky Burley. It's as gentle as moonbeams—smooth as century-old sherry. Search the cigar store shelves and you'll find no tobacco that's a match for Union Leader in value—and sheer satisfaction. (Mighty fine in cigarettes, too.)

NO CHANCE FOR GUNNERS TO GET REDS' FRANCHISE

—MYRON GREENTREE

After spending several hours with officials of the St. Louis Gunners, professional football team, Myron Greentree, Cincinnati National Football League team official, denied that he had been here for the purpose of selling the Cincinnati franchise to the St. Louis organization.

"I came for the purpose of arranging a football game and made a tentative agreement to play the St. Louis Blues Oct. 31. It will have to be approved before it is official."

Announcements that Greentree would be here to arrange a deal whereby the Gunners would enter the National League and acquire the Cincinnati Reds' players were made yesterday by President Edward Butler and Coach Chile Walsh of the Gunners.

Regarding the negotiations (or lack of negotiations) between the St. Louis Gunners and the Cincinnati club of the National Football League, which yesterday came to nothing, President Butler explained:

"When Mr. Greentree, vice-president of the Cincinnati club, made arrangements to come here for a conference yesterday, it was my understanding that the object of his visit was to talk over negotiations looking to the possibility of the purchase by the Gunners of the Cincinnati National League franchise.

"When Mr. Greentree, after his arrival, learned by a newspaper article that his plans were known, he declined to go further with negotiations. He then tried to book the Gunners for a game with Cincinnati here and we could not agree."

Greentree departed for Cincinnati last night.

INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE OPENS NOV. 8

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 16.—The International Hockey League will open its 1934-35 season Nov. 8 with the Detroit Olympics hosts to the Windsor Bulldogs, according to the official schedule released last night.

The following night Cleveland and London will get under way on the latter's ice while Nov. 10 Syracuse will inaugurate the season at Buffalo. Cleveland's first home game, with Windsor, is scheduled for the same night while the season will open at Syracuse and Windsor Nov. 11 and 12 with Buffalo and Detroit, respectively, furnishing the opposition.

19 Setters and Pointers Compete For Pheasant Title

ONEIDA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—With 19 setters and pointers competing, the annual amateur pheasant dog championship of the Associated Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America got away to a late start yesterday owing to heavy rains.

The stake brought out a great field of amateur dogs, all of which have been winners in the various field trials of the country. The stake is the title of amateur pheasant dog champion of America.

Only three braces of six out of the 19 dogs were run yesterday and those that carried away the honors are Hexar's Carolina Jack, a pointer owned by Dr. E. K. Tingley of Marietta, Pa., handled by Raymond Hoagland of Rumson, N. J., and Vestal Hill's Thunders, a setter owned and handled by W. W. Couperthwait of Binghamton, N. Y.

The heat of Hexar's Carolina Jack was brilliant at the finish, though the first half was rather of a mediocre order. Vestal Hill's Thunder, on the other hand, ran a dashy race during the first half, but slowed down a trifle near the end. His work on pheasants, however, was of the highest order.

These heats may be beaten in today's running but these two dogs have at least set a mark.

The judges are Henry P. Davis of Fairfield and Dr. W. F. Vail of Greenwich, Conn. Provided the weather is good it is thought that the stake may be concluded by Wednesday morning.

SLAIN KING'S BODY LIES IN STATE IN YUGOSLAV CAPITAL

ny, alias Chalny, had confessed he was sent to Marseilles with Petrus Kalemen to assassinate King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

Kalemen, whose real name was Vlada Georgieff, a Macedonian revolutionary leader who also called himself Tschernocemsky, actually killed the King and was slain by police.

Authorities said Kraj told them he fled before the assassination because he feared he would injure other persons in the attempt to take the King's life.

In broken German, Kraj told the Associated Press today that he had been in Marseilles.

"I am a Croat," declared Kraj. "What I did and what I wanted to do were for Croatian liberty." Here Kraj's German failed him and he was unable to say more.

The Surete said that in his confession Kraj called Egon Kvaternik the "delegate" of Dr. Ante Pavelich, head of the revolutionary secret society Ustashi. Kraj told them, police said, that Kvaternik disappeared Oct. 9, on the morning of the assassination after shaking hands with Georgieff and Kraj at Aix-en-Provence and giving them final instructions on the killing.

"I am going away," Kvaternik was said to have told the pair. "You know the King is arriving. You also know what you must do—go to Marseilles and fire on the King."

Kraj, said the police, admitted he and the assassin arrived in Marseilles at 2:30 p. m. on the day of the assassination and immediately picked a favorable spot in the crowd along the thoroughfare where the King would pass.

Then, said Kraj, "I was upset by the idea that other persons than the King might be struck and I wanted to abandon the project and told Kalemen so. He grabbed me by the arm. I was then afraid of being shot down myself by Kalemen and I lost myself in the crowd to escape him."

Officials said Dr. Ante Pavelich was the master mind of the assassination and said he recently had been living in Berlin, but that, when the assassination order was sent out, he disappeared.

"We know where he is," said a high official.

Two bombs and an automatic pistol were found, police reported, in a search of the hotel room which Kraj occupied in Aix-en-Provence. The bombs and the pistol, they said, were identical with those found in the possession of Georgieff after the assassination. They were hidden between the springs and the mattress of the bed. The bombs were sent to the Toulon naval base for an examination by experts.

A five-day search for Kraj ended yesterday when he was seized after hunger and thirst drove him from Fontainebleau Forest.

Kraj arrived at a Paris hotel Sept. 28, police said, accompanied by a "strikingly beautiful" woman. They registered as "M. and Mme. Vindracek of Trieste."

He left the hotel Oct. 5 and the woman followed him the next day. She is being hunted.

Wife of Actual Assassin Arrested at Sofia, Bulgaria.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 16.—Police yesterday arrested the wife of Vlada Georgieff Tschernocemsky, notorious Macedonian revolutionary leader, who, Yugoslav authorities say, was the man who assassinated King Alexander at Marseilles.

Search of the woman's house disclosed letters her husband had written two years ago to the Macedonian revolutionary leader, Von Drangoff.

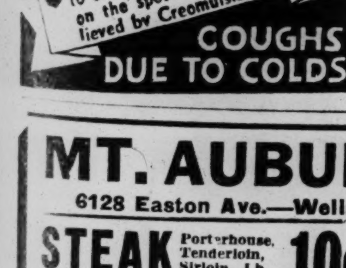

The letters were immediately sent to Paris for comparison with the signature on the passport found on the body of the man known, until Yugoslav authorities made their identification, as Petrus Kalemen.

JUDGESHIP HOLDS VOTERS' INTEREST IN FIRST CIRCUIT

$174,239.83 has gone to these counties in direct relief, in addition to such local funds as have been subscribed, and at the present time the relief amounts to more than $12,000 a month.

Such Republican campaign as is being conducted up this way, and it is not of much consequence or vigor, is being directed toward an effort to convince voters that Senator Patterson in his attacks on the national administration, to which he has charged extravagance in the expenditure of public funds, does not mean that the Senator would cut off relief.

But the Democratic leaders express conviction that the larger portion of these receiving aid, even though most of them feel they are not getting enough, will vote to support the administration.

Adair County in the past usually has returned a Republican majority, though some candidates on each ticket carried it in 1930 and it went strongly Democratic in 1932. Reversing the usual situation, the Democratic 1934 primary vote was far in excess of the Republican vote, and there seems little doubt that the county will be Democratic in the coming election. Local leaders estimate the total vote will be about 8000 and that the Democratic pluralities will be in the neighborhood of 1000.

Expected to Get 1000 Plurality.

Knox County usually is Democratic, and seemingly will be this year. A total vote of about 4500 with a Democratic lead of about 1000 is expected. Roosevelt carried it in 1932 by 1580, the total vote being 4562.

Lewis County is one which never has been carried by a Republican candidate for a State office. It almost invariably polls a heavier vote in the Democratic primary than the total vote in the ensuing election. The Democratic primary vote was 4508 and the Republican 218. The total vote in the election is expected to be about 4000 and the Democratic majority about 1500. In a total vote of 5143 in 1932 Roosevelt had a plurality of 2405.

The only time the county ever came near going Republican was in 1928, when the sentiment among rural Missouri Democrats was strong against Al Smith and he carried the county by only 141.

BELLEVILLE ALDERMAN PUT OUT OF MEETING BY MAYOR

"You Can't Bulldoze Me," He Calls After Police Chief Escorts Him Away.

Alderman Stanley Sprague of the First Ward, Belelville, was ejected from a meeting of the City Council at the order of Mayor Brechnizt last night, following an altercation between the two over a proposal for purchase by the City of Bellevilel water distribution system, approved by the Council Oct. 1.

Sprague had just introduced a resolution, signed by five other Aldermen, opposing expenditure of funds for the system without first submitting the proposal to a referendum. The resolution stated about 100 citizens had asked Sprague to introduce it. Following the Mayor's comment that Sprague's stand was "in conflict with what you did Oct. 1 in voting to buy the system," the Council voted to submit the resolution to the Judiciary Comimttee.

Sprague continued to talk about the resolution, persisting after the Mayor ruled him out of order. The Mayor then ordered Chief of Police Bilzing to remove Sprague, who took a seat among the spectators, calling back, "You can't bulldoze me like you do the other Aldermen. Your Kaiserlike tactics won't work with me."

An ordinance prohibiting sale of foodstuffs on Sunday was passed by the Council.

PROPERTY TAX NOTICES TO BE MAILED THURSDAY

Postcards Being Sent Earlier Than Usual So Payers Can Take Advantage of Discounts.

Mailing of 199,493 postal card notices informing real estate and personal property taxpayers of the amounts due for 1934 will be started Thursday by Collector Koeln.

Ordinarily notices are not sent out until November, but the work was hastened by a staff of extra employes in order that taxpayers might take advantage of a new State law providing for discounts on taxes paid before Dec. 31.

The discount amounts to three-fourths of 1 per cent if the tax is paid in October, one-half of 1 per cent if paid in November and one-fourth of 1 per cent if paid in December. After Dec. 31 a penalty of 1 per cent a month is assessed. Taxes are payable at the Collector's office, Room 110, City Hall.

The 1934 levy, represented by the 199,493 tax bills, amounts to $26,779,476 on an assessment as of June 1, 1933, amounting to $977,426,940. Last year there were 194,617 tax bills, the levy was $27,277,011 and the assessment was $995,584,460.

The lower levy this year is attributable to a blanket 5 per cent reduction on real estate made by the State Board of Equalization and a decline in value of personal property.

METAL STOCKS LEAD ADVANCE IN ACTIVE TRADING

U. S. Smelting Gets Up Around 4 Points and Many Others Register Gains.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The financial market lacked any especially new stimulus today, but most stocks pushed toward higher territory. Metal stocks led an advance in the equites list which carried prices up 1 to 2 or more points.

While a few groups failed to follow the forward movement, there was little pressure apparent in any department. Trading was quite active in the first hour. The activity dwindled sharply later, but most advances were retained.

Shares of U. S. Smelting got up around 4 points, Cerro de Pasco 2, and American Smelting and Howe Sound a point or more each. Paramount certificates weer the most active, at a gain of half a point. Advances of 1 to 2 were registered by Santa Fe, Spiegel-May-Stern, Macy, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Delaware & Hudson, Chrysler, Loew's, du Pont, Continental Can, Case, American Can, American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, Johns-Manville and Columbian Carbon.

Metal Stocks Response.

The metal stocks against responded to another advance here of ⅜ of a cent an ounce to 55⅛ cents in the prices of bar silver imported for industrial use. This was a new peak for the metal since 1929.

Grains were norrowly improved. Cotton was in demand. U. S. Government securities weer again the sellar performers in the bond market, wits some of the best gains in a week or so. Leading foreign exchanges were higher in terms of the dollar.

The stepping up of earnings by some industrial companies was exemplified by the preliminary third quarter report of the duPont organization, which showed net profits of $1.25 a common share compared with 96 cents in the preceding quarter and 95 cents in the corresponding 1933 period.

Trade News and Exchange.

Trade observers report that retail buying seems to be holding up well, with more than seasonal gains enjoyed in several centers, one statistical bureau finds that the American consumer spent in September $404,062,000 for general merchandise in department stores, mail order, general and variety chain stores. This, it is said, compared with $367,310,000 in the same 1933 month and $371,310,000 in September, 1932. It was the largest aggregate since the corresponding month of 1931.

For the first time this year, monthly life insurance production failed in September to show an increase over the corresponding month last year, according to figures presented to the U. S. Department of Commerce by the Association of Life Insurance presidents. New insurance, it was stated, was 4.5 per cent less than for September, 1933. Total new business for the first nine months of this year, however, was estimated to have increased 11.1 per cent over the same 1933 period.

Some improvement was shown by leading foreign exchanges in today's opening transactions. Sterling was up ¼ of a cent at $4.91¾ and the French franc was .00¼ of a cent higher at 6.65 cents.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet today. Moderate investment buying helped gilt-edged securities and industrials. Speculators bought German bonds and silver shares. Oil, kaffirs and industrial issues were eased. The market closed irregular.

PARIS.—The pessimistic outlook of traders caused prices on the Bourse to resume their slump today, most issues dropping from a fraction to a few points. Citroen shares led the decline, losing 110 francs in the session. The closing was weak.

BERLIN.—Selling kept prices down on the Boerse today, only brewery and lignite shares holding firmer. The closing was unsettled.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The United States dollar lost 1½c to the pound today, closing at 4:92 5-16 to the pound, as compared with the overnight rate of 4.90 13-16. The opening was at 4.91. The reaction was caused by the buying of the British pound and the selling of other currencies.

The French franc eased, closing at 74.06 to the pound as compared with yesterdays' close of 73.78.

The price of bar gold declined 3½ pence to 142 shillings 9½ pence ($35.06) a fine ounce, and an amount valued at £521,000 ($2,558,110) was purchased.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The United States dollar gained ½ centime today, closing at 15.045 francs (6.646 cents to the franc) as compared to yesterday's close and todays' opening rate of 15.04 francs (6.648 cents).

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.467 marks (40.53 cents to the mark) as compared with yesterday's price of 2.473 marks (40.44 cents).

TURPENTINE, FLAX AND LINSEED

Linseed oil in one to four barrel lots was quoted at 10.9c per pound for raw and 11.3c for boiled.

TUESDAY

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 16.—Turpentine dull, 47; no sales; receipts, 611; shipments, 112; stock, 15,728. Rosin firm; sales, 3876; receipts, 2269; shipments, 527; stock, 129,651. Quote: B and D, 4.20; E, 4.25; F, 4.35; G, 4.40; H, I, K and M, 4.50; N, 4.70; WG, 5.00; WW and X, 5.25.

Another New High for Silver.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Foreign silver for domestic industrial use was advanced to another new high since 1929 today at 55⅛ cents an ounce, up ⅜ of a cent from yesterday. Today's boost in New York was made despite the fact that the metal held unchanged in the London market at 24⅞ pence an ounce. Since last week, when the first of a series of advances occurred in the metal, the markup in New York was always accompanied by higher prices in London.

TODAY'S NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Sales of stock on the New York Stock Exchange from Jan. 1 up to and including yesterday amounted to 273,294,122 shares, compared with 562,443,449 a year ago and 368,016,550 two years ago.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Of the 53 roads to which loans have been made by the Railroad Credit Corporation, in order to meet fixed interest obligations, 13 nave repaid in full, while all the others have reduced the loans, the corporation announced today. Total loans to the 53 roads amounted to $73,691,368. The balance outstanding is $57,403,421.

The American Institute of Steel Construction, in a bulletin issued today, said: "The autumn slump was especially notable in the bookings of fabricated structural steel because it tended to run counter to the experience of 1933." Preliminary reports to the Institute from 66 per cent of the industry showed that September bookings were less than half the average monthly bookings during the first half of this year and nearly 40 per cent less than the same month last year. Shipments were 26 per cent above September last year, but less than the shipments of August. Bookings have declined, although they are still larger than at this time last year.

Consumption of sugar in the 14 principal European countries during the crop year ended Aug. 31 totaled 7,344,134 long tons, raw sugar value, against 7,138,671 tons consumed during the previous year, according to Lamborn & Co., sugar brokers. Production during the same period amounted to 5,452,599 tons, an increase of 335,721 tons over that of last year.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Crude rubber futures opened steady, 6 to 15 higher. Oct. 13.86b; Dec. 14.14@15; Jan. 14.27b; March 14.54@58.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Raw sugar was quiet again today and no sales were actually reported. There was nothing firmly offered early today, as refiners continued more or less indifferent, but it was presumed that some sugar could still be had at around 2.90.

Futures opened at decline of 1 point and showed additional losses later, under further tired long liquidation and selling by commission houses, which seemed to be promoted by the continued lack of interest in the spot market. December contracts sold from 1.85 to 1.83 and May from 1.84 to 1.83, or 3 points below the previous close, but around these levels a little better trade demand developed and there were rallies of a point on some positions, with the general market at midday ruling from 1 to 2 points below the previous close. The volume of business was not large and there was little fresh or outside buying, with the trade in general inclined to hold off and await some new trading incentive.

In refined a moderate business was reported and prices were unchanged at 4.65 for fine granulated.

NEW YORK COTTON PRICES ADVANCE; SOME REACTIONS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Cotton futures opened steady, 7 to 11 higher, on better Liverpool cables and trade buying.

Oct., 12.37c; Jan., 12.40c; Mar., 12.47c; Mal, 12.54c; July, 12.56c.

There were comparatively few selling orders from the South, apparently, but a little selling of July for continental account was reported, as well as scattered liquidation. This supplied the initial demand, and the market slipped slightly after the call, with December selling off from 12.38 to 12.33 and May from 12.54 to 12.50. Offerings were light, however, and prices held fairly steady at the end of the first half-hour, with active months showing net advances of about 5 to 8 points.

Bombay was reported a moderate buyer, and there was some buying through houses with Japanese connections. The early cables from Liverpool said that hedge selling there had been absorbed by continental and trade buying and reported some local buying in response to firmness in Egyptian cotton. The Alexandria market for Ashmouni was 9 to 17 points higher this morning.

The market worked up later in the morning on a moderate demand which evidently found very little cotton offered and was encouraged by continued reports of a tight spot situation in th eSouth. December advanced to 12.40 and May to 12.57, making net gains of 12 to 13 points, but some realizing was encountered at these figures and prices at midday showed reactions of 3 or 4 points from the best.

New Orleans Cotton Opening.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—Cotton futures opened steady: Oct. 12.30, Dec. 12.40, Jan. 12.42, March 12.49, May 12.56, July 12.59.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Despite irregular tendencies displayed by industrial sales, and a decrease in industrial activity, the trend of other primary factors showed encouragement during the third quarter of 1934 as compared with the same months of last year.

Sales of meat and other food products were well ahead of last year's totals. This also was true of automobiles, motor accessories, radios, tobacco manufactures, advertising lineage, electrical equipment, aircraft, amusements and building. For chain store groups and mail order houses some good increases were revealed in the comparison with the 1933 totals.

Argentine imports of American motor vehicles in the first eight months of 1934 were greatly in excess of those of the corresponding period last year, the Commerce Department reports. Receipts of American vehicles in Argentina during the eight-month period amounted to 7893 units, an increase of about 92 per cent over the comparable period of last year. Imports of American trucks, amounting to 4585 units, represented a gain of 191 per cent over the 1933 figure, the report showed. The proportion of American motor vehicles in Argentine imports increased from 90.3 per cent in the first eight months of 1933 to 95.6 per cent in the January-August period this year.

BUSINESS NOTES

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Manufacturers of machine tools report a substantial increase in orders. The gains are said to be the largest in some weeks.

GRAIN AVERAGES HIGHER IN INITIAL CHICAGO TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—With corn showing most strength, grain prices averaged higher early today, influenced by resting purchase orders that virtually ignored extreme weakness in foreign markets.

Opening ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher, May 99¾c@$1, wheat later scored fractional gains. Corn started ⅛@⅝c higher, May 78¾@79⅛c, and then held close to the initial range.

Market bulls derived some encouragement from reports of dust storms in parts of Kansas and Nebraska, giving further evidence of the need of rain, especially in the winter wheat belt southwest. Complaints of poor appearance of winter wheat in that region were received.

Good demand for cash wheat was a steady factor.

Buying in May deliveries developed around the $1 level, but offerings increased above that figure. May reached an early high of $1.00 ⅜ and then reacted. The price range during most of the session was extremely narrow.

Liverpool's early weakness was attributed to losses in prices in Argentina coming on top of favorable crop news from South America.

Oats showed no tendency to follow corn but rather held barely steady with wheat. Provisions also were about steady.

GOVERNMENTS HIGHER; OTHER BONDS SPOTTY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—U. S. Government securities ruled uniformly higher today, but other sections of the bond market were spotty.

There were fairly heavy dealings in the Home Owners' Loans at prices well above the previous finals.

Treasuries ranged 1-32d to 11-32ds higher, with the best gain in the 3¼s of 1941, which sold at 103.24. Liberties also improved in a small way.

Small gains outnumbered losses in the corporate division. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s edged up to 57, St. Paul 5s to 27½, International Telephone 5s to 59½, Nickel Plate 4½s to 57¼ and Pennsylvania General 4½s to 101⅝. Postal Telegraph 5s advanced about a point.

Unimportant dealings accompanied slightly lower prices in Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1950, Armour & Co. 4½s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5s and Goodyear 5s.

There were few noteworthy price changes in the foreign department. Austrian 7s rose 1½ points to 70½.

LEADING SHARES IN ADVANCE ON ACTIVE CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Leading shares advanced minor fractions to a point or more in an active market on the Curb Exchange today. A large turnover was made in numerous issues, especially utilities.

Specialties again were the widest movers, and such issues as Montreal Light, Heat & Power, Mountain States T. & T., Parker Rust Proof and Scovill Mfg. gained one to 2 points. Adams-Millis first preferred advanced 3 and Gulf Oil and Pond Creek Pocahontas were nearly that much higher.

Issues advancing around ½ point included Swift & Co., Sherwin-Williams, Newmont Mining, International Petroleum, Hiram Walker, Electric Bond & Share, Creole Petroleum, American Gas, American Cyanamid B and Aluminum Co.

At 10 leading markets aggregate receipts were around 78,250 head, for a much lighter run than yesterday. A week ago receipts were around 66,021 head, against 64,232 head a year ago.

In the late hog market packers made liberal purchases at $5.65 down, 10@15c lower for the day. Other classes were unchanged. Clearance fairly good. Bulk of day's sales $5.35@5.70.

There was a pronounced abatement of receipts here and elsewhere today, but supplies were still comparatively substantial. Buyers still had the upper hand and local rates opened on a basis 5@10c lower than yesterday. Top was $5.80, for one load, while another load earned $5.75. The bulk of good to choice 190-lb. and up kinds, however, cashed to butchers and shippers at $5.60@5.70.

Weights were not as desirable today as usually, running on the light order. Material over 210 pounds was not plentiful and it is this class that is bringing the best prices.

Early sales of pigs and light lights were 10@15c lower, with spots on real light pigs about steady. Droves of 90 to 120 lb. weights were $2.90@4.10; 130 to 140 lbs., $4.25@4.65; 150 to 160's, $5@5.35, with most 160's at $5.25.

Packing sows ranged from $4.50@4.65 for rates mostly 10c lower. Stags were quoted $4@4.75.

CATTLE—Aggressive buying of cattle today was again lacking and the market dregged at steady to further reduced rates. Veal calves found support uncertain and prices broke 25@50c, the top stopping at $6.75 per cwt.

Receipts were fair, cattle on sale aggregating 4000 head and calves 2500. No Government drouth stock was received.

Ten principal markets today had about the same number of cattle andcalveson sale as a week ago and a year ago.

The late cattle market was unchanged from early.

Beef steers comprised a rather liberal portion of the total cattle run and some good quality was represented. Native offerings bulked at $5.75 to $7.50 and best consignments scored $7.75@$7.85 and upward to $8.50 for a short load. Sales figured around steady with recent declines in some quarters, while in others rates again were easier. A few cars of Oklahoma grass steers turned in the $ 3spread.

The light mixed steer and heifer trade was similar to that of yesterday. Some of the better material managed a steady level, but the rank and file of offerings was easier and some kinds were off as much as 15@25c.

The cow market likewise continued under pressure and discounts were necessary to move much of the run. Beef offerings sold upward from $2.50, while canners and cutters occupied a spread of $1.25@2.40.

There was no particular change in bulls and bolognas continued at a $3.10 top, while bulk of sales registered $2.50@3.

Trading in stocker cattle continued slow and barely steady terms prevailed. Much of the supply shows a 15@25c decline for the two days.

SHEEP—City butchers bought a few choice lambs at $6.75 today for steady rates. Packers were bidding lower. Receipts were estimated at 4000 head for a substantial run, the same as yesterday. There were no Government sheep listed. Receipts at 10 leading markets were estimated at 41,200 head, all told, for a sharp decrease from yesterday. A week ago receipts were around 47,124 head, against 43,608 head a year ago.

In the late sheep market small killers bought strictly choice lambs at $6.50, while packers made purchases at $6.25@6.40, rates 10@25c lower. Culls and sheep were steady at $2.50@3.50.

Quotations—Good to choice lambs, $6.25 to $6.75; medium to good, $4.25@6.00; culls and plain, $3.50@4.00; fat sheep, $2.50 down.

Horses and mules have reversed their trend of the previous week, sales ruling firm in fairly active trading. Commission receipts are fair at approximately 675 horses and 250 mules. Mules sold at auction Monday and horses went under the hammer today.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $110@140; medium to good draft, $85@100; good to choice chunks, $90@115; smooth-mouthed chunks, $60@80; young farm mares, $80@110; southern mares, $50@80; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules, over 3 years old, $45@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

BARS SOLICITING FUNDS FROM CITY EMPLOYES

Mayor Calls Attention to Law and Pledge Against Political Assessments.

Warning against solicitation of campaign funds from city employes, Mayor Dickmann sent a letter yesterday to department heads reminding them of the charter provision against assessment of employes for political purposes and his pledge when seeking office that the practice would not be tolerated.

"This charter provision and platform declaration must be observed in both letter and spirit," the Mayor said. "I have been advised that a number of city employes have indicated their desire to make voluntary contributions. That, of course, is permissible, but there must be no pressure of any kind exerted, directly or indirectly, upon any employe."

As in the past, however, most city employes will deem it expedient to contribute to the campaign fund. Many do this through the ward organizations to which they belong, some giving 1 per cent of their salaries each month. In other instances the City Committee delegates certain employes in each office to pass the word around that contributions will be acceptable.

"Failure to Elect Democrats Slap at President," Cochran Says.

The election of a Republican Congress opposed to President Roosevelt's policies would mean "two years of inactivity such as we experienced under Hoover," Congressman John J. Cochran, candidate for re-election in the Thirteenth District, said last night in addressing a First Ward Democratic meeting at 4208 West Florissant avenue.

"When a program of public works was proposed, Mr. Hoover sneeringly dismissed it as a pork barrel," Cochran said. "Hundreds of thousands who thus might have found jobs were obliged to continue without employment. The only relief counseled by the captains of industry who backed Mr. Hoover in 1928, was the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It furnished hundreds of millions to banks, railroads and other big corporations.

"The election Nov. 6 gives every admirer and beneficiary of President Roosevelt's work for the people a chance to show gratitude and approval. Failure to elect Democratic candidates will be a slap at the President and will be held by his enemies as a repudiation of his policies."

The appointment of Russell E. Gardner Jr. of the firm of Reinholdt & Gardner, investment brokers, as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic City Campaign Committee, was announced yesterday by Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee. He is a nephew of the late Gov. Frederick D. Gardner.

Republican Mass Meeting in North St. Louis Tonight.

The Republican City Campaign Committee will hold the first of a series of mass meetings tonight at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets. Curtis M. Johnson, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Minnesota in 1924, and L. C. Dyer, Cleveland A. Newton and George W. Strodtman, Congressional nominees in St. Louis districts, will speak.

Participating in the meeting will be Republican organizations of the First, Second, Third, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-first and Twenty-seventh Wards.

Republican nominees for State Representative met last night at headquarters of the Republican City Committee to plan a speaking campaign before civic and business organizations. They advocate legislation requiring voters to sign poll books when they cast their ballots, exemption from taxation of $3000 of the assessed value of homes, and repeal of the Jones-Munger law providing for foreclosure for delinquent taxes.

LACLEDE GAS FIGHTING RATE CUT FILES BRIEF

Lists Cost of Intangible Items at $16,000,000; Reproduction at $56,135,958.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16. — Opposing lower gas rates in St. Louis, the Laclede Gas Light Co., in a brief filed with the Public Service Commission, has listed intangible items of cost aggregating more than $16,000,000 upon which it asserts it is entitled to earn a return of 8 per cent.

These intangible items are in addition to the company's estimate of $37,742,107 as the reproduction cost of its physical properties, less depreciation. The estimate includes $4,013,504 for value of its land. Working capital, including material and supplies, is listed at $2,000,000, and including all items the company's estimate of reproduction new cost, less depreciation, is $56,135,958.

The largest intangible item is $7,893,951 listed as the overhead cost during construction. The company places its "going value" at $6,000,000 and its cost of financing at $2,500,000.

The brief of the City of St. Louis, which is seeking a reduction of gas rates, was expected to be filed today. The Public Service Commission recently completed hearings on an appraisal of the company's property made by the commission's engineers and accountants.

The commission ordered a tentative rate reduction of about 3.5 per cent some months ago, but this was suspended by an injunction which the company obtained in the Federal Court at Kansas City.

Answer to Dear Ladies.
What Did the King Do?
A Great Frenchman.
Women Are Braver.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1934.)

ESTIMABLE ladies, with good intentions, ask 1000 political candidates:

"Will you support the reduction of armaments and advocate practical substitutes for war?"

The candidates might reply:

"Dear lady, yours received and contents noted. I'll be delighted to advocate 'practical substitutes for war' if you will tell me what they ARE and prove that they ARE practical.

"I confess that I don't think you can substitute a game of 'ring-around-a-rosy' for war with any Asiatic Power. And I don't think a nice kiss on each cheek would keep Hitler, Stalin or Mussolini from starting a war if he wanted one.

"Until you present a 'practical substitute for war' that will work, I shall vote to increase United States armaments until this country is sufficiently powerful in the air and under the water to destroy the cities, the populations and the shipping of any nation on earth."

"Weeping, mourning peasants line the way as King Alexander's body is taken to the city of Zagreb."

Reading that, you wonder what those peasants, slaving their lives away for the privilege of paying taxes, imagine that their King ever did for them except allow them to support him in luxury.

Victims of a blood thirsty Ivan the Terrible of Russia prayed for that monstrous tyrant as they died under torture by his orders. And peasants of France, most miserable of creatures under the rule of their Kings, fought stupidly against the French revolution that was to free them from their Kings and make them owners of the soil of France, to which they had been attached as miserable serfs.

With the death of Raymond Poincare, France loses a noble patriot and great statesman.

Four times Prime Minister of France, he was war-time President of the French republic.

All of France knows that Poincare, a devoted patriot, member of one of the most distinguished intellectual families of France, died of strain and overwork, to which he cheerfully submitted in the service of his country.

Happy the nation that, like France, can boast of so many devoted sons, shining with patriotism through the ages, from Duguesclin, the young fighter from Brittany, to the great old patriot Clemenceau, the scientific genius Pasteur, and all the long line of great French patriots, warriors, scholars, scientists.

Of Poincare, now dead, it may be said that no party owned him, that he cared nothing for popularity, devoting all his intelligence and high principle to France; also that no breath of scandal was ever attached to his name. His moral and intellectual integrity were above reproach.

The driver of a truck in Kentucky says he saw Mrs. Stoll, kidnaped, alive, bound and gagged in an automobile. The kidnapers pointed a pistol at the truck driver, who went about his business.

He will not be generally criticised for doing no better, it being recognized among men that, when another has "the drop" on you you are justified in quitting.

The theory would not hold with thousands of women. Any one of them would have jumped into that car, taking the risk of a bullet in an effort to free the woman.

Women are much braver than men, on the average. For proof of it, look at the wives of 1200 striking miners threatening to commit mass suicide at the botton of a coal mine in Hungary. All the energy of troops at the mouth of the mine is needed to keep back the wives of those miners, determined to go down and die with the fathers of their children. That is "the way women are."

Sir Arthur Schuster, one of England's ablest mathematical physicists, is dead at 83. Born in Frankfort, a German of the Jewish race, he chose to live and work in England for many years.

Had he stayed in Germany he probably would have been driven out in his old age. The British King conferred knighthood upon him, making him "Sir Arthur" Schuster, in appreciation of his services to science and Britain.

England is a country that knows enough to recognize and appreciate ability, instead of envying, or hating it.

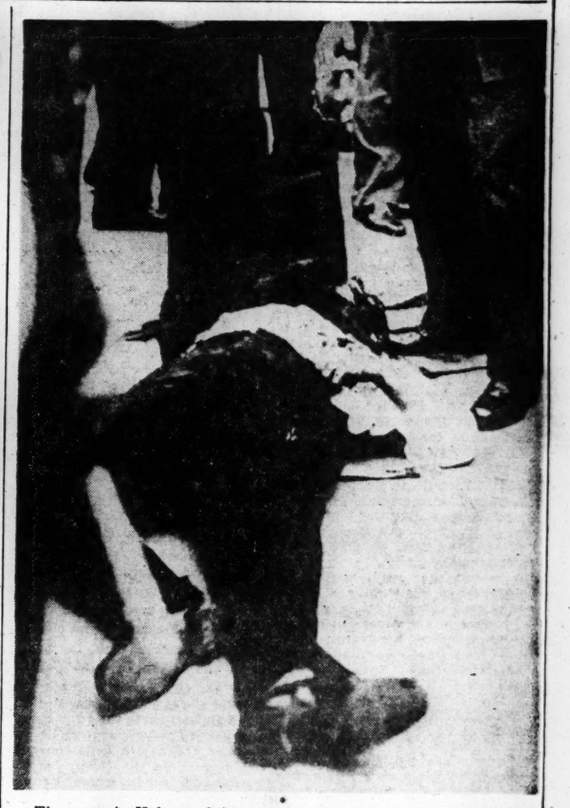

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation tells those that have borrowed its hundreds of millions "leniency will be granted to all borrowers" wherever possible. Those that borrowed may put off the date

PHOTOGRAPHS MADE AT THE ASSASSINATION OF THE KING OF YUGOSLAVIA

This remarkable snapshot was taken just a few seconds after a Croatian had fired at King Alexander and Foreign Minister Barthou as they rode side by side in an automobile through the streets of Marseilles. The assassin himself, standing by side of the car, had just received a blow from the saber of the soldier on horseback as the camera's shutter clicked.

The Old Folks Cause as Much Harm as Youth

The Younger Generation Is Not Entirely to Blame for Conditions.

By Elsie Robinson

ALL my life I've been hearing the Older Generation bawl out the younger and blame it for most of our social messes and misfortunes. Such sermonizing, according to the O. G., was a solemn duty.

Elsie Robinson

But it was always plain that the old meanies got a kick out of it as well. For nothing makes you so pleasingly confident of your virtues (particularly if you haven't many) as lambasting the other fellow's vices. Yet, even as a child I suspected that the Grownups needed the lectures far more than the Kids. And now that I'm an Oldster myself, I'm sure of it.

Youth, I admit, is, pesty — reckless, sassy, extravagant generally rambunctious. But the impulsiveness of Youth hasn't done a millionth part as much damage as the indifference of Age.

It wasn't the recklessness of Youth that caused the World War, precipitated the market crash, put 90 per cent of our American money into the hands of 1 per cent of the people, and finally resulted in our shameful, tragic, heartbreaking bread lines. It was the greediness of their elders, their complacent stupidity and hypocrisy, their heartless disregard of human rights and human misery.

We wag our heads over adolescent pranks, but who is responsible for a social order defiled by child labor, the social evil, political corruption, sweatshops, illiteracy, the dope traffic, a criminal underworld? Sister and Junior? NO! MAMA AND PAPA, UNCLE AND AUNTIE AND THE BOYS THEY ELECT TO RUN THE RACKET.

Society jails hot-blooded young fools. But what does it do to cold-blooded old ones? IT PUTS THEIR PICTURES IN THE SOCIETY COLUMNS AND PAYS THEM 8 PER CENT DIVIDENDS.

How many words were written condemning Flaming Youth during our late, unlamented Prohibition era? Miles and miles of them. But who stocked the cellars, invented the Cocktail Hour—and put a brass rail in front of almost every fireside? The kids? Wrong again. It was the Old Home Guard. For every tipsy youngster there were a hundred swacked Moms and Dads.

Young things, I repeat, are pesty. But Youth is born with a song in its heart and stars in its eyes—and a hunger for brave crusades, tingling in its veins. If that song is dulled, if those stars are dimmed, if the crusade ends in the gutter, it is not the fault of Youth—it is the fault of we Older Ones who have created this sick, sad, sordid world in which Youth must seek its adventure. We have poisoned the air Youth breathes; we have set the streets with snares.

IT has been written—"HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER." But in the days when that was written fathers and mothers were also supposed to honor themselves and the land which they guarded. I am a mother. Yet I said this to my child during those years when we walked together, and I would say this to every other child if I could—

"FORGET THAT COMMANDMENT! DO NOT LOVE ME, DO NOT EVEN ENDURE ME UNLESS I AM WORTHY! And make me prove that worthiness. Do not let me off because I am a mother, or because I am older, or because I have more money or power or worldly experience than you have. Judge me only by my record.

"And if I cannot command your respect by that record, let there be no pretense between us. Hate and despise me as I deserve to be despised. For if I am not worthy of admiration, it is better for you to openly ridicule and defy me than to go through false forms of respect through fear or pity.

"You have a big job before you. You must carry on the job which I am laying down. Do not follow my trail unless it has been a good trail. Do not pretend to honor anything or anybody that is not worthy of honor. DO NOT MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR LOAFERS, GRAFTERS, HYPOCRITES OR FOOLS!"

That is what I would have every mother say to her child—every old person say to every young person—if I had my way. What a nobler place this world would be if Youth could put Age on the carpet, when and if Age deserves it!

Sweet Potato Croquettes

The perfect potato for the winter luncheon platter. Mix together two and one-half cups mashed sweet potatoes, two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons milk, one well-beaten egg, one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons chopped blanched almonds, one-fourth teaspoon paprika. Cool, then mold into croquettes, in the center of each placing a maraschino cherry. Roll in egg and breadcrumbs and fry in deep boiling fat.

NO HOST

Champion Guest of Washington Never Reciprocates on Dinners

MR. AND MRS. GARNER . . . he doesn't like a top hat.

By Katherine Macy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.

IN this caste-ridden city where "eat and pay back" is the rule, the Vice-President and his wife are magnificently exempt from all but the eating . . . and fortunately, for it would take a millionaire's income, not the $15,000 yearly paid our American Prince of Wales, to return all the dinners at which he is the ranking guest.

Since the President dines out only with the Vice-President, the Speaker of the House and the Cabinet, John Nance Garner and his wife are the administration diners-out.

Mr. Garner cares little for society and prefers the days when he was Speaker and held a little court every evening in the lobby of the Washington hotel, where he still lives. Yet he is heir to the throne and ranks above everyone else, even to the extent that he and the hostess, rather than his wife with the host, sometimes lead the dinner procession.

No one asks the Vice-President to dine without first asking the option of a date, and since the country was made precedence-conscious by the Dolly Gann affair, the wise hostess never asks him to dine with the Speaker of the House.

Too, the Vice-President vs. ambassador question has been a touchy one as far back as 1905, when Theodore Roosevelt agreed with his Vice-President, Fairbanks, that the latter should precede the diplomats. For several years after, diplomats simply refused invitations where they might encounter the Vice-President and are still seldom asked with him.

But Cabinet members, rather than the Vice-President or the more picturesque diplomats, are the social lions of the New Deal. There seem to be hundreds of persons who boast they are "just like this" with Farley. Henry Wallace, despite his reticence and well-known vegetarian leanings, might dine out with his attractive wife every night of the week. Cabinet wives draw the largest of any "gates" on their weekly Wednesdays at home. On the society pages, they rank everyone but the Roosevelts, the Garners and the Ambassadors.

• • •

POLITICAL hostesses capitalize their drawing power in a round of entertaining and return dinners strain the Cabinet pocketbook, none too fat on $15,000 a year . . . minus the 15 per cent! They are obligated for more dinners than perhaps any officials in Washington.

Teas are tremendous items, and their wives think little of shopping around for the most effective cakes at the least expense. The official prerogatives, daily flowers from the Government greenhouses, use of the navy boats for Secretary Swanson, and so on, are small compensations.

The weekly calendar of a Cabinet member's wife has to fit into the capital's geometric pattern of social precedence. Despite John Quincy Adams' protest a century ago that Senators are so much more numerous than Cabinet members that they should tender first calls, she must call at least once a year on all the Senators' wives, as well as on the White House, the Vice-President's wife, and wives of Ambassadors, Foreign Ministers, and the Speaker of the House.

Moreover, she is seldom able to just send in with the chauffeur the cards engraved with her name and her husband's official title: Hostesses "not at home" to anyone else make a point of receiving a Cabinet wife.

Except for very good reason (announced in the society columns) she receives every Wednesday callers from the hundreds on her list who rank below the Senators. She stands with her husband in the receiving line at every state reception at the White House and frequently dines there.

There was once a Cabinet member's wife whom Washington tried to ostracize. When Eaton, Jackson's Secretary of War, married Peggy O'Neale, the other Cabinet wives did not welcome her into their midst. President Jackson, whose own wife's heart had been broken by social prejudice, said, "receive her or resign." The Cabinet resigned.

But in 1934, in their own ranks and outside, all Cabinet members now have a very definite standing in Wasington society. They rank below the President, the Vice-President, Justices of the Supreme Court, Ambassadors, Foreign Ministers and the Speaker of the House. Everyone else, including both Houses of Congress, sits below them.

On advice of the protocol division of the state department, which only advises, never publishes, official pronouncements on precedence in the United States, the Secretary of State is now given a permanent place of his own just below the Speaker. At Foreign Embassies, he ranks everyone but the President or Vice-President.

One calls a Cabinet member "Mr. Secretary," except for "Mr. Postmaster General" or "Mr. Attorney General," and in entertaining more than one of them, a hostess must realize that each has his own place in the Cabinet list, based on the year his office was created.

• • •

THAT is the reason Frances Perkins, a Cabinet member in her own right, sits below Mrs. Henry Wallace, or any other Cabinet wives at dinner. The departments in order of their formation, are: State, Treasury, War, Justice, Postoffice, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor.

Highest point in a cabinet member's social year is usually his dinner to the President and first lady. The Roosevelts dined this year only with the Cabinet en masse, and quite informally.

But in less busy years, each Cabinet member in turn receives the President at the door of his house or apartment in smart northwest Washington and introduces to him the circled guests. Formality is a little loosened here: the Cabinet is the administration's official family, and closer to the White House socially than any other group.

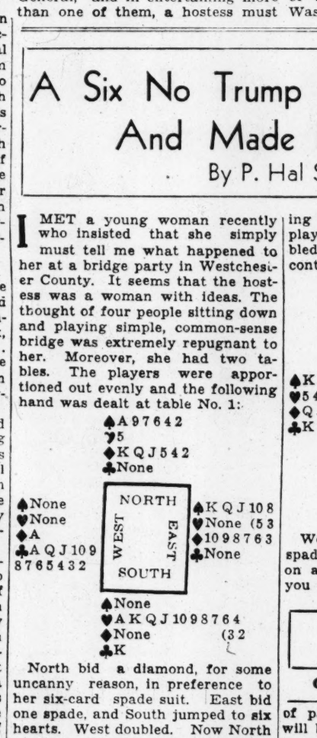

It is hard to realize, when the "ins" are so definitely in, that the "outs" are swept from the headlines so quickly. No one disappears from the Washington society pages more swiftly than a former Cabinet member, unless it is a former Vice-President, even if they stay in the city.

Mr. Curtis still practices law here, but one seldom hears of him. Mr. Patrick Hurley practices law in Washington and rides to the hounds in nearby Virginia . . . but not for the newspapers. They are given a consoling "honorable" in the telephone book, but their places at the dinner tables are far, far below the salt.

A Six No Trump Bid Played And Made By Either Side

By P. Hal Sims

I MET a young woman recently who insisted that she simply must tell me what happened to her at a bridge party in Westchester County. It seems that the hostess was a woman with ideas. The thought of four people sitting down and playing simple, common-sense bridge was extremely repugnant to her. Moreover, she had two tables. The players were apportioned out evenly and the following hand was dealt at table No. 1:

North bid a diamond, for some uncanny reason, in preference to her six-card spade suit. East bid one spade, and South jumped to six hearts. West doubled. Now North made the splendid rescue bid of six no trumps, which was passed around to West, who doubled gleefully. East opened the king of spades. Result: North made seven no trumps, doubled at six.

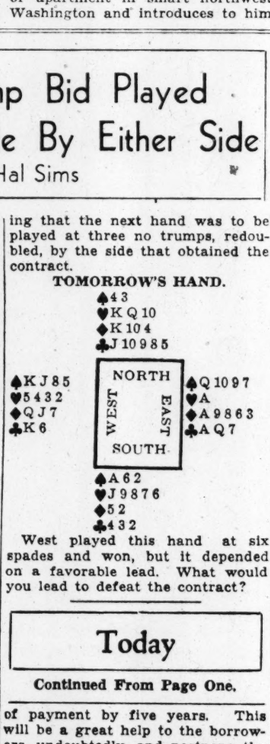

At this point the hostess, chuckling softly to herself, announced that the hand played by table No. 1 would now be played by table No. 2. Amid shrieks of feminine laughter, she elaborated her plan. East and West were to play the hand at the contract at which North and South had originally played it; in this case, six no trumps, doubled.

"I won't tell you the bidding," she said, frowning prettily at North. "That will be your handicap."

North, after studying her hand thoughtfully, opened the king of diamonds. Result: East and West made seven no trumps, doubled.

Well, you should have heard the comments. The hand was oh-ed and ah-ed over for at least 10 minutes. The hostess didn't join in, however. She was studying a memorandum preparatory to announcing that the next hand was to be played at three no trumps, redoubled, by the side that obtained the contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

West played this hand at six spades and won, but it depended on a favorable lead. What would you lead to defeat the contract?

of payment by five years. This will be a great help to the borrowers, undoubtedly, and postpone the bad news for five years, in case any borrowers can't pay ever. That is bound to happen in certain instances, but the loss will properly be charged to "national recovery." A nation that can afford to lend $10,000,000,000 to foreign nations engaged in cutting each other's throats, never getting it back, can afford to lose a few hundred millions to its own citizens in the effort to overcome depression.

Farmers in various places, particularly the West, find energetic ways of expressing their opinions. In the Imperial Valley they disposed, with amazing energy, of men whom they called "agitators."

Now in Paradise Valley, Arizona, 500 farmers arrange an angry public demonstration, hang and burn in effigy Gov. Moeur of Arizona, and Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior. This to express anger at the failure of Secretary Ickes to approve an irrigation loan that would have brought water to Paradise Valley,

Children's Ideals Often Upset by Divorced Parents

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

THERE had been trouble in the Smith family, which finally ended in divorce. The children were given to Mrs. Smith's care, but were to see their father periodically.

The divorce had begun as one of the kind which are called friendly. But as is so often the case, old grievances had been aired, new ones developed.

Of course, it was the children who suffered. They loved both parents, and were still too young to understand the issues involved or to take an impartial stand. They had to listen to their mother criticising their father, and their father speaking slightingly of their mother. Small wonder that their nerves were on edge. In school they were problem children and they looked under-nourished and strained.

There have always been children whom death has deprived of one parent or the other. But these children have not come to be regarded by the world as problem children. The child who has lost a parent by divorce, however, is in a very different position, for he is generally torn in two emotionally by the uncontrol of the father and mother whom he was taught to love and admire.

Perhaps it would be better if he were not obliged to see both parents, but could live with the one exclusively; as if he had lost the other by death. The parents themselves would have less temptation to talk if the rivalry which causes jealousy were removed. Sometimes boarding school which separates the child from both parents is advisable.

Certainly the worst thing that can happen is for the child to be dragged into the quarrel and forced to take sides and hand down decisions in a conflict between the two beloved and important figures of his infancy.

Sugar Sirup

A sirup of sugar and water is always better than plain sugar when sweetening fruit punches or alcoholic drinks. The sweetness may be governed much more readily and there is no waste of sugar which did not dissolve.

Don't forget to turn that rug around during the fall cleaning this year. It means even wear.

Gay Colors Are Seen in New Frocks

Green and Red Are Favorites —Light Wool Is Leading Material.

By Sylvia

IN preparation for those cold days when fur coats feel good, St. Louis stores are introducing a bevy of bright colored dresses. The greens and the reds are the gayest of the season. Occasionally a novel plaid or checked silk appears. Irish green and deep purple combine in a large checked pattern that is as novel as anything you'll see. The material is a heavy silk and the style of the dress quite tailored. A yoke has deep tucks that are released to form lower blouse fullness and there are quite full sleeves gathered into straight band cuffs. A zipper closing is an added feature.

• • •

Blousiness such as that described above is important in the new bright, colored frocks. Many of them are made of heavy crepes and designed in modifications of the shirt waist theme. The modification has to do with the fullness, usually provided by tucks and pleats. A dark red frock has a box-pleated blouse that fastens at the front with flat, gold buttons. The skirt is strictly plain.

• • •

Among these new bright dresses are sufficient gray ones to indicate that this shade can't be overlooked for winter. Light weight wool is the favored material and there is plenty of variety as to styling. A tunic frock has a moderately low round neckline and three-quarter length sleeves that flare. The lowness of the neck and the shortness of the sleeves were provided so that a bright green crepe underblouse could be seen.

• • •

Shades of green blend in a way you'll be proud to show in an afternoon frock of elegrant crepe weave. The under skirt and lower part of the tunic are of deep bottle green. Strips of three lighter shades, the lightest being chartreuse, are arranged to form a yoke and sleeves. A draped collar that falls in graceful folds continues with the variegated theme.

• • •

Duvetyn is a fabric which you'll be seeing around at the smart spots of the town this winter. So you might as well begin early and hunt for a frock of this soft-finished material. There's a bright example in one of the stores to give you an idea. Its shade is that of the billiard table. Created in the overblouse style with large covered buttons fastening the front, gold nail heads provide the sole contrasting trimming. These are concentrated on hip flaps which look as though they should be pockets.

• • •

A bit of fur may be the means of transforming a nondescript frock into a very impressive costume. The most interesting spot to put the fur is on the cuff, especially if the sleeve is three-quarter length. Several bright shades as well as brown are attractive in combination with kolinsky. One frock with that high-in-front-neckline look, deep armholes and a figure-helping hipline has its three-quarter draped sleeves banded with this fur. A gold clip at the front of the neck is the only other trimming.

• • •

Three dog collars, one larger than the others, grace a dark green frock. The large collar circles the neckline and the others form bracelet cuffs. The gold colored metal of which they are made, looks much heavier than it is. Mossy crepe is the fabric that shows off these metal accents to such advantage.

• • •

A tight-fitting jacket of gold flecked white crepe is the feature of a dinner gown that makes you want to buy it. This jacket is patterned after the cut of a tuxedo but is much more form revealing. It covers a low-cut metallic bodice attached to a black crepe skirt. Certain slits are the skirt's only bid for fame.

• • •

When a frock has a top of satin or taffeta this assures it a certain neckline glamour. A rust colored frock of very light weight feathery wool has not only a yoke but cuffs and belt of matching satin. Round yoke and wing-like epaulets of brown taffeta dress up a brown alpaca.

Cheesed Squares.

Twelve two-inch squares bread.
Four tablespoons butter.
One-third cup grated cheese.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Mix butter, cheese and salt. Spread on bread. Arrange on shallow pan and brown in moderate oven. Serve warm.

Faith Baldwin Will Write For Movies—Charley Chan Back

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.

THE fast-growing Hollywood intelligentsia will have a pleasant addition when Faith Baldwin arrives here. I met Faith in the Cosmopolitan offices in New York when she came in to see our mutual boss, H. P. Burton, the editor. She had just sold her story "American Family" and the whole office was all agog. She is a shy little person without any of the temperament you'd expect in an author who is rapidly becoming one of the most widely read writers in America.

Faith Baldwin

Miss Baldwin comes to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and her first assignment is with Hunt Stromberg for whom she will write an original. Stromberg is the lad who produced "The Thin Man" and a number of MGM hits.

• • •

I don't know what arrangement the Fox Company made with the estate of the late Earl Derr Biggers but in spite of Biggers' death, his "Charley Chan" yarns go on. Philip MacDonald writes the new scenarios following the pattern so successfully laid down by the author during his lifetime. The new MacDonald-Chan opera is "Charley Chan in Paris" with, of course, Warner Oland in the lead.

• • •

Maureen O'Sullivan in the hospital for observation, has had to bow out of the lead in "Backfield." But as is often the case in the movies, her illness gives another girl a chance to step in and make a name for herself. Betty Furness is the lucky girl who gets Maureen's place in "Backfield" with Russell Mack directing her. Interesting story about Betty. She couldn't seem to click at RVKO but now that she is on the MGM lot she seems to be going along all right. Don't for a minute think that Mervyn Le Roy forgot all about the movies while he was on his honeymoon with Doris Warner. He met Paul de Ricou, a 24-year-old Frenchman en route home, and he and Doris were constantly in the boy's company. When the boat docked for a day at San Pedro he had young de Ricou rush to the Warner studio and took a test of him.

The Cary Grant-Virginia Cherrill lawyers meet tomorrow for a round table discussion. Money, the old root of all evil, is said to be the subject involved. Milton Cohen is representing Virginia, while Pat Milligan will look out for Cary Grant's interests. Friends still hope that Virginia and Cary will forget their difficulties and get together. Too bad that this marriage had to go on the rocks when the issue at stake is such a minor one and could be so easily adjusted.

Alfred Santell cables from London. He said he didn't do a walkout of the Toeplitz production. It was just a matter of disagreement on the production and he felt he couldn't direct it under the conditions imposed upon him. Saw Ramon Navarro on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, pounds thinner. He had just been chatting with Edward Everett Horton, who plays a part in Novarro's picture, "The Night Is Young," and they were laughing over the time when Ramon was an usher at the old Majestic Theater and Horton was the star. This is the first time they have been together since those early days. Genevieve Tobin moves to Universal on a loan from Warner Brothers. She is the lead in Roger Pryor's picture, "Strange Wives."

A Discussion Of Frequently Misused Words

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

IF words were able to bring actions for libel, some of our best words would win heavy damages in the courts. It is simply outrageous the way we mistreat noble and useful words.

We need a society for the prevention of cruelty to words. Not a few words are worn out through overwork and need rest. Simple words are employed to hide truth, and honest words are used to tell lies.

Humpty-Dumpty said that he made words mean what he wanted them to mean. All of us do it, without any feeling for what the words were intended to mean. But worst of all is the slander of words.

Take the fine word Habit in a sentence like this: "In middle life habits which begin as cobwebs tend to become cables." At once we see a poor wretch struggling in a tangle of mesh and then later being strangled to death by a net work of iron ropes.

But what about the other side of Habit? Why should we not think of good habits getting such a hold upon a man that by and by we may say of him, in reference to some wrong thing: He is so in the grip of habit that it would be impossible for him to do it.

Or take the splendid word Heredity—how terribly it is mishandled! So and so is the victim of heredity, we are told; and we know well enough what is meant. But what about the thousands who are beneficiaries of heredity, and reckon it as a blessing?

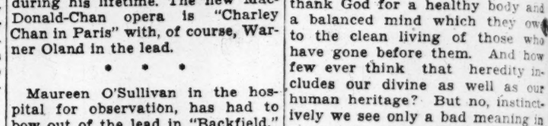

There are hosts of men who thank God for a healthy body and a balanced mind which they owe to the clean living of those who have gone before them. And how few ever think that heredity includes our divine as well as our human heritage? But no, instinctively we see only a bad meaning in a great, deep, beautiful word.

Will the word Discipline ever again mean training for service, not a punishment for wrong? When will the word Love be rescued from the bog of sentimentalism and lifted to its true right and worth? We need a new deal in the use and treatment of words.

WINTER COATS

Fur Yokes Are Indicators of Smartness for the New Season

By Sylvia Stiles

IF you want to determine the chic of a winter coat get out a yard stick and measure the number of inches across the collar and the cuffs and the depth of a fur yoke. The number and the size of the darts at the waistline likewise will prove a fashion guide as well as the size of a shoulder cape.

When you obtain the measurements of the collar and cuffs, remember that small figures rather than large ones count. The opposite is true with other style factors. A collar that is only a few inches across and has small points that stand up defiantly under the chin is a badge of smartness. The same is true of a cuff that is made of such a tiny scrap of fur it scarcely can be seen.

But a coat that boasts of a cape collar must be generous in the use of its fur. To meet with complete fashion approval this cape should be sufficiently large to be draped in various ways. One day it may appear as a rippling collar with the fullness bunched around the back of the neck and cascading toward the front. The next day it may swathe the shoulders with square, military precision.

The yoke situation is as large if not larger than the cape. This holds good more emphatically when the collar is quite small because a deep yoke of Persian lamb or of beaver calls attention by contrast to the skimpiness of a collar. Occasionally the entire bodice is covered with fur. More often points that extend down the front or the back expand over the shoulders into parts of sleeves.

The other determining factor in the newness of a coat, that of waistline darts, may not seem so significant but that is because some feminine figures don't give it a chance. A certain silhouette which features the fitted lines that are provided by darts is looming on the fashion horizon, but it is a youthful silhouette and calls for slenderness.

You can get an idea of the darted waistline from the coat sketched second from the left. In studying it you will decide that after all it is merely a dressed up reefer, and you won't be far from wrong. St. Louis retailers have some stunning examples in their newest collections and report that the last minute fashion showings in New York Herald this style. The coat sketched is double-breasted and has slanting flap pockets. The material is a jacquard woven brown wool and the fur trimming is sable dyed kolinsky. The cape collar is of the sort described above. It may be worn rippled or straight. Deep cuffs that accompany collar of this type are flared.

The coat sketched at extreme left is typical of the ones that emphasize the "little collar vogue." Black diagonal woolen is enhanced with black Persian lamb. The small fur collar is worn with one ear standing up aand the other turned down—a very nonchalant and, therefore, very smart gesture. The collar and the yoke are made in one piece and what is lacking in depth on the front or back is made up for on the sleeves. The lower part of the sleeves introduces the cloth again. Fullness starts at the elbow and extends downward rather than upward in contrast to last year's styles.

Above and to the right of the reefer coat is one which shows the little cuff idea to perfection. These cuffs are in reality squares of fur with the center cut out to omit the hand and a few gathers added. They are of black Persian lambs, as is the stunning collar which may be worn fastened closely about the throat or turned down to show large lapels. Among other noteworthy features of this coat are the diagonal waffle weave of the material, the back section cut in one with the sleeves, and the fullness of these sleeves. The wide belt of the material has a covered buckle.

WHILE the majority of the newest coats introduce trimmings of flat furs, the elegant silver fox collar continues to withstand competition. Perhaps this is because it provides such a handsome frame for the face. Designers this season are featuring some new treatments of the fur. One of these is shown on the coat in the circle. The fur is cut and applied so that two different collars are provided. The fox may be worn with wide lapels or one of these lapels may be brought up and draped across the front. The latter style is illustrated. The material of this coat is a diagonal black woolen. Sleeves have a gored section that forms width at the elbows. The wide fabric belt has a "washboard" metal front.

Directly below this coat is sketched a part of a coat to show the bolero or deep yoke effect as it is interpreted this season. The material is an imported black woolen which has a dotted weave. Sable dyed kolinsky is applied flat to the front and back of the coat to give the suggestion of a bolero. The skins are put on with a scalloped line. Three-quarter length sleeves of the kolinsky are rather full and there are tight cloth sleeves underneath. The standing collar may be fastened at the side or worn turned over in front to form lapels.

All of these coats have satin linings, another feature which serves to stamp the elegance and the chic of a coat this season.

An Objection To Parental Supervision

Sometimes Interest in Children, Not Curiosity, Prompts Prying.

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WHAT do you think of parents breaking locks on diaries to find out what is written inside; also, opening letters and reading them? I cannot tell you what I think, so you better give them a little advice yourself. I think they need it. S. K. M.

And perhaps they think you may need a few suggestions yourself. It doesn't seem quite reasonable that parents would take such extreme measure without some drastic need. If this is a matter of curiosity, then this sort of thing is degrading and beneath them.

If you have given your parents reason to suspect that you have associations and are going to places or doing things which might hurt you or bring tragedy or unhappiness upon your future, then I think they are to be excused in taking any means to keep you from cutting your throat.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you please tell me if it would be wise to marry a boy of different nationality? 2—How much should a girl of 16, 5 feet and 4 inches tall, weigh? SIS.

Much of the population of this country is made up of different nationalities which have intermarried. But you must be sure, beforehand, that the difference of tastes and customs of the two countries have been reconciled and agreed upon or else there will be no harmony for you in such a marriage.

Your weight should be about 116.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE just read the letter from "Just A Youngster" to me telling me of her experience and the loss of her mother through neglect of tuberculosis. I want this young girl to know that she has helped me to see my way more clearly. I have been just a selfish coward, afraid of losing part of my freedom for a while.

Mrs. Carr, my heart aches for that youngster and her sister, left alone to face so much so young. And I don't want to have my boy in like circumstances. I have taken good care of myself and have put on 15 pounds weight and my boy is a husky lad. I will say to "Just A Youngster" that I am too much Irish to be a quitter. All arrangements have been made now for me to go to Koch's soon, as they have room for me. I am going to fight for my health and the health of my son. MOTHER.

* * *

My dear Mrs. Carr:

AT your earliest opportunity, I would appreciate your advice or solution of what seems a big problem to me. My husband takes the greatest pleasure in being very frank in his conversation with a married girl friend of mine, and is very affectionate toward her (in my presence always). He tells me I am a child and pretends great broadmindedness.

All this nonsense has utterly disgusted me and I've come to the point where I actually loathe him. After four years of married life, he compares me to his former lady friends—and it seems that the comparison is always favorable to them. I am dumb, ignorant and far from able to meet his intelligent debate. And he doesn't stop at words, but strikes me when I provoke him. Really, I will do something desperate one of these days. NARROW-MINDED.

If to preserve a little dignity in your house and to show your distaste for such asinine conceit and bad breeding, is unenlightened and narrow-minded in his estimation, I think you may regard the "title" with pride and all appreciation. You have every reason to be disgusted with this attitude on his part, which he terms broadmindedness, and are justified in showing it both to your (former) friend and to this man. You surely will not continue your friendship with the woman and the great wonder is that you will tolerate a man after he has struck you the first time!

* * *

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

HOW shall I have my cards printed: Mary Smith Brown, Mary Ellen Brown or Mrs. Henry Brown? I shall only use them among clubs, societies, for showers and such. MRS. C.

Your cards will be the same whether you use them for calling or anything else. "Mrs. Henry Brown" or "Mrs. Henry Coulter Brown" (if your husband has a middle name). If you are a divorcee, "Mrs. Ellen Smith Brown" or "Mrs. Smith Brown."

Any good stationer can show you the correct forms for engraving personal cards. Printed cards are not considered good form.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM 15 years old. This being a small town, I know all the popular girls and boys, but am unable to come in contact with them and become one of the popular ones. Will you please tell me how to become popular among these girls and boys? I have a boy friend but he moved away.

2—How can I get rid of freckles and blackheads?

3—Is it all right to wear different colored bracelets with a dress? I have a brown dress but no brown bracelet. UNPOPULAR GERRY.

Do you know, you should pay a little more attention to your education, spelling and writing for instance, cultivate a little working knowledge of what is going on, make yourself useful and kindly to those around and be just as neat as possible without worrying about bracelets—then your popularity might come spontaneously. You know popularity is not such a superficial thing as it is supposed to be—not always a manner, curly hair, the latest in lip-sticks, the newest color nor the highest heels.

Of course, I will be glad to send you an article on popularity, one on blackheads and one on freckles, if you will send the self-addressed, stamped envelope. Get busy with the real things, then, at your age, you will properly forget about the boy who has moved away and get another in due time. Bracelets are often a contrast in color.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Problems of Social Usage In Dining Room

Water Glasses Remain on Table, Wine Glasses Change With Wine.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

WHEN are both water glasses and wineglasses removed from the dining table?

Answer: Water glasses never. Wineglasses are removed only when another wine is to take the place of the one being served. If you serve chablis or sherry and then claret or champagne, sherry or chablis glasses are removed before claret or champagne is poured. When only one wine is served the glasses remain.

Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: When a woman dines at home alone with a man, does she offer everything to him first? There is no waitress. I insisted that a friend help himself first and he took each dish that I proffered but before helping himself to anything, held the platter or dish for me. Was this as correct as it is polite?

Answer: Yes, his behavior was quite perfect.

Dear Mrs. Post: Without a servant, is everything supposed to be removed from the dining table, even crumbs, before dessert is served? And what about dessert if I, the hostess, serve this in front of me, when is the silver put on the table?

Answer: If you are in the habit of getting up and waiting on the table it would be neater certainly to have the table cleared and crumbed. But if you arrange to serve without leaving your place, you couldn't. As I have many times explained, whenever adjustment of formal precepts must be made, they should follow your own interpretation of expedience.

Dear Mrs. Post: Should butter be placed on waffles, corn on the cob, potatoes and on other food, where spreading is not necessary, with the fork or knife?

Answer: Knife for waffles, and knife usually for corn on the cob, but fork for potato, and fork if the corn has been cut off.

My dear Mrs. Post: When coffee is served with thin sandwiches for evening refreshments, are demitasses used or regular breakfast size cups?

Answer? Demi-tasses usually, but I can see no reason why large cups of breakfast coffee might not be proffered those who like larger cups and milk in coffee better than little cups of coffee that is black.

A Menu for Today

Planned by Dr. William H. Hay

BREAKFAST

Unsweetened pineapple juice.
Milk or buttermilk.

LUNCHEON.

Apple, celery and grape salad.
Mayonnaise dressing.
Parsley carrots.
Dessert: Seedless grapes.

DINNER.

Celery soup.
Radishes, celery and ripe olives.
Cheese omelette.
Steamed cauliflower.
Steamed beets.
Dessert: Apple sauce with raisins and cream.

Coffee with cream and sugar may be added to any starch meal. Coffee with cream and no sugar may be added to a protein or alkaline forming meal.

Often Musseo.

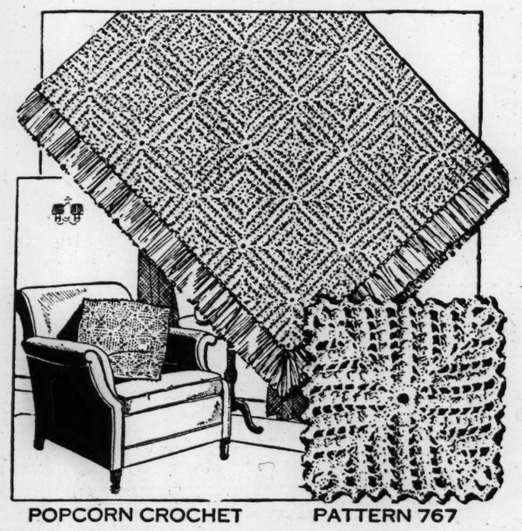

Hang the "rest" center-piece on a towel rack during the meal time. Then when the table is cleared it may be put back again free from nasty wrinkles and creases.

At Once.

Paint all cuts and nail brushes with iodine as soon as the accident occurs and safeguard against infection. Nine times out of ten this precaution will halt inflammation. Should the manicuring scissors slip, get right on the job with the iodine brush.

Powdered borax sprinkled around in the haunts of ants or roaches will sometimes rid them entirely.

POPCORN CROCHET PATTERN 767

HERE is the popular popcorn crochet worked into a square that makes a most effective bedspread and pillow top. By using the thread double, the squares would be heavy enough for hot plate mats, a number of the squares forming one mat. The finished spread has the effect of a quantity of small striped squares.

Pattern 767 comes to you with detailed directions for making the square and joining it to form various articles; material requirements; illustration of the square and of the stitches used.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE
» by WYNN «

For Wednesday, Oct. 17.

GIVE a thought to home conditions; smooth out whatever wrinkles may be visible. Avoid friction with elders till mid-afternoon. Improving with the opposite sex in later hours. Make the evening socially pleasant and useful.

Be More Attractive.

Sons and daughters of June 21-30, inclusive, should not do all they can to express their talents along lines of writing, composing, art, music or invention, for they are in a creative period for almost all of the coming 12 months, especially from now till the end of November. This is also a strong vibration for affections, for it tends to make you more attractive to the other sex. If already married, make it the occasion for renewing vows and taking another honeymoon. If single, enjoy yourself, but don't decide or do anything definite without the assistance of your reasoning and logical powers. This group includes the birthdays of Irvin S. Cobb, the Prince of Wales, Jack Dempsey, Helen Keller, John Golden, George Weston and Walter Hampden.

Your Year Ahead.

Natives of this birthdate are feeling strongly vibrations of change and possible uprooting, to continue for some time to come. This will be involved with marriage, partnerships of all types, legal affairs, love interests and possibly your capital and holdings. Don't be afraid to move forward, but think twice at least. Danger: Jan. 14 to April 12, and June 25 to Sept. 3.

Tomorrow.

Get in your good licks early. Hold emotions in evening, be sympathetic.

Gelatine to the Front

Gelatine is a very easily digested food and should be included a great deal in our menus, particularly if there is someone in the family whose digestive tract needs a bit of catering to. Gelatine may be included in so many recipes, not only as a dessert but in soups, salads, mousses, etc. It is a splendid food.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Wife in Custody

A New Serial

By BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

SPRING was a miracle of flowers and fresh green grass. The first day the massive English pram was wheeled into the sunny corner of the open porch, the first crocuses had pushed their heads through the ground and looked bravely about. Daffodils and jonquils burst into bloom and the borders of the garden were covered with the heavenly blue of forget-me-nots.

Helen spent most of the time on the sun porch from which she could see Anton working in the garden. The sun porch was a bower of flowers.

Miss Fredericks brought little Grace in for her feeding.

"The prettiest flower of the lot," she announced cheerily as she placed the baby in Helen's arms. Helen lay on the glider among the pillows. The beauty and graciousness of the green earth, whose fragrance came to her nostrils through the open windows, filled her with an ecstasy that was almost pain. The days grew cold again, of course, and the brave crocuses were pelted with hail, but Helen felt as if she had been born anew in a world whose beauties and glories she had, in her previous life, never known.

In May, Helen felt as if the earth could give forth no greater beauty. The weeping willow trees that bordered the pool were pale green and their lacy branches fell from their limbs like the draperies of tall slim dancers. The forsythia bushes were balls of solid gold. The fruit trees were heavy with blossoms and the ground beneath was snowed over with petals.

The days passed in a dream. A contentment, a fulfillment of her whole being possessed Helen. The outside world no longer existed.

Here over the meadows hung the golden sheen of early Summer. The baby slept peacefully in her pram. The white-figured form of Miss Fredericks was charming against the green. Helen was suffused with love. She hugged Miss Fredericks out of the sheer necessity for embracing a human form. Afternoons Helen squandered happily in anticipation of Walter's homecoming.

They had both decided to forget that night when he went away. They never alluded to it. It might never have happened.

Then in the middle of June, one Friday evening, Walter, without warning, brought Stella back with him. He was nervous and apologetic. Helen knew by the ruts in his forehead that he had not wanted to bring her but had been unable to say no.

"You said she might come," he whispered desperately to Helen as Stella was changing her dress. "Poor kid, she's all broken up. She lost her baby. It's all over. She's closed her apartment and has been staying at mother's."

"Yes, I did say so, Walter," she admitted quietly. Then impulsively: "Poor thing. She looks dreadful. I am sorry for her."

"You're a darling." Walter kissed her gratefully. "Yes, she's aged terribly. She's changed, too, Helen. You'll find her much softer and subdued. All her old high spirit's gone. She won't be any trouble. You don't really mind, do you, Helen?"

She rumpled his thick black hair. "No, not very much. After all, it isn't her fault. She's to be pitied. I'll do all I can to make her comfortable."

For the first few days it seemed to Helen that Stella had really changed. She was so quiet — she scarcely spoke at all. Most of the time she just sat staring ahead of her.

Helen kept little Gracie out of Stella's range of vision. She knew Stella must be suffering because of her frustrated motherhood and her only desire was to spare her and make her loss easier to bear, but Stella's presence in the house was like a cloud that shuts out the sun. For the life of her, Helen couldn't analyze the reason why, when Stella came into the room, Walter on the sofa before the fire, his arms around Helen, would suddenly drop them and get to his feet to search for a cigarette or a match.

"Don't let me interrupt the little love scene," she would say lightly. "I just came in for a book. Honestly, Walter, I didn't know it was in you! You're a regular Don Juan!"

"Quit your kidding." Walter managed to say it lightly. He even resumed his seat but now Helen sat stiffly erect. All the magic had gone out of their evening.

Or else when he came in at night and kissed Helen hungrily, Stella would suggest sardonically, "Shall I leave the room?"

• • •

MOST of the time Helen tried not to let Stella see their love-making. She knew Stella's love for Jerry still consumed her. But this was difficult, for Stella was always about. And Walter too felt her presence oppressing him. She put a damper on his playfulness. Once when he caught Helen up in his arms to dance with her, Stella's acid, "Don't be a clown, Walter," sent the blood receding from his face so that even his lips were white. He tried to ignore her but it was impossible to be gay after that.

Summer melted into fall; autumn merged into winter and Stella was still there.

And now the serenity of Helen's days as well as evenings had fled. Stella suddenly recovered both her equanimity and her poise. She was getting a divorce from Jerry. He had obligingly furnished her with adequate evidence so that she didn't need to bother to go to Reno.

She enjoyed her new freedom from the Salon—Miss Norma was in charge of Forty-fourth street—although Stella made a feint of supervising by phone. During the late summer and early fall she swam every day, took up her horseback riding again and learned to drive the car so that Helen found herself obliged to ask Stella if she was using the car whenever Helen needed it. At Stella's behest Walter joined the Country Club.

"My dear," Stella exclaimed, "there are the most attractive men there. I took quite a shine to that young Jellicott chap. I hear they have loads of money, and he seems smitten with me. My dear! I've invited him for dinner tomorrow night."

"Maybe we can marry her off," Walter suggested hopefully. "After all, the poor kid has had a rotten time of it. And she's so much sweeter, don't you think?"

Helen, who had hoped when winter came that once again her home would be her own, and that Stella would go back, bag and baggage, saw now that her expectations had been in vain. Stella decided she was still too run-down to attempt to go back to town. Besides, she knew if she returned to New York she'd have to resume her work at the Salon. Irene, of course, was now definitely out of Fifty-seventh street. They were all a little aghast to see how beautifully the shop ran without Irene.

"I'll keep Helen company through the winter," she told Walter brightly, "and when Fredericks has her day off I can take care of the baby for Helen. Besides, I don't feel quite well enough yet, dear."

With the cessation of summer sports, however, time began to hang heavily on Stella's hands. She hadn't the concentration to read.

She was restless and unless she had a date she'd wander about, interfere wtih Helen's management of the house and quarrel with Miss Fredericks.

The crowning indignity came on a Friday afternoon in November. Helen had had a persistent unpleasant toothache all morning but had not been able to get the dentist on the phone. His nurse said that Dr. Bancroft never came in on Fridays, but she would try to locate him at his club and call her back. Helen chafed all morning under the nagging ache of the exposed nerve in her tooth—or such she supposed it was. To add to the strain of the situation, Stella was giving a dinner party that night for eight persons and she all but quarreled with Marie on the proper way to stud ham with cloves.

Helen, sensitive to Marie's injured feelings and, what was even worse, aware of the fact that Stella didn't know what she was talking about, had to stand by and say nothing. She knew better than to reprove Stella or to take Marie's part against Stella!

When Helen left the house Stella was haranguing the florist over the phone. He had made some slight mistake in filling Stella's order. Knowing that Helen loved red carnations and always ordered them, he had sent a dozen carnations instead of the red roses Stella had ordered.

"Order the roses, Stella, but let's keep the carnations. I'll take them up to my room," Helen suggested as she drew on her gloves.

"Certainly not! It's a matter of principle. If you're willing to let the tradespeople walk all over you, I'm not! Why should you have the additional expense? No, he'll bring the roses and take back the carnations. That will be a lesson to him to pay proper attention to orders. The idea!"

And she snapped these instructions into the mouthpiece.

SYNOPSIS

Helen Schiller, pretty manicurist in the Forty-fourth street branch of the swanky Anastasia Beauty Salons, so far forgot discipline one morning as to dance a few steps before the work-day began—and was seen by Walter Riley, owner of the salon. He did not speak then about this, but returning that evening to the shop, went to her—and found himself disarmed by her smile, and attracted to her. He asked if he might take her to dance, and she assented.

After one evening at the theater, Helen fell asleep as he drove her to her home in Bay Ridge—and he awakened her with a light kiss. She pushed him away, but he would not be denied, and he kissed her again. Events in the Riley family followed fast, with Irene, who managed the swanky Fifty-seventh salon, marrying the socially-elect Dirk Terhune. After the ceremony, Walter took Stella to the Forty-second street branch. He meets Helen that evening—and they become engaged secretly, because he fears his sisters and mother.

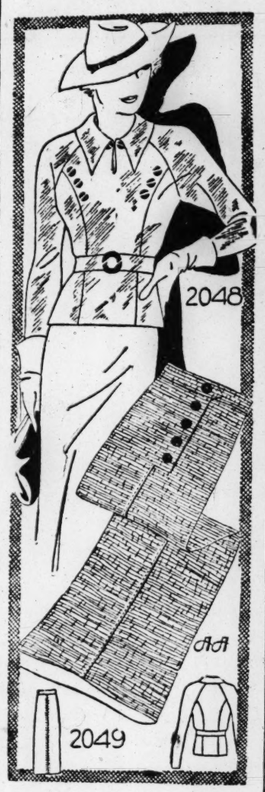

Helen and Walter decide to get married immediately. After the marriage they go to Plaza Hotel, and Helen is overcome by the luxury. The next morning they go to see Walter's family. Walter's mother faints on hearing the news. Dirk is the only one nice to Helen.

Helen finally gets used to the family. She and Walter decide to rebuild the country home. Dirk will help them. When the home is finished, the Rileys move in for frequent visits, much to Helen's discomfort.

Helen tells Walter that she is going to have a baby. He is overjoyed. Stella tries to kill herself when her husband runs off with another woman.

TODAY'S PATTERN

Skirt and Blouse

TODAY we show a blouse and skirt which are very attractive in themselves and go very nicely together. Number 2048 will look well in anything from dull wool jersey to shiny satin. It is a peplum blouse very smart as to sleeves and having a shaped panel, front and back, extremely flattering to the figure. You can omit the six buttons on the front if you like, but they emphasize its good lines. Number 2049 is a skirt which is equally effective in a mixed tweed or one of the more dressy smooth woolens. The way it crosses over and buttons with five big buttons in the front serves as a simple and effective form of trimming.

Pattern 2048 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2¼ yards 39-inch fabric.

Pattern 2049 is available in waist sizes 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34. Size 28 takes 1⅞ yards 54-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern. Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Send for the new WINTER issue of the ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK and know what is new in smart clothes. It takes you through the whole of fashion from lingerie to outergarments....not overlooking some alluring new house frocks ....and bearing in mind the needs of the younger generation. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

JACK WAS WONDERIN'

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

As Deputy Sheriff Art Metcalf was on his way to Carthage, Monday, he came up behind a truck that was on fire. The truck was loaded with hogs. There was hay in the bottom that had caught fire, it was blazing merrily. Art drove up past the truck and hailed the driver, who proved to be Jack Hamilton of Lamar. "Your truck's afire, Jack," Art yelled. Jack pulled up, got over and put the fire out. "I smelt something burnin'," Jack said, "and I was wonderin' what it was."

Some Basic Principles in Weight Diets

An Intelligent System of Reducing Requires Knowledge of Calories.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE human body is a machine which converts food into energy and tissue. The first tissue which is made from food is muscular or protein tissue, but as soon as that need is satisfied, when there is a surplus supply of food, the body begins to create another tissue—fat.

In this statement we have the words, "surplus supply of food," and that must be understood first by anyone who wishes to direct a program for reducing weight intelligently. The food supply is measured by units of energy, which are called "calories." They are units of measurement just the same as an inch is a unit of linear measurement, or an ampere is a unit of electrical measurement. A calorie is the amount of energy which is released by a certain amount of food. It is also the energy which the body uses up in consuming a certain amount of food. The potential energy of the calorie in the food is converted into the active energy of the calorie in the body.

Now, we can calculate very accurately the number of calories which any human body uses in a definite period of time. It depends on certain factors: (1) the person's weight, (2) the amount of work or activity which the body performs, and (3) the individual's age.

Thus, to cover the first point, a man whose ideal weight is 150 pounds naturally needs more calories, more food, than a person whose weight is 100 pounds. Secondly, an athlete playing in a football game will need more energy than a clerk sitting at a desk. An actively growing child will use up more energy than an adult who has acquired his full growth.

In general, we can say that an adult with moderate activity will use about 15 calories per pound of body weight per day. For a person weighing 150 pounds this comes to 2250 calories. It is also mathematical that any food which is eaten in excess of the actual energy needs of the body, will either be excreted or deposited in the form of extra fat.

There are many adjustments which keep track of this somewhat complicated procedure. Most of us when we have overeaten feel stuffy, and within an hour or two want to take some exercise. This is an instinctive attempt to destroy the unnecessary extra food. One of the most remarkable regulators in the body is the appetite, which tells us quite accurately when we need food. But these adjustments frequently break down, especially as we get older. We are creatures of habit, and sitting down to three meals a day, we eat whether we are hungry or not, and we do not always obey the dictate of the feeling of stuffiness, and hence the fat accumulates.

There is also no doubt that there are certain things that we cannot entirely explain absolutely mathematically. There are some people, I am sure, who are prone to harbor fat, and whose food tends to be stored rather than burned or excreted. In most cases, however, this is a poor excuse, because under proper dieting these people also lose weight. The thing that is less easy to explain is the tendency of fat to deposit itself in certain parts of the body. The only explanation of that is simply to say that there are certain fat depots, but it results in the fact that bay-window stomachs, and large hips and breasts are the fate of the over-eater.

All of these things can be leveled, however, by adjusting your diet to the number of calories which you should have for an ideal weight. In order to do this, you have to learn something about the number of carolies in different kinds of food.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Notes From Here and There In Big City

Telephone Call.

I much prefer, since 15 years have gone,
That you remain a voice upon the phone,
A voice unchanged, to reminisce upon
When I consider charming men I've known.
The lilac-laden spring I walked with you,
The gay and easy laughter born of youth,
The unexampled ecstasy that two
In love perceive—must overcolor truth.

Your dinner invitation I decline,
With proper tact to camouflage my fears,
Because emotions lost are never mine
Again, to be recaptured after years;
I couldn't bear reality to dim
Those gala days when you were young—and slim.

—Jane Sayre.

The Retort Swelegant

From one of the theater programs comes this ageless, but always amusing quip. A man called on the editor of a paper and barked: "You announced my death in your last issue, and I demand an immediate apology!"

The next issue contained this: "We recently announced the death of Mr. Eddie Plotz. We regret to say it was untrue."

Izzy Elinsonism

That guy Voliva (the end-of-the-world predictor), is certainly being punished for saying the world would end on Sept. 12. He has to keep living in it!

Short Story

Red Dolan wants to collaborate with Sir James Barrie on a short fable suggested by this frantic telegram: "Stranded in Bide-a-Wee Nooke, Bonnie Briar Lane, rush 10 bucks."

Heheheh

Always a crusader, a newspaper man found himself on a small town paper that cheered everything. It never complained for reform on the excuse that in the sticks a sheet must please everybody, and offend none. Politicians looted the town without rebuke. Advertisers flooded the editor with puff propaganda.

The crusader dug up scores of scandals, but his searing stories were invariably wickered. He sought out the chief one day and demanded to know if the paper was against ANYTHING.

"Why, er yes," replied the publisher, "we are fearlessly opposed to grave-robbing!"

A Plane Causes Excitement For Puddle Muddle

By Mary Graham Bonner

THEY could all see now. A plane was coming down and it was going to land at the foot of Willy Nilly's hill where there was, except for a few bumps, a level piece of road.

"Caw, caw, caw, I must see what it's all about," cawed Christopher.

"I'm an old-fashioned fire horse," neighed Quick-Dick, "but I want to keep up with the times, too. I'll trot down and see what it means."

The plane was landing, and landing very well in spite of the bumps which seemed to shake it a bit, but without making it turn over as Willy Nilly had feared.

And now two men were getting out of the plane. They looked very, very tired.

"Hello," they said to Willy Nilly.

"Hello," answered Willy Nilly. And the animals all said "Hello," in their cawing, cackling, neighing, barking, quacking, growling voices.

The two men were evidently surprised to see such an assortment of creatures around them.

"My name is Jerry," said the first man, "and this is my companion Freddy."

Willy Nilly and the animals all greeted Jerry and Freddy but the two men seemed surprised their arrival didn't cause more excitement. Later the Puddle Muddlers understood.

Seen Here and There

THAT coat at LEPPERT-ROOS FUR CO., 809 Washington, has ruined our life! It makes our old coat look like a gunny sack . . . and really we were quite proud of it . . . until we saw that Eastern Mink . . . and now we'll probably spend the rest of our life wishing for a mink coat. Not just an ordinary mink . . . we've seen those before and survived . . . but one with all the simple elegance that LEPPERT-ROOS has built into this coat . . . with dark, well-striped, perfectly matched skins . . . and really . . . workmanship has a lot to do with a coat . . . Comparing this one with other mink coats . . . is like trying to compare a prima donna and a paperhanger. No use . . . there just isn't any comparison Their prices? $950 . . . up.

TALK about stopping the clock! That dress at GARLAND'S sport shop, 410 North Sixth, would stop anything! The rust colored wool blouse, tunic style, has the most unusual pockets . . . like sections of a cartridge belt . . . but it was the sash that put us down for the count . . . blue, red, green and yellow braided yarn . . . other knockouts, $7.98 to $39.75. We discovered boucles—Glengyles and Marinettes — $10.95 to $39.75 — and a yellow and black metal-shot Sunday Evening boucle—and the sweaters—twinsets—we didn't know there were so many weaves and colors . . . $2.98 to $7.98.

• • •

IT'S actually happened and we've beaten Ripley to it . . . yes sir, believe it or not, something new, at last, in a hat!! Of course you'll find it at GREENFIELD'S in the Millinery Salon on the third floor. And mind you, one of their own creations. Here's what it's like: felt, with a large brim; stitched in front, and, now listen, the stitchings which are brought from the edge of the brim are continued over the crown as loose threads and are caught in back as a braid that disappears in the turned up back. Just the thing for your new afternoon dress or dressy suit. It's handmade and can be copied in any shade to match your costume. Price $18.50. GREENFIELD'S, on Locust at Sixth.

• • •

IMAGINE it! Evening slippers trimmed in 14 Karat gold leaf kid—real gold—honest— at only $12.50 . . . and with Uncle Sam off the gold standard! That does make a difference, doesn't it? Exquisite little things . . . all combinations . . . red doeskin with gold striping . . . blue with silver . . . or allover gold . . . or silver . . . black and white satin . . . and crepe. Some as low as $10 at the PEACOCK SHOP, 815 Locust . . . but each one a love . . . a perfect dream . . . that we hope comes true for you!

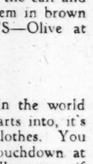

GO ahead and call us sentimental if you want to—but here goes. Moonlight on the russet autumn leaves . . . a path winding through country woods . . . a dashing horse . . . and, attention please, a pair of SWOPE'S riding boots that are perfect knock-outs and cost just $8.65. They're perfectly tailored with an English pattern leg that really makes 'em fit at the calf and ankle. You can get them in brown or black at SWOPE'S—Olive at Tenth.

• • •

IF there's one thing in the world we can put our hearts into, it's writing about sport clothes. You can score your own touchdown at your favorite football game if you'll stop in a BOYD'S and select any one of the many sport outfits we saw in the new Sport Shop on the third floor. Knit dresses and suits that are individual in style and price, too, ranging from $10.95 to $59.75. And if you're interested more in an active sports costume, ask to see that adorable two-piece suit of rib knit yarn. The overblouse has a square neck with an ascot tie and the elastic top skirt, being very plain, may be worn back or front! The very latest knits for town and country wear that look and feel like hand-knits — at BOYD'S — —Sixth and Olive.

NOW who isn't eternally looking for that blouse you've always dreamed about and never quite found??!! Or, if you're like we are, you always need a keen sweater and a skirt to "match" up with it. If it's shipons you're after —or twin sets . . . blouses, tunics or metal tops — then get thee to the Blouse, Sweater and Skirt Shop at FAMOUS-BARR CO. We soon discovered that they cater to big and little budgets. F'instance, there's one sweater, a smart import (bought to sell for $19.50) which they've had copied for those who want to spend just $5.98. It's Angora rabbit's hair, with a round neck and two little hand-fashioned pockets. It's a "smoothie." Trot yourself up to the Fourth Floor—Fashion Center.

• • •

P-L-L-EASE, Mr. Webster! You're so old fashioned. To define a tunic as a "loose-fitting garment." Well—all we've got to say is . . . you should see those tunics at CUNNINGHAM'S, on Sixth Street. This, you know, is the style center that attracts the youthful smartly dressed misses . . . because it presents such clever fashions at such modest prices. Refreshing frocks . . . somewhat different . . . like the Russian influence tunics portrayed in the very higher-priced ranges in exclusive fashion shops . . . are featured at $12.95. And now getting back to our tunics . . . so much in vogue . . . the ones at CUNNINGHAM'S . . . new rough crepes in lovely color combinations . . . high-necked, flared, are very Russian. They'll transform you into a daring young czarina!

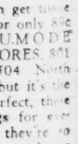

THE whole town's talking about the popularity of the Club Caprice, that smart supper club at the CORONADO HOTEL, which promises to be the "favored" dancing spot this season. And no wonder! You're just not in on the "know" of things if you've failed to dance to that band of bands directed by Charles Reader. A delightful floor show to amuse you, too. Go there for smart supper entertainment. Added attraction . . . there's no couvert charge and only a minimum of $1.00 on week nights and $1.50 on Saturdays. If you're early . . . stop at the El Cortez Cocktail Lounge on your way in! All this at the CORONADO HOTEL on Lindell at Spring.

WE "ankled" in to SUZANNE, INC., again and honestly, that little smart shop keeps us on our toes every minute finding out what's happening next. First its Paris creations, then there's millinery, lingerie and hose and now the custom-made things and . . . look what's happened to the custom-made department! It has outgrown it's floor space and Mr. Sherman has had to get extra rooms on the second floor to ease its growing pains. But there's a reason! You've never seen such smartly tailored suits and coats as those that proudly bear the SUZANNE, INC., label. If you want to see a bit of New York in St. Louis . . . drop in that shop with the blue awning at 4914 Maryland.

TIE a string around your finger, all ten of them if necessary . . . so you won't forget that now is the time to plant bulbs for your Spring garden. And really, the best place in town for bulbs is the floral department at SCRUGGS-VANDERVOORT-BARNEY, operated by Mr. W. H. Kruse, well-known St. Louis florist. Jonquils, 89c to $1.19 doz. . . . Hyacinths, $1.00 doz. . . . Tulips, special at 59c doz. . . . and the new V. P. Queen tulip, a 1934 introduction, 98c doz. All Mr. Kruse's own selections for quality and varieties.

• • •

YOU won't believe it when we tell you that you can get three chiffon hose for only $2.95 at the NEUMODE HOSIERY STORES, 801 Locust and 504 North Seventh . . . but it's the truth. . . . Perfect, these lovely stockings for evening, because they're so sheer—and practical for street wear with feet of reinforced lisle.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE GIANT THAT WARRED WITH HEAVEN— The "Old Man of Hoy" is the tallest of all rock pillars or stacks created as a result of the sea's erosion of the shore cliffs of the British Isles. It is a pinnacle 450 feet high and stands in rugged majesty upon the Island of Hoy in the Orkneys. It is very old. Tradition affirms that many generations back the Old Man stood on two legs, one of which has since yielded to the attacks of the sea. It is believed that "the giant has warred with Heaven" and that "His ruined scalp has been thunder-riven" in the affray.

THE DOWRY OF QUEEN MARGARET—When Margaret, the daughter of Christian I of Denmark, married James III of Scotland in July, 1469, the Danish King promised her a dowry of 60,000 Rhenish Florins, in cash (about $29,000), 10,000 florins payable immediately and the balance on the installment plan. As the King was unable to raise 2000 florins immediately, he had to pledge the Orkney and Shetland Islands as security for the sum. The dowry was never paid and as a result the Islands became the property of Scotland.

TOMORROW: THE STRANGEST SHIP ACCIDENT.

Rainbow's End

By Mary Seymour Rowe

JOAN JORDAN, trim-tailored, poised, outwardly as sure of herself as the mariner of his compass, drew in her breath as she stepped off the elevator at the twentieth floor of the Randall building. She went down the hall with an air that turned the head of every man she passed, even those much younger than herself. She was looking for a door with John Randall, Attorney, on it. But for all this outward assurance, her blood began racing, faster and faster, as though from red wine.

Suddenly it struck her full in the face; the reason of this long-deferred visit from New York.

Surely this eagerness could be only one thing. She had come all this way to see John Randall. So nothing could keep her from it—at last! Not even Frank Conner! She smiled whimsically. Dear old Frank, waiting for his answer, while she tricked herself with foolish reasons for the journey, and came all this way to hunt up John. It was quite plain to her now what her answer must be. She was not the sort of woman to marry one man while feeling like this toward another.

For a moment, she stood looking down at a broad-shouldered, rather stolid-appearing stranger behind his mahogany desk. His hair was slightly frosted at the temples, and his eyes were turned on her with a penetrating gleam as hard as metal. John's eyes had been as full of lights and shadows as brown cut-velvet!

"Pardon me," she said, glancing about. "I want to see Mr. Randall."

He smiled slightly. "And what can I do for you?"

"And you don't even know me? I'm Joan." She laughed — on the right key!

"Joan," he repeated in a puzzled tone. Then the glint in his eyes intensified, focused on her.

* * *

"JOAN!" He got up and came from behind his desk.

"Then you do remember me?" she managed, holding out her hand.

"But you didn't know me either!" He placed a chair for her and fortified himself behind his desk. "It's not very complimentary—is it?" he admitted.

"Or is it?" She was looking, now, every inch the successful New York business woman — and knew it.

Then he looked up. "That would depend upon the point of view."

The blotch of red on his face in front of his ears made Joan generous.

"Whatever the point of view, you've evidently succeeded. This building is gorgeous."

"Cost a cool million—my first million . . . "

Joan looked at him curiously.

"You see, your taking up interior decorating right when I thought we were going to get married right away convinced me that you expected me to be a flop. You were going to be prepared for it. Naturally, when we split up and you went to New York to make 'your fortune,' I vowed I'd make a million—or bust. Just to show you! Funny, but I made it."

"I'm glad I was some good to you, John."

"Humph! That's like a woman," his eyes narrowed. "Just the same, everyone of those dollars was colored by that illusion, as false as a rainbow, but leading me on—to the pot of gold." He smiled a bit bitterly.

"I would have supposed you were married—long before that." Her voice was low and tense. Instantly she knew that she had blundered.

"Would you?"

He picked up a pencil and rolled it aimlessly between his fingers. "But you married, of course. You didn't tell me your name."

Joan slipped a card from her pigskin purse and handed it to him.

John looked up at her in surprise.

"It's been a long time....hasn't it, Joan?"

"Yes,-a long time"—— and as she said it her mind cleared as if a fog had lifted.

Suddenly she realized that she, too, had followed a rainbow all during these years of struggle. Now she had reached the end of the rainbow, and yes....yes, there was the pot of gold. Joan's thoughts turned majestically to Frank Conner—faithful Frank, awaiting his answer in New York, and immediately the fabled pot of gold seemed to become cheap, glittering tinsel.

Randall continued to hold her card as if it were something precious. "And your name has been Joan Jordon all these years?"

"Why, yes," she murmured happily, "but when I get back to New York, I'm going to change it to Conner."

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —Theoretically they might be, but practically the chances are several billion billions to one they will not be. Some people have been found, entirely unrelated, who could be told apart only by careful scientific measurements. Identical twins are born pretty nearly alike, because they have been born from one germ-cell that, from some causes, divided exactly in the middle in so far as any measurements can ever determine. However, environment subsequently makes even these like-born individuals somewhat unlike, especially if they are put under different environments. If any reader knows of twins who look alike and were separated in babyhood and reared apart, by all means please write me. A big study of them is under way by scientists of the University of Chicago.

2. —Profoundly. In a fine book entitled, "You Must Relax," that shows you how to rest and relax without having to quit work, or take a trip, or go to bed, Edmund Jacobson, M. D., shows that when you get to thinking of some loss or disappointment you will find your muscles somewhere are on a strain. Dr. Jacobson says: "If you relax these particular tensions you cease to imagine or recall the matter in question. Such relaxations can be accomplished no less while active in your daily affairs than while lying down." Often better, has been my experience.

3. —Yes. In a passage of profound psychological significance to every married couple, William Joyce Cowen, in his new novel, "Man With Four Lives," quotes a letter from the principal character to his man friend: "How happy I am! We love each other, of course. But what is more important we like each other. Loving is one thing. Liking is another. You have to know a person, know them well to like them. It's the things a person does . . . in intimate daily life, that makes you like or dislike them . . . If they let cigarettes burn the furniture. If they sing in the bath . . . Silly things, but the sum total in daily repetitions is staggering. We like each other. We love each other."

They Certainly Like Excitement

BY ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ain't so anxious to investigate Alexander's assassination.

• • •

That's because the evidence may put the iron finger on one of the nations in the League.

• • •

Alliances over there are so jumbled that you can never tell who's your pal until he stabs you in the back.

• • •

There's only one thing to remember in diplomacy. When they shoot your watchdog in the afternoon you can expert burglars the same night.

• • •

That Atlantic Ocean may be 3000 miles of salt, but it looks mighty sweet just now.

• • •

That goes for the Pacific too. One thing about an ocean is that even the Versailles treaty failed to change is boundaries.
